"AMERICA AND FRANCE—UNITED FOREVER," FRENCH ENVOY'S BANQUET TOAST

Jusserand, in Remarkable Speech on 139th Anniversary of Treaty of Alliance Between the Two Countries, Invites His Auditors to Drink to Washington's Famous Password.

An Historic Oration

ON Feb. 6, 1778, was signed the first treaty of alliance between the United States of America and the French republic. At a banquet in commemoration of the event, held last Tuesday in New York, the French Ambassador, Monsieur J. J. Jusserand, made the remarkable address a full translation of which is here printed.

During his long stay in the United States Ambassador Jusserand has endeared himself to all Americans by his untiring efforts to cement even more firmly the traditional friendship of the two great democracies of the Old World and the New. Amidst the stress of the past two and one-half years the French Ambassador has set his face against anything in the nature of French or allied propaganda in this country, reiterating to all who sought to change his view that he had full faith in the American people and trusted them implicitly to form an honest opinion of the merits of the great struggle now going on in Europe. His confidence is reaffirmed in this eloquent address, which will take its place among the most inspiring orations of American history.

By His Excellency J. J. Jusserand,
Ambassador of France.

ONE hundred and thirty-nine years ago today in Paris—the city whose arms show a ship that the raging seas toss, but cannot sink—a treaty was signed which stands alone in the records of history. We are gathered here together to celebrate its anniversary.

A treaty which stands alone, by which the oldest of the nations of Europe pledged itself to place all of its resources—military, naval and financial—at the disposal of a young people, of a new-born nation, at a time when no one could tell whether it would survive or perish, but whose representatives had, two years before, signed a document bearing a truly magnificent title and foreshadowing the most splendid destinies—the Declaration of Independence. The then dim future has become the present of today, and these splendid destinies are now fulfilled in the United States of America.

At the foot of the treaty a name famous among all names, the name of Franklin; and, signing for France, a humble but to me a very dear name, the name of Conrad Gerard. Dear to me because Gerard was from Strassburg, and dear to me because he was my diplomatic forebear, the first Frenchman, the first foreign representative ever credited to the United States. In the calling that is mine he was the first friend of the United States. I have always tried to follow in his footsteps to the best of my ability.

Signed Through Love of Liberty.

A treaty which stands alone in that but one condition was stipulated in return for the support promised—France was to derive no material advantage. We were very anxious to give to the world the example of a country fighting for liberty, fighting on behalf of liberty. This steadfast purpose—so surprising that for a long time many doubted its sincerity—remained unshakable from the beginning to the end, from the hour of negotiation which preceded the alliance to the hour of final victory and definite and glorious peace, that admirable peace which was not only a peace but a pacification. The wisdom and the rare qualities of the peoples at war made possible this result.

During the preliminary negotiations the American delegate had offered us commercial advantage, the refusal of which to other nations might have hampered them later on. We refused to take anything. We wanted to fight for liberty, for honor and for nothing else.

After Yorktown efforts were made to get us to consent to a separate peace. The stake was immense; our cherished colony of Canada was offered us. We refused the proposal with the explanation to our then enemy (who today is our beloved and trusted ally) would see by the manner in which we kept our word to our American allies, how we would keep our word to him when once we should have given it.

He has seen it since. He sees it now every day, he will see it for all time, and his faith in us equals our faith in him.

Many other peace pacts, many other wars have followed those which made the spirit of '76 and the sprit of '78 famous in history. For more than a century peace has reigned between the three countries which met in arms at Yorktown and this peace has lasted year by year more secure, based upon the respect of one for the other, on the admiration inspired by their qualities and by a common love of liberty. All three stand today, morally at least, on the same side of the trench, on the side where blood flows for the cause [illegible] independence.

"France Will Never Forget."

Since the 3d of August, 1914, France is at war. Could she have avoided it? If there be still anyone in this world who can have a doubt upon the subject, that doubt must have been dispelled by the great and memorable message which the American Congress heard last Saturday from the lips of the President of the United States. Events have proved that even with the most sincere desire for peace, even aided by the immensities of space, without any common boundary anywhere in the world, it is dependent upon the desire of no one to avoid a rupture such as was forced upon us.

On the manner in which our fellow countrymen have struggled to defend the sacred principles upon which are founded alike the Republic of France and the Republic of America, public opinion in the United States has pronounced itself from the first hour with a warmth of heart that we shall never forget. This opinion has not only been made manifest by eloquent and admirable words and by generous gifts, but by brave deeds. At the risk of their days young Americans have saved and nursed our wounded, others have joined our soldiers in the trenches, offering their lives, often giving their lives, and at last as John Jay Chapman said of his son "sleeping today beside their comrades."

Of France's immense effort I personally have seen but little. But that little told its story. On my way to return here, the morning of that day on the evening of which Germany declared war upon us, I traveled far by motor through the prosperous fields and peaceful valleys of sunny France. There men and women had lived in peace, tilling the soil, raising their children and caring for their old folks. And suddenly, without a warning sign, in the countless villages where dwell the great mass of the French people came the beating of drums and the loud alarm of bells. An unparalleled cataclysm threatened rich and poor alike—the learned and the ignorant—threatened the whole nation

And what happened? That I saw. By a common impulse as if the fearful and prodigious event had at all times awaited each one turned his steps to where duty called.

There was not a hesitation, not a cry, not a threat against the enemy. Duty, plain duty, to be fulfilled as the normal and natural thing for which one had been born and for which one had always been ready. That duty entailed many partings,

How Universal Military Training League Expects to Perpetuate American Democracy and Eliminate Class Feeling Among Youth of the Land

Field Organizer, Now in St. Louis, Says That Far From Producing Militarism, Drilling Every Eoy in the Country for Military Service Would Preserve the Non-Military Character of Our Government and at the Same Time Be the Surest Guarantee Against Aggression by Covetous Nations.

Also It Would Increase the Health and Self-Respect of Every Beneficiary of the System and Insure a Better and Stronger Race of Men From Generation to Generation.

"UNIVERSAL military training, as opposed to militarism, is the platform of the Universal Military Training League, two representatives of which are now working among St. Louis business and professional men, to obtain indorsements of its program.

The chief purpose now before the league is to get votes in Congress for the revised Chamberlain bill, which requires every youth to undergo six months' military training in his nineteenth year, in a camp of the Plattsburg sort.

Richard Fairchild of Chicago, director of publicity for the league, explained yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter the plans on which it is working, and told how it came to be formed.

"The league's theory," he said, "is that public sentiment can be created, in a cause which is right, by organized effort. This movement is working on the same plan as did the movement for a nonpartisan tariff commission, and is headed by the same public-spirited men who headed the tariff commission movement, and brought about the passage of a measure establishing such a commission.

"The league was organized at a luncheon in the Union League Club, Chicago, last November. Howard H. Gross, who is president of the league, and Frank G. Logan, chairman of the directors, had been at the head of the tariff commission organization. Victor F. Lawson, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, and Robert Bacon of New York, president of the National Security League, are two of the prominent co-workers.

A Guarantee Against War

"THE league is urging its universal training plan, first, because it will provide a needed means of national defense, and, second, because it will remake American manhood and do away with class distinctions.

"There are many arguments in support of its plan, but the most telling one—the one which comes home to wives and mothers as well as to men and youths—is this:

"Every citizen of the United States, from 18 to 45 years, able to bear arms, is now, under the present military laws, subject to call for military service. There is no exception and no escape. The Government's power to compel such service is absolute, whether a man is trained or untrained.

"The trained man's chances of survival in war are more than twice as good as those of the untrained man, so, if war comes, it is to the interest of every man to have had thorough training. But we hold, in addition, that the existence of a trained force of millions of young men would be the most powerful preventive of war.

"Under the workings of the Chamberlain bill, every young man would receive a training like that of the Plattsburg camp, only broader and more intensive. The men would get their board, uniform and traveling expenses, but no compensation.

"The required period would be six months in the nineteenth year, but college or academy students who received military training in those institutions would get credit amounting to not more than four months for such training. In this way the student could take all the camp work required of him in one summer vacation, without interrupting his course.

"This system of training would pick up the youth when he is forming his habits, and before he has acquired any great earning capacity. It would teach him loyalty and discipline. It would counteract the tendency to softness and luxury. It would make him realize that there is something beyond parties and dancing and mandolin playing and cigarette smoking. It would remake the youth, would teach equality of obligation for rich and poor and would give the nation a new backbone.

2,000,000 Men Under Arms

"AS a measure of eugenics, it is clear that if 500,000 young men come into their nineteenth year with the physical and mental training of military service, they will be better equipped for marriage and fatherhood.

"Following their six months' training, each annual class of youths would form a reserve, subject to no further military duty in time of peace, except an annual muster.

"In case of war, the reserves would be called to the colors, beginning with the men last trained and going back, year by year, until a sufficient number shall have been called. As each year's class would amount to 500,000 men or more, this method would result in calling out the smallest possible number of married men. Before the age of 23 would be reached 2,000,000 men would be under arms.

"Anyone who calls this plan militarism shows that he does not know what militarism is. Militarism means placing youths in the army for two or three years. The United States does not want such a method, and there is no danger that the present plan would lead to it. The feeling of opposition to a large standing army is likely to continue, and this measure will prevent the need of a large standing army.

"At the same time it will make it easier to get enlistments for the army and navy. At present, it is impossible to keep either the army or the navy up to the strength that is reasonably desirable. When a new battleship is put in commission, two or three other serviceable ships have to be laid up, in order to recruit its crew.

"But if all your youth had a half-year's training there would certainly be many who would find themselves desirous of continuing in the nation's service, and I believe this number would be so large as to end the difficulty in keeping the army and navy up to the needed strength.

No Munitions Men Interested

"THE plan embodied in the revised Chamberlain bill was worked out after careful study of the Swiss and Australian methods. The Universal Military Training League is devoting itself to the single work of advocating the passage of the Chamberlain measure. Other organizations, notably the National Security League, are undertaking a broader activity, and are working toward industrial preparedness, and for the preliminary training of school pupils. All this is work of indispensable value, but it was decided that this league could be of the most service by sticking to one definite issue, especially as it is embodied in a measure now before Congress.

"The league is working to cover the United States, and it has 10 field men at work in different parts of the country, with the idea of stimulating sentiment in each congressional district. We find that about 90 per cent of the newspapers favor the measure.

"The Atlantic coast is practically a unit in support of the measure, and the Pacific coast is nearly as much interested. The Middle-Western states are waking up.

"On our Advisory Committee are President Ripley of the Santa Fe Railroad; Cyrus H. K. Curtis of the Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia; Cardinal Gibbons, Mayor Mitchel of New York, Dr. Roberts, permanent clerk Presbyterian General Assembly; President Judson of Chicago University, Julius Rosenwald of Chicago, the Rev. Dr. Cadman of Brooklyn, Bishop Fallows of Chicago, Mayor Lindsley of Dallas, Daniel J. Keefe, former vice president of the American Federation of Labor; J. M. Studebaker of South Bend, Ind.; R. T. Crane of Chicago and Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, and a number of other business and professional men of equally high standing.

"No one interested in the manufacture or sale of munitions or war material holds any official position in the league, and our financial support does not come from such sources. Those who contribute do so from patriotic motives.

League's Only Source of Revenue

"AT present we are distributing moving pictures of three and five reels, entitled "With Pershing in Mexico." These pictures have proven popular, and the picture houses are glad to pay for the privilege of using them. This is the only source of revenue to the league, aside from personal contributions."

The exemptions from military service, as provided in the Chamberlain bill, are, in the language of the bill, (a) those reported by the prescribed medical authorities as being physically unfit; (b) members of the permanent military or naval forces of the United States; (c) those morally unfit, and (d) members of any well-recognized religious sect or organization, at present organized and existing, whose creed forbids members to participate in war in any form, whose religious convictions are against war or participation therein, in accordance with the creed of said religious organization. The exemption of this class, however, shall include only such portion of the prescribed training as requires the bearing or use of arms.

In the case of all claims for exemption, it is provided, the burden of proof shall be upon the applicant for exemption. When the military authority denies exemption, an appeal may be taken to the United States court, and the decision of a Judge of that court shall be final.

The President would be empowered annually to designate a period of 30 days, during which period it would be the duty of each male resident who has arrived at the age of 18 during the calendar year, or will become 18 during the year, to register for training. Nonregistration, or failure to report for training after having registered, would be punishable, and the President would be empowered to form "disciplinary units" to administer "special training" to such slackers.

The bill also provides that any corporation or individual who shall employ a person who, having arrived at the age of 18, shall not have received his certificate of service or a certificate of exemption, shall be punished by a fine not greater than $500, or by imprisonment for not more than three months, or both.

President Discusses Plans

SINCE beginning the St. Louis campaign Wednesday, Fairchild and William T. Simpson, one of the league's field secretaries, have obtained indorsements of the movement from Mayor Kiel, Archbishop Glennon and George W. Simmons.

In a brief prepared by President Gross of the league, setting forth its program, this argument is made for universal training:

"The foundation of real preparedness, without which everything else must fail, is an adequate, sane and sensible plan for military training, which should be required of all physically fit and of a given age, supported by a unified patriot-

Head of Universal Training League Led Successful Fight for Tariff Commission

HOWARD H. GROSS.

HOWARD H. GROSS, president of the Universal Military Training League, is a Chicago capitalist who was formerly in the contracting business, and who was also interested in panoramas and other amusement ventures. As a member of the Chicago Board of Education, he was one of the early advocates of manual training in the schools of that city.

In recent years he has headed two successful public movements for bringing about legislation by Congress. The first of these was in behalf of the Smith-Lever agricultural act, which is now in force, and which provides that the Government shall pay for agricultural instruction in states which will pay a share of the cost. The second was the nonpartisan tariff commission act, in the interest of which an organization was formed. This organization has been carried over, in part, into the present movement for universal military training.

What Our Course Should Be if War Comes, Defined by International Expert Enemy Subjects' Rights Must Be Respected, and Private Property Held Sacred, but Prof. Stowell Says Interned German Ships May Be Seized as Possible Cruisers.

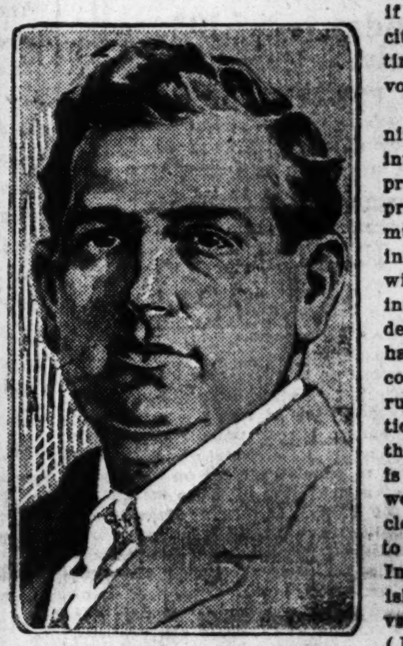
By Dr. Ellery C. Stowell,
Associate Professor of International Law, Columbia University.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.

THE severance of diplomatic relations with Germany does not necessarily mean war, but the dismissal of Ambassador Bernstorff and the recall of Ambassador Gerard comes at the end of a long series of incidents which have tried American patience to the breaking point. In the first place, there was Germany's unconciliatory diplomacy which made the war inevitable; then the perfidious and ruthless invasion of Belgium, followed by an even more ruthless policy of destruction of ships at sea. Finally the destructiin of the Lusitania stirred American opinion to its depths.



DR. ELLERY C. STOWELL.

The determination of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan to keep out of war prolonged the negotiations through several months until, with the culminating instance of the Sussex, a break was avoided only by Germany's compliance with the terms of President Wilson's ultimatum of April 18. As Germany's involved reply on her change of policy was considered to be a substantial compliance with the ultimatum, so now her note of Jan. 31, which she flung in the face of the American people, is rightfully regarded as a repudiation of her pledge.

Such a disregard of an agreement cannot under any circumstances be tolerated by a first-class Power, and I feel that a declaration of war against Germany is fully justified by the recent events view in the light of the history of the preceding months. But the President, in the exercise of his responsibility before the American people preferred to take the less drastic step of discontinuing diplomatic negotiations, which had become a farce and seemed likely to lead to no satisfactory solution of the difficulty.

The Time Element.

In some quarters criticism will perhaps be made that we should have waited until the first overt act resulting in the loss of American lives or property, but in the event that American lives should be lost through the illegal sinking of merchantmen it would be necessary to institute a thorough and time-consuming investigation before we could be certain that the vessel had not resisted attack or attempted to flee. Many vessels might be sunk and months elapse before we learned of their fate. In the present situation a state of war may be expected to result from any further forceful disregard of American rights, since the repelling of force by force would have that consequence. Ordinarily, however, our Government would first make a formal declaration of war, in which our reasons for taking up arms would be carefully set forth, in accordance with the provisions of articles I and II of the third Hague convention (Oct. 18, 1907).

If war does come, what will be its consequences In the first place we must consider the situation of the German citizen in this country and of Americans in Germany. It behooves us to treat them in the same magnanimous manner that we did the Spaniards in 1898.

At Bar of History.

It is true that the situation is entirely different from that existing at that time. The passions on both sides are deeply aroused, and the influences and numbers of the Germans make them a real source of danger. Nevertheless we should accept the inconveniences of the situation rather than be guilty of subjecting them to unjustifiable rigors in violation of the rules of international law and a due regard for the fair name of our country.

At this moment the American people stand before the bar of history and we shall have a supreme opportunity of showing that we know how to control our passions and protect the defenseless noncombatant enemies from the frenzy of the mob. Looked at from the broadest point of view, we shall be economically stronger and better able to bring Germany to terms if we allow their citizens to continue the ordinary vocations.

The well-recognized rule of the inviolability of private enemy property on land must be applied in a spirit which will show a broad intelligence and a determination to have our conduct conform to the rules of international law. In this connection it is important that we should not close our courts to German suitors. In the recent British case of Porter vs. Freudenberg (London Law Times Reports, vol. xxxi, pp. 162-71) the highest court, in my opinion, misinterpreted the article 23 of The Hague convention relative to war on land by which it is specially forbidden to the signatory nations "to declare abolished, suspended or inadmissible in a court of law the rights and actions of the nationals of the hostile party," and refused to permit the Germans to enjoy the privilege of bringing suit in the British courts. In view of the clear wording of The Hague provision and the incidental discussions, it was not a precedent which this country should follow. I cannot consider this decision one which our courts ought to follow.

The Interned Ships.

In regard to the great German liners laid up in our harbors, the situation is entirely different. There is no obligation in international law which should prevent our requisitioning these vessels whenever the interests of the nation require us so to do. Certain reports to the contrary notwithstanding, there are several reasons why The Hague convention relative to enemy ships at the outbreak of hostilities does not apply in the case of the German liners:

1. The convention has not been signed by the United States.

2. According to article 5 the "convention does not affect merchant ships whose build shows that they are intended for conversion into warships. Although the liners in question are peaceful in point of view of their construction, the fact that they could play an important part in the conduct of cruiser warfare and the transport of troops takes them out of the purely commercial interests which the convention aimed to protect.

3. In any event, article 2 expressly permits the requisitioning on payment of compensation of vessels unable to leave the port by reason of force majeure.

4. The purpose of the convention, as the preamble well shows, was not to protect shipping from seizure, but to limit the confiscation of war to the actual period of hostilities. It was felt that prior to the outbreak of war the lack of some such protection as convention six proposes to afford would cause the ships hurriedly to put to sea to the disastrous interruption of peaceful commerce. The consequence of the agitation might itself be one of the causes leading to a conflict. The German liners are not in this situation.

5. On the other hand, it may be

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Grocer's Profits.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"Reader," in discussing the high cost of living, says "that the public is at the mercy of the grocer and butcher." This statement is not based on fact. Backed by 30 years of retail experience, I am willing to venture the statement that there is not a grocerman or butcher in our city that averages over 7½ to 10 per cent net on his yearly business. The great majority of these merchants do not do over $50 a day. If they average 10 per cent net their daily wage would be $5. Some years ago the Master Butchers of St. Louis made an average of hours required of some of our merchants. Out of an organization of several hundred men we selected, at random, 25 men. These men averaged 96 hours a week; or, in other words, nearly 10 10-hour days. Most mechanics work only 48 hours and draw, in many instances, more money (without any investment) than the grocer or butcher earns in his business.

There are many conditions that are the cause of high prices. From my knowledge the worst element that the public has to contend with is the element of corporate greed. Big business has been concentrated into the hands of a few. The thing in a nutshell is that they have statistics on our daily consumption and therefore know how to manipulate the shipments for their own selfish ends. As a rule, the retailer makes so much profit per pound, no matter what his cost of the product. He merits the good will of the public and not their ill will.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS.

Invites Her to Church.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In answer to a letter in your columns recently signed "One of Them," please let me say that there is a church that hasn't left the congested district, in which she would be welcome. Its one reason for not doing so is the desire to accommodate the very kind of people she describes. The roomers and boarders who are strange and friendless in the city. She would know how to get in, too, as well as how to act when she got in. There are always people at the door and just inside for that purpose. If one looks or acts strangely they proceed to make them feel at home. Anybody and everybody is welcome. Her kind is just the kind we want. We do care, and we do hunt them out, to the best of our knowledge. This church is in the central part of the city, too (Grand and Washington). She more than likely could walk. Seats are all free. It is the Third Baptist Church. I as one of its members invite this lady in question to accept our hospitality. If she plays music or sings we would be so glad to have her in our Sunday school orchestra or choir.

A Real Red School House.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The little red schoolhouse. Yes, Mr. Strandborg, one does exist outside of poetry and fiction. You will find it in St. Charles County, Mo., about four miles from St. Charles. It can be seen from the Wabash trains (left-hand side of eastbound trains), between St. Charles and Elm Point.

Woman's Fight for Freedom.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"L. M. C.," in Sunday's Post-Dispatch, asks: "Why is it that when men fight for freedom they are hailed as heroes, and when women fight for it, even if it be for identically the same phases of freedom, they are ridiculed and abused?" My opinion is that men are hailed as heroes when they fight for freedom because both men and women, through years and centuries of evolution, have been taught to believe in freedom of men—not entire freedom, but just such amount of freedom as they are willing to fight for. As step by step men fight for greater freedom they are hailed as heroes by the subject class only; the ruling class regard them as fanatics, rebels and "undesirable citizens." Women are not hailed as heroes when they fight for freedom because both men and women, of ruling and subject class alike, have never been taught to, and do not, believe in freedom for women. Hence women who fight for freedom, of whatever nature or degree, are regarded by both sexes of both classes as fanatics, rebels and "undesirable females." L. M. C. should not get confused about "stanch, American principles;" they are applicable only to the small minority of the ruling class which are themselves in fact free. We have rested upon the theory that if the people believed they had rights they would not unite to exercise them, whereas, if they were told they had no rights they would unite to actually gain them. This accounts for the fact that women are now making a stronger fight for freedom than men. The greatest obstacle in the path of women is their own belief in subjection.

M. KUHN.

GERMANY CAN KEEP PEACE.

The report that the German Government seeks a discussion of ways and means of preventing war between Germany and the United States indicates a gleam of returning sanity in the German imperial mind.

Doubtless the German Government is feeling the weight of the adverse moral judgment laid upon it by the neutral nations. Perhaps it feels the weight of German public opinion, which may be strong enough to force its way through the lid of suppression. It is inconceivable that either the Government or the people should be indifferent to the condemnatory and hostile opinion of the civilized world evoked by Germany's lawless and inhuman submarine warfare.

It is inconceivable that the German people can rest easy under a course which dooms friendly neutrals, women and children to death without warning or mercy at the hands of German naval officers.

It is difficult to understand why Germany should seek further enlightenment as to ways and means of preventing war with us. The discussion through diplomatic correspondence has been singularly comprehensive and complete. The President's notes have clearly presented the terms and conditions which would preserve peace and the course on the part of Germany which would lead to war. The President's address briefly but lucidly defined the offenses which induced him to sever diplomatic relations and if persisted in would drive him to ask authority from Congress to use the military forces of the United States to defend our rights.

There is cause for gratification that, whatever comes, our hands are clean.

Despite the German Government's extraordinary conduct with regard to Ambassador Gerard and Americans in Germany, our conduct towards Ambassador von Bernstorff and Germans in the United States is exemplary.

We have exercised in all our dealing with Germany courtesy, patience and forbearance. It has just been announced from official sources that the President, in the event of an overt act, will not declare war on Germany, but will ask only for power to defend American rights and protect Americans against German assault.

The President has made a notable ruling beyond international law with respect to the treatment of German ships and property within the jurisdiction of the United States. He announces that private rights in property will be safeguarded under all circumstances and that the United States will not confiscate or use German ships or other property.

The German Government knows how it can preserve peace with the United States. Our terms are fair. We cannot modify them. If for any reason it wants to comply with them and seeks to arrive at a just understanding, the American people will gladly meet its advances.

SAVING THE BABIES.

The thousands of St. Louisans who have so generously contributed their time and money to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund should find their reward in the news that our city retains its enviable distinction of having the lowest infant mortality rate of the ten largest cities in the country. Secretary Kaufman of the Health Commissioner's office attributes to this philanthropy no inconsiderable part of the credit.

The summer months are the deadly months for babies. By far the largest number of them who die in the first two years of life succumb to ills brought about by insufficient, improper or impure food. Thanks to the fund the babies of the poor are spared to an extent that would be impossible without some such arrangement.

The figures for the last two years are illuminating. Last summer's fatalities were much greater than those of the summer before. Last summer was much hotter and longer than the summer before. The relation of cause to effect is thus clearly apparent.

These facts should be borne in mind a few months hence when the public will be asked once more to co-operate in this helpful charity.

THE WILSON IDEA LIVES.

Whatever the outcome of the German crisis, thoughtful Americans ought to be forever glad that the pages of history shall record the story of how an enlightened leadership in the United States sought to guide the world into the pathway of peace. Perhaps it is to be that, on the eve of inexorable events, a great idea was born which in the future would make such events impossible.

It is a thought of which no one individual can claim paternity. It is not even new except in the matter of crystallization. Many men in many places have entertained it in various phases. Alfred Capus, editor of the Paris Figaro, wrote about it in his paper as early as New Year's day. H. G. Wells, the British writer, made it the subject of an article written weeks ago and published in the Saturday Evening Post. A Post-Dispatch editorial suggested it several weeks ago.

The curious thing about it is that most of the criticising was done in America. Minds seemed better prepared for the suggestion elsewhere than they were here. The article by Wells is much to the point. Prepared as it was before the President made his speech in the Senate, the writer seemed to have an almost uncanny prescience of what Mr. Wilson intended to say.

"Victory complete and dramatic may be bought too dearly," said Wells. "We need no triumphs out of this war but the peace of the world."

"The present war must first be ended," said President Wilson, * * * "but it must be a peace without victory."

"All Europe was impressed by the truth, and by President Wilson's recognition of the truth, that from any other great war after this America will be unable to abstain," said Mr. Wells.

"No covenant of co-operative peace that does not include the peoples of the New World can suffice to keep the future safe from war," said President Wilson.

"They (the few great industrial states) should set up an International Tribunal for the discussion and settlement of international disputes," said Mr. Wells.

"If the peace presently to be made is to endure, it must be a peace made secure by the organized major force of mankind," said President Wilson.

"Such an agreement," said Mr. Wells, "needs the attention of such a disengaged people as the American people to work it out and supply it with weight. It needs putting before the world with some sort of authority greater than its mere entire reasonableness."

Isn't that just what the President of the United States tried to do? If he has failed for the time, the failure is not his own. History may consider this attempt by far more important than any other thing he may have done. It may be that events will give us a part in making the terms of peace we would not otherwise have had.

THE NEGRO MIGRATION.

There is much talk in the Southeast of another negro migration in the spring. When the migrations began a year or more ago the South said it would be a good thing; that the negro loafers would go North, be fooled and mistreated and would come back sadder and wiser men.

But, instead, negroes kept on coming North and only a few went back. Reports have it that many of them did not stay with their first jobs, but they stayed in the North. In fact, the first 1000 carefully selected negroes brought North by the Erie railroad are practically all in the employ of that road yet.

Now the South has begun to look into the question and the various cities have quit passing foolish ordinances prohibiting labor agents from employing negroes and the police have quit arresting negroes that gather at the station to see a Northern train depart.

The major proposal now put forth is to stop lynchings. This move is very strongly supported in Georgia, where white industrial leaders lay the migration troubles chiefly to lynchings. The press of the State is practically a unit in demanding a fair trial for all negro offenders. Added to this plan of the "keep them at home platform" are demands for better housing and schools. It is generally admitted that unless the spring movement can be headed off the State is going to be in a bad way for labor. To this is added a suggestion of better wages.

SENATOR WORKS' DESTINATION.

The esteemed Los Angeles Times shares in the Post-Dispatch view of Senator Works' unpatriotic attack upon the administration for its course in the German crisis, although it expresses itself in language that would be considered as somewhat heated in Middle West canons of journalistic taste. The Times remarks:

> It is to be hoped, but not expected, that when the senatorial term of John D. Works expires, 24 days hence, he will not return to this city, but go to Germany or Hell.

Very harsh words, those. It is true that the writer had great provocation—the Senator theoretically is his representative in Washington—but one should not lose poise. The going to Germany is hard and perilous these days and the welcome uncertain. As for the other place—tut, tut!

The Senator is getting along in years and doubtless is set in his ways. The Times man may know more about him than we do here in St. Louis and consequently may despair more of his regeneration. Yet he should remember the old couplet which begins "While the lamp holds out to burn." It is one's duty to labor with an erring brother, not to stand by the primrose path and shout "Bon voyage!"

"DOCKING" THE JUSTICES' SALARIES.

Whatever changes are made in the method of publishing judicial opinions, nothing should be done decreasing the already insufficient compensation of the Supreme Justices. The long terms served by the Justices and the prohibition on any increase or decrease during these terms in the official salaries, fixed many years ago, obstructed direct provision for adequate remuneration. This legal difficulty was evaded by making the Justices members of the Publication Commission and giving them additional pay for the performance of the new duties.

This is one of the many unreasonable and hampering restrictions that make a constitutional revision necessary. If the commission is abolished or remodeled, some other device should be sought for continuing the supplementary compensation. To cut their pay to the old basis, giving them hardly more than a clerical salary would be little short of a scandal.

Their present total in remuneration should be increased, not decreased.

Lord Northcliffe and Germany appear to be in accord for once. Both of them want the United States to stay out of the war.

MERIT SYSTEM POSTMASTERS.

The lower house of Congress, by a vote of 234 to 43, rejected the plan to place all Postmasters under the merit system. It is a plan whose adoption future Houses might regret, but its disapproval by the present House shows that the workings of the congressional mind, especially in matters of patronage, continues as mysterious as ever.

The incumbents of almost all the best postmasterships are the selections of the present Congressmen. By adopting the merit plan members would insure to their own appointees practically a life tenure of office, at least tenure during good behavior.

In addition they would obtain the approval of a powerful body of intelligent sentiment in the country, but probably the average Congressman is indifferent to any such consideration.

PANETELA.

NO, Luella,
Yankee captains,
Much to Germany's Disgust,
Are not putting Up their colors
Where the Kaiser
Says they must.
Something in Their natures, dearie,
Insofar
As we discern,
Balks at such
A base precaution
As the colors
On the stern.

Maybe something Else suggested
Still may Reconcile our pride,
But at present,
Little girlie,
Bill will have
To be denied.
Anything he asks
In reason
To insure us
From attack,
But would he
For peace, we wonder,
Wear his medals
On his back?

That is all,
My dear Luella—
Aft is aft
On either side;
In the row
At Armageddon
Men for less
Than this have died.
While we cannot,
See the future
And the perils
To be met,
We are no more
Than the Kaiser
Prone to backing
Up as yet.

If the Germans
Want to sink us,
They shall find us,
As of yore,
With the still Triumphant colors
Bravely going
On before.
One as well
Would look for Teddy
Riding fiercely
Down the wind
In the red, fierce
Glow of battle
With his glasses
On behind.

No, indeedy,
Little girlie,
That is not
The Yankee style;
Kaiser Wilhelm
Doesn't get us
By the margin
Of a mile.
When a submarine
Descries us,
Bravely venturing
The sea,
It shall still Observe the colors
Where the colors
Ought to be.

IN SIGNS.

A Chinese tailor in the British quarter of Hong Kong flies this sign in front of his place of business:

Ah Men
The last word in men's tailoring.

The Circumnavigators' Club, whose members must have girdled the globe, carries this announcement in its publication:

> To be eligible a man must have made a circuit of the globe longtitudinally, and be vouched for by three members. Bounders, remittance men and other haloed Hooligans are not invited. They are interesting only on the horizon, offensive in the middle distance, and impossible in the foreground. Our gatherings are all in the foreground.

If international law is Britain's sole defense against U-boats, she will probably live to see potatoes go up to $100 a bushel.

Odds: How is the Clayton Road?
Ends: Great Scott! A caterpillar truck would wreck itself on it.

THE MELTING POT.

OH! the Melting Pot, the Melting Pot
Of things remembered and things forgot.
When the mind is blurred and the eyes see red
Shall we glance behind or read instead
The pages of duty, the leaves of truth
The precepts of loyalty learned in youth.

Oh! the Melting Pot, the Melting Pot,
What are we now and what are we not?
Are we the product of alien birth
Or, are we rooted in freedom's earth?
Are we steady or will we swerve?
Will we falter or will we serve?

Oh! the Melting Pot, the Melting Pot,
Are we united, or are we not?
Have we one purpose and one desire,
A cause in common that must inspire,
Patriotism that should impart
A glow of zeal to the coldest heart?

Oh! the Melting Pot, the Melting Pot,
Why must we question? A darker blot
Could not rest on our Country's name.
How can we doubt and bear the shame?
Lives there among us a single man
Who fears to be called an American?

BEAUTY CULTURE.

C. D. E.—Henna tea is used to dye auburn, but is said not to be suited to blond hair. Chinese eyelash stain: Gum arabic, 1 dram; India ink, ½ dram; rosewater, 4 oz. G. H.—Many regard the death penalty as simply idiotic. Whether it diminishes crime is a mooted question. In this country several states, Wisconsin, Michigan, Rhode Island, Maine and Kansas, have abolished capital punishment, apparently with satisfactory results. On the other hand, New York and Iowa tried the experiment, and restored the death penalty on account of an increase in crime. Capital punishment has been abolished in Holland, Rumania, Portugal, Belgium and in most of the cantons of Switzerland. Nearly all expert penologists and criminologists condemn the practice as inhumane, unnecessary and altogether the poorest way to treat a criminal or to deter others from crime. Haunted by faces of murderers he had sent into eternity, William N. Darby, warden of the Ohio State Penitentiary, resigned a position paying him $5000 a year rather than add to the number of the haunting faces.

F. B. J.—Pronunciation of St. Louis has not been fixed by law. Western people say Saint Loois; Eastern, Saint Loo-ee; Frenchmen, San Loo-ee; Germans could say St. Ludwig. "Saint Looey" was the pronunciation used in the Masque of St. Louis, the symbolic afterpiece of the Pageant, in Forest Park, May 28-31, 1914. Percy MacKaye, writer of the Masque, said the name of St. Louis would be shouted by many voices in the latter part of the Masque, as the nations of the world, and the other cities of America, hailed the knightly figure representing this city. These shouts should sound over the hillside in the largest possible volume, and for that purpose he decided that it would not do to have an "s" sound on the end of the word. Although the poet-dramatist did not mention it, a precedent for his choice of the "Looey" pronunciation was set by the writer of a popular song of World's Fair days. This song was entitled, "Meet Me in St. Louis, Louis," and a footnote instructed the singer that "Louis" should in both cases be pronounced "Looey."

MRS. H.—Those wishing to obtain a child from an asylum must first secure letters vouching for their character from a physician and priest, or minister. If these guarantee that the applicant is a fit person to undertake the rearing of a child, then one is given them. The principal St. Louis hospitals and asylums which enter into this work are: Bethesda Foundlings' Home, the Rebekah Home, the Mothers' and Babies' Home, the St. Ann's Asylum, the Home for Convalescent Women and Rescue Home and the various orphan asylums. An attorney or notary public may write the adoption papers for you: as to the cost, you can inquire of them; one may charge a large fee and another a small one; besides it depends upon what is necessary in your particular case. As to why preference is given to one sex above the other by those who would adopt children, a writer says: Women have hearts teeming with mother love, who would yet prefer not to introduce to a quiet home—into which children have never been born—elements of lively unrest. A rough, noisy, manly boy may be attractive to his own mother. She who seeks to adopt a child naturally prefers the gentle, loving girl, who will beautify the parent's world and not make it upside down.

READER.—Climbing roses are propagated mostly by hardwood cuttings made in the fall. Many cutflower roses may be propagated in the same way. Hardwood cuttings are taken from the dormant wood of winter, while softwood, or greenwood, cuttings are taken when the plants are in active growth. To make a hardwood cutting, good, strong, well-ripened shoots of the past summer's growth should be selected. These are better if cut between the time the leaves fall and freezing weather. If left until after cold weather there is danger of injury from freezing. They should be cut into pieces of five or six inches, with the upper cut just above a bud, and should be tied in bundles with raffia or with string that does not rot easily if exposed to dampness. After labeling plainly they should be buried in moist sand, tops down, and placed in a cool cellar or buried in the open ground below danger of frost. They should be planted in the open ground in the spring about or a little before corn planting time, so that one or two eyes, or not over one inch of the cutting, is above the ground, which will leave four or five inches in the ground. Care must be taken not to injure the calluses that have formed while the cuttings were buried. Sometimes better results are obtained by planting in partial shade.

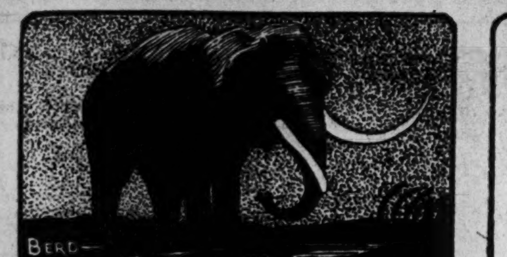
Drape large flag over one shoulder and around waist. Hair should be parted and worn with large Psyche knot; wear tiny Phrygian cap made from small silk flag. May be blonde or brunette. Someone writes: It takes a tall, commanding figure to carry the "Liberty" costume successfully. Such a woman must wear a skirt long all the way around, suggesting drapery rather than a skirt. This is usually of some inexpensive red and white stuff. The blouse is of fine white lawn, cut low neck and sleeveless, the top gathered into a pale blue band decorated with silver stars. A sash of blue should be loosely draped about the waist under the right arm and taken up to the left shoulder and caught there with a large silver star, the ends floating over the dress. Hair may be loose, falling from a small white cap in helmet shape of white, bearing a band of blue with letters forming "Liberty" cut from silver paper and pasted on. (See Public Library.)



The IVORY CHILD

By H. Rider Haggard

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING INSTALLMENTS

ALLAN Quatermain, big game hunter and South African adventurer, while on a visit to the English home of Lord Ragnall, meets two turbaned strangers posing as conjurers, who inform him that two African tribes, the White Kendah and the Black Kendah, are at war. The god of the White Kendah is an image known as the Ivory Child, while that of the Black Kendah is an enormous elephant, Jana, which accompanies its tribesmen to battle and spreads terror among the rival natives. For his assistance in slaying the elephant Quatermain is promised entrance to a land where all elephants go to die, and where an enormous fortune in ivory awaits him.

The fiancee of Lord Ragnall, who later marries him, is told that the gods have appointed her as the guardian of the Ivory Child. After an unsuccessful attempt to kidnap her the strangers depart. Two years later finds Quatermain in Africa, where he is drawn into a gold mining scheme, swindled by his associates and left practically penniless. He has just about decided to resume big game hunting as a means of replenishing his purse when he is astonished by a visit from Lord Ragnall.

"YES, Quartermain," he said, as he took my hand, "it is you to whom I have traveled 7000 miles to visit, and I thank God that I have been so fortunate as to find you. I feared lest you might be dead, or perhaps far away in the center of Africa where I should never be able to track you down."

"A week later perhaps you would not have found me, Lord Ragnall," I answered, "but as it it happens misfortune has kept me here."

"And misfortune has brought me here, Quatermain."

Then before I had time to answer Savage came up and we went into the house.

"You are just in time for lunch," I said, "and as luck will have it, there is a good rock cod and a leg of oribe buck for you to eat. Boy, set two more places."

"One more place, if you please, sir," said Savage. "I should prefer to take my food afterwards."

"You will have to get over that in Africa," I muttered. Still, I let him have his way, with the result that presently the strange sight was seen of the magnificent English major-domo standing behind my chair in that little room and handing round the square-face as though it were champagne. It was a spectacle that excited the greatest interest in my primitive establishment and caused Hans, with some native hangers-on, to gather at the window. However, Lord Ragnall took it as a matter of course and I thought it better not to interfere.

When we had finished we went on to the step to smoke, leaving Savage to eat his dinner, and I asked Lord Ragnall where his luggage was. He replied that he had left it at the customs. "Then," I said, "I will send a native with Savage to arrange about getting it up here. If you do not mind my rough accommodation there is a room for you and your man can pitch a tent in the garden."

After some demur he accepted with gratitude, and a little later Savage and the native were sent off with a note to a man who hired out a mule cart.

"Now," I said, when the gate had shut behind them, "will you tell me why you have come to Africa?"

"Disaster," he replied. "Disaster of the worst sort."

"Is your wife dead, Lord Ragnall?"

"I do not know. I almost hope that she is. At any rate, she is lost to me."

An idea leapt to my mind to the effect that she might have run away with somebody else, a thing which often happens in the world. But fortunately I kept it to myself and only said:

"She was nearly lost once before, was she not?"

"Yes, when you saved her. Oh! if only you had been with us, Quatermain, this would never have happened. Listen: About 18 months ago she had a son, a very beautiful child. She recovered well from the business and we were as happy as two mortals could be, for we loved each other, Quatermain, and God had blessed us in every way; we were so happy that I remember her telling me that our great good fortune made her feel afraid. One day last September, when I was out shooting, she drove in a little pony cart we had with the nurse and the child, but no man, to call on Mrs. Scroope, who also had been recently confined. She often went out thus, for the pony was an old animal and quiet as a sheep.

"By some cursed trick of fate it chanced that when they were passing through the little town which you may remember near Ragnall, they met a traveling menagerie that was going to some new encampment. At the head of the procession marched a large bull elephant, which, I discovered afterward, was an ill-tempered brute that had already killed a man and should never have been allowed upon the roads. The sight of the pony cart, or perhaps a red cloak which my wife was wearing, as she always liked bright colors, for some unknown reason seems to have infuriated this beast, which trumpeted. The pony becoming frightened, wheeled round and overturned the cart right in front of the animal, but apparently without hurting anybody. Then"—here he paused a moment and with an effort continued—"that devil in beast's shape cocked its ears, stretched out its long trunk, dragged the baby from the nurse's arms, whirled it round and threw it high into the air, to fall crushed upon the curb. It sniffed at the body of the child, feeling it over with the tip of its trunk, as though to make sure that it was dead. Next, once more it trumpeted triumphantly, and without attempting to harm my wife or anybody else, walked quietly past the broken cart and continued its journey, until outside the town it was made fast and shot."

"What an awful story!" I said with a gasp.

"Yes, but there is worse to follow. My poor wife went off her head, with the shock, I suppose, for no physical injury could be found upon her. She did not suffer in health or become violent; quite the reverse, indeed, for her gentleness increased. She just went off her head. For hours at a time she would sit silent and smiling, playing with the stones of that red necklace which those conjurers gave her, or rather counting them, as a nun might do with the beads of her rosary. At times, however, she would talk, but always to the baby, as though it lay before her or she was nursing it. Oh! Quatermain, it was pitiful, pitiful!

"I did everything I could. She was seen by three of the greatest brain doctors in England, but none of them was able to help. The only hope they gave was that the fit might pass off as suddenly as it had come. They said, too, that a thorough change of scene would perhaps be beneficial, and suggested Egypt; that was in October. I did not take much to the idea, I don't know why and personally should not have acceded to it had it not been for a curious circumstance. The last consultation took place in the big drawing room at Ragnall. When it was over my wife remained with her mother at one end of the room while I and the doctors talked together at the other, as I thought quite out of earshot. Presently, however, she called to me, saying in a perfectly clear and natural voice:

"'Yes, George, I will go to Egypt. I should like to go to Egypt.' Then she went on playing with the necklace and talking to the imaginary child.

"Again on the following morning as I came into her room to kiss her, she exclaimed:

"'When do we start for Egypt? Let it be soon.'

"With these sayings the doctors were very pleased, declaring that they showed signs of a returning interest in life and begging me not to thwart her wish.

"So I gave way, and in the end we went to Egypt together with Lady Longden, who insisted upon accompanying us, although she is a wretched sailor. At Cairo a large dahabiyeh that I had hired in advance, manned by an excellent crew and a guard of four soldiers, was awaiting us. In it we started up the Nile. For a month or more all went well! Also to my delight my wife seemed now and again to show signs of returning intelligence. Thus she took some interest in the sculptures on the walls of the temples, about which she had been very fond of reading when in health. I remember that only a few days before the—the catastrophe, she pointed out one of them to me, it was of Isis and the infant Horus, saying: 'Look, George, the holy Mother and the holy Child,' and then bowed to it reverently, as she might have done to an altar. At length, after passing the First Cataract and the Island of Philae, we came to the temple of Abu Simbel, opposite to which our boat was moored. On the following morning we explored the temple at daybreak and saw the sun strike upon the four statues which sit at its further end, spending the rest of that day studying the colossal figures of Rameses that are carved upon its face and watching some cavalcades of Arabs mounted upon camels traveling along the banks of the Nile.

"My wife was unusually quiet that afternoon. For hour after hour she sat still upon the deck, gazing first at the mouth of the rock-hewn temple and the mighty figures which guard it and then at the surrounding desert. Only once did I hear her speak and then she said: 'Beautiful, beautiful! Now I am at home.' We dined and as there was no moon, went to bed rather early, after listening to the Sudanese singers as they sang one of their weird chanties.

"My wife and her mother slept together in the state cabin of the dahabiyeh, which was at the stern of the boat. My cabin, a small one, was on the one side of this, and that of the trained nurse on the other. The crew and the guard were forward of the saloon. A gangway was fixed from the side to the shore and over it a sentry stood, or was supposed to stand. During the night a Khamsin wind began to blow, though lightly, as was to be expected at this season of the year. I did not hear it for, as a matter of fact, I slept very soundly, as it appears did everyone else upon the dahabiyeh, including the sentry, as I suspect.

"The first thing I remember was the appearance of Lady Longden just at daybreak at the doorway of my cabin and the frightened sound of her voice, asking if Luna, that is my wife, was with me. Then it transpired that she had left her cabin clad in a fur cloak, evidently some time before, as the bed in which she had been lying was quite cold. Quatermain, we searched everywhere; we searched for four days, but from that hour to this no trace whatsoever of her has been found."

"Have you any theory?" I asked.

"Yes; or at least all the experts whom we consulted have a theory. It is that she slipped down the saloon in the dark, gained the deck and thence fell or threw herself into the Nile, which, of course, would have carried her body away. As you may have heard, the Nile is full of bodies. I myself saw two of them during that journey. The Egyptian police and others were soon convinced that this was what happened but notwithstanding the reward of $5000 which I offered for any valuable information, they could hardly be persuaded to continue the search."

"You said that a wind was blowing and I understand that the shores are sandy, so I suppose that all footprints would have been filled in?"

He nodded and went on. "What is your own belief? Do you think she was drowned?"

He countered my query with another of:

"What do you think?"

"I? Oh! although I have no right to say so, I don't think at all. I am quite sure that she was not drowned; that she is living at this moment."

"Where?"

"As to that, you had better inquire of our friends, Harut and Marut," I answered dryly.

"What have you to go on, Quartermain? There is no clew."

"On the contrary, I hold that there are a good many clews. The whole English part of the story in which we were concerned, and the threats of those mysterious persons uttered are the first and greatest of these clews. The second is the fact that your giving of the dahabiyeh regardless of expense was known a long time before your arrival in Egypt, for I suppose you did so in your own name, which is not exactly that of Smith or Brown. The third is your wife's sleep-walking propensities, which would have made it quite easy for her to be drawn ashore under some kind of mesmeric influence. The fourth is that you had seen Arabs mounted on camels upon the banks of the Nile. The fifth is the heavy sleep you say held everybody on board upon this particular night, which suggests to me that your food may have been drugged. The sixth is the apathy displayed by those employed in the search, which suggests to me that some person or persons in authority may have been bribed, as is common in the East, or perhaps frightened with threats of bewitchment. The seventh is that a night was chosen when a wind blew which would obliterate all spoor, whether of men or of swiftly traveling camels. These are enough to begin with, although doubtless if I had time to think I could find others. You must remember, too, that although the journey would be long, this country of the Kendah can doubtless be reached from the Soudan by those who know the road, as well as from Southern or Eastern Africa."

"Then you think that my wife has been kidnaped by those villains, Harut and Marut?"

"Of course; though villains is a strong term to apply to them. They may be quite honest men, according to their peculiar lights, as indeed I expect that they are. Remember that they serve a god or fetish, or rather, as they believe, a god in a fetish, who to them doubtless is a very terrible master, especially when, as I understand, that god is threatened by a rival god."

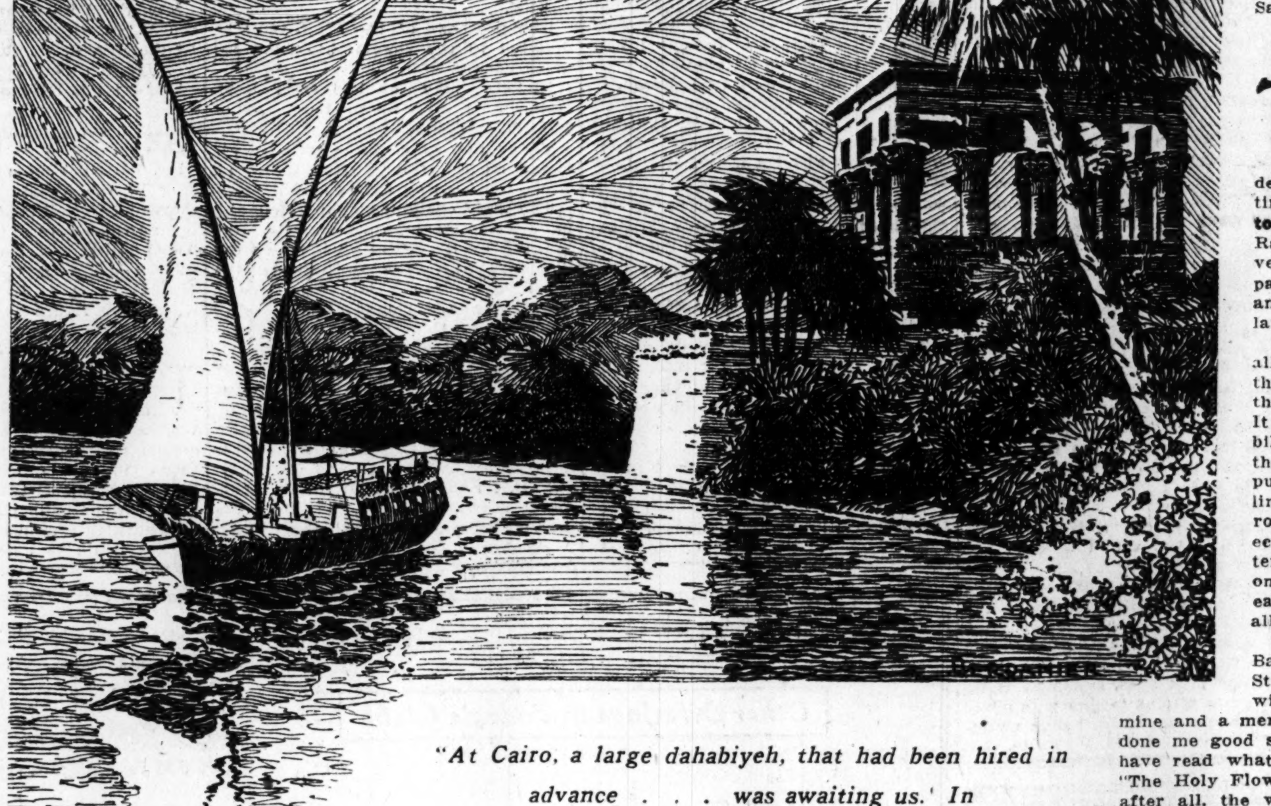
"Why do you say that, Quatermain?"

By way of answer I repeated to him the story which Hans said he had heard from the old woman at Beza, the town of the Mazitu. Lord Ragnall listened with the deepest interest, then said in an agitated voice:

"That is a very strange tale, but has it struck you, Quatermain, that if your suppositions are correct, one of the most terrible circumstances connected with my case is that our child should have chanced to come to its dreadful death through the wickedness of an elephant?"

"That curious coincidence has struck me most forcibly, Lord Ragnall. At the same time I do not see how it can be set down as more than a coincidence, since the elephant which slaughtered your child was certainly not that called Jana. To suppose because there is a war between an elephant-god and a child-god somewhere in the heart of Africa, that therefore another elephant can be so influenced that it kills a child in England is, to my mind, out of all reason."

That is what I said to him, as I did not want to introduce a new horror into an affair which was already horrible enough. But, recollecting that these priests, Harut and Marut, believed the mother of this murdered infant to be none other than the oracle of their worship (though how this chance passed my comprehension), and therefore the great enemy of the evil elephant-god, I confess that at heart I felt afraid. If any powers of magic, black or white or both, were mixed up with the matter, as my experiences in England seemed to suggest, who could say what might be their exact limits? As, however, it has been demonstrated again and again by the learned that no such things as African magic exists, this line of thought appeared to be too foolish to follow. So, passing it by, I asked Lord Ragnall to continue.



"At Cairo, a large dahabiyeh, that had been hired in advance . . . was awaiting us.' In it was started up the Nile."

"For over a month," he went on, "I stopped in Egypt, waiting till emissaries who had been sent to the chiefs of various tribes in the Sudan and elsewhere returned with the news that nothing whatsoever had been seen of a white woman traveling in the company of natives, nor had they heard of any such woman being sold as a slave. Also through the Khedive, on whom I was able to bring influence to bear by help of the British Government, I caused many harems in Egypt to be visited, entirely without result. After this, leaving the inquiry in the hands of the British Consul and a firm of French lawyers, although in truth all hope had gone, I returned to England, whither I had already sent Lady Longden, brokenhearted, for it occurred to me as possible that my wife might have drifted or been taken thither. But here, too, there was no trace of her or of anybody who could possibly answer her description. So at last I came to the conclusion that her bones must lie somewhere at the bottom of the Nile, and gave way to despair."

"Always a foolish thing to do," I remarked.

"You will say so indeed when you hear the end, Quatermain. My bereavement and the sleeplessness which it caused preyed upon me so much (for now that the child was dead my wife was everything to me) that, I will tell you the truth, my brain became affected, and, like Job, I cursed God in my heart and determined to die. Indeed, I should have died by my own hand had it not been for Savage. I had procured the laudanum and loaded a pistol with which I proposed to shoot myself immediately after it was swallowed, so that there might be no mistake. One night only a couple of months or so ago, Quatermain, I sat in my study at Ragnall, with the doors locked as I thought, writing a few final letters before I did the deed. The last of them was just finished about 12, when, hearing a noise, I looked up and saw Savage standing before me. I asked him angrily how he came there (I suppose he must have had another key to one of the doors) and what he wanted. Ignoring the first part of the question, he replied:

"'My Lord, I have been thinking over our trouble'—he was with us in Egypt—'I have been thinking so much that it has got hold of my sleep. Tonight as you said you did not want me any more and I was tired, I went to bed, early and had a dream. I dreamed that we were once more in the shrubbery, as happened some years ago, and that the little African gent who shot like a book was showing us the traces of those two black men, just as he did when they tried to steal her ladyship. Then in my dream I seemed to go back to bed and that beastly snake which we found lying under the parcel in the road seemed to follow me. When I had got to sleep again, all in the dream, there it was standing on its tail at the end of the bed, hissing till it woke me. Then it spoke in good English, and not in African, as might have been expected.

"'"Savage," it said, "get up and dress yourself and go at once and tell his lordship to travel to Natal and find Mr. Allan Quatermain" (you remember that was the African gentleman's name, my Lord, which, with so many coming and going in this great house, I had quite forgotten until I had the dream). "Find Mr. Allan Quatermain," that slimy reptile went on, opening and shutting its mouth for all the world like a Christian making a speech, "for he will have something to tell him as to that which has made a hole in his heart that is now filled with the seven devils. Be quick, Savage, and don't stop to put on your shirt or your tie"—I have not, my Lord, as you see. "He is shut up in the study, but you know how to get into it. If he will not listen to you, let him look around the study and he will see something which will tell him that this is a true dream."

"'Then the snake vanished, seeming to wriggle down the left bottom bedpost, and I woke up in a cold sweat, my Lord, and did what it had told me.'

"Those were his very words, Quatermain, for I wrote them down afterwards while they were fresh in my memory, and you see here they are in my pocketbook.

"Well, I answered him, rather brusquely, I am afraid, for a crazed man who is about to leave the world under such circumstances does not show at his best when disturbed almost in the very act, to the edge of which long agony has brought him. I told him that all his dream of snakes seemed ridiculous, which obviously it was, and was about to send him away, when it occurred to me that the suggestion it conveyed that I should put myself in communication with you was not ridiculous, in view of the part you had already played in the story."

"Very far from ridiculous," I interpolated.

"To tell the truth," went on Lord Ragnall, "I had already thought of doing the same thing, but somehow beneath the pressure of my imminent grief the idea was squeezed out of my mind, perhaps because you were so far away and I did not know if I could find you even if I tried. Pausing for a moment before I dismissed Savage, I rose from the desk at which I was writing and began to walk up and down the room thinking what I would do. I am not certain if you saw it when you were in Ragnall, but it is a large room, 50 feet long or so, though not very broad. It has two fireplaces, in both of which fires were burning on this night, and it was lit by four standing lamps, besides that upon my desk. Now, between these fireplaces, in a kind of niche in the wall, and a little in the shadow because none of the lamps was exactly opposite it, hung a portrait of my wife which I had caused to be painted by a fashionable artist when we first became engaged."

"I remember it," I said. "Or rather I remember its existence. I did not see it because a curtain hung over the picture, which Savage told me you did not wish to be looked at by anybody but yourself. At the time I remarked to him, or rather to myself, that to veil the likeness of a living woman in such a way seemed to me rather an ill-omened thing to do, though why I should have thought it so I do not quite know."

"You are quite right, Quatermain. I had that foolish fancy, a lover's freak, I suppose. When we married, the curtain was removed, although the brass rod on which it hung was left by some oversight. On my return to England after my loss, however, I found that I could not bear to look upon this lifelike likeness of one who had been taken from me so cruelly, and I caused it to be replaced. I did more. In order that it might not be disturbed by some dusting housemaid, I myself made it fast with three or four tin tacks, which I remember I drove through the velvet stuff into the paneling, using a fire iron as a hammer. At the time I thought it a good job, although by accident I struck the nail of the third finger on my left hand, with which I was holding the velvet in place, so hard that it came off. Look, it has not quite finished growing again," and he showed the finger on which the new nail was still in process of formation.

"Well, as I walked up and down the room some impulse caused me to look towards this picture. To my astonishment I saw that it was no longer veiled, although to the best of my belief the curtain had been drawn over it as lately as that afternoon; indeed, I could have sworn that this was so. I called to Savage to bring the lamp that stood upon my table, and by its light made an examination. The curtain was drawn back very tidily, being fastened in its place clear of the little alcove by means of a thin brass chain. Also along one edge of it, that which I had nailed to the paneling, the tin tacks were still in their places; that is, three of them were, the fourth I found afterwards upon the floor.

"'She looks beautiful, doesn't she, my Lord,' said Savage, 'and please God so we shall still find her somewhere in the world.'

"I did not answer him, or even remark upon the withdrawal of the curtain, as to which, indeed, I never made any inquiry. I suppose that it was done by some zealous servant while I was pretending to eat my dinner—there were one or two new ones in the house whose names and appearance I did not know. What impressed itself upon my mind was that the face which I had never expected to see again on earth, even in a picture, was once more given to my eyes, it mattered not how. This in my excited state, for laudanum waiting to be swallowed and a pistol at full cock for firing do not induce calmness in a man already almost mad, at any rate until they have fulfilled their offices, did in truth appear to me to be something of the nature of a sign such as that spoken of in Savage's idiotic dream, which I was to find of 'I looked round the study.'

"'Savage,' I said, 'I don't think much of your dreams about snakes that talk to you, but I do think that it might be well to see Mr. Quatermain. Today is Sunday and I believe that the African mail sails on Friday. Go to town early tomorrow and book passages.'

"Also, I told him to see various gunsmiths and bid them send down a selection of rifles for me to choose from, as I did not know whither we might wander in Africa, and to make further necessary arrangements. All of these things he did, and—here we are."

"Yes," I answered reflectively, "here you are. What is more, here is your luggage, of which there seems to be enough for a regiment," and I pointed to a Scotch cart piled up with baggage and followed by a long line of Kafirs carrying sundry packages upon their heads that, martialed by Savage, had halted at my gate.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Start.

THAT evening, when the baggage had been disposed of and locked up in my little stable and arrangements were made for the delivery of some cases containing tinned foods, etc., which had proved too heavy for the Scotch cart, Lord Ragnall and I continued our conversation. First, however, we unpacked the guns and checked the ammunition, of which there was a large supply, with more to follow.

A beautiful battery they were, of all sorts, from elephant guns down, the most costly and best finished that money could buy at the time. It made me shiver to think what the bill for them must have been, while their appearance, when they were put together and stood in a long line against the wall of my sitting room, moved old Hans to a kind of ecstasy. For a long while he contemplated them, patting the stocks one after the other and giving to each a name as though they were all alive, then exclaimed:

"With such weapons as these the Baas could kill the devil himself. Still, let the Baas bring Intombi with him"—a favorite old rifle of mine and a mere toy in size, that had, however, done me good service in the past, as those who have read what I have written in "Maire" and "The Holy Flower" may remember. "For, Baas, after all, the wife of one's youth often proves more to be trusted than the fine young ones a man buys in his age. Also, one knows all her faults, but who can say how many there may be hidden up in new women, however beautifully they are tattooed?" and he pointed to the elaborate engraving upon the guns.

I translated this speech to Lord Ragnall. It made him laugh at which I was glad, for up till then I had not seen him even smile. I should add that in addition to these sporting weapons there were no fewer than 50 military rifles of the best make; they were large-bore Sniders that had just then been put upon the market, and with them, packed in tin cases, a great quantity of ammunition.

That night before we went to bed I narrated to Lord Ragnall all the history of our search for the Holy Flower, which he seemed to find very entertaining. Also, I told him of my adventures, to me far more terrible, as chairman of the Bona Fide Gold Mine and of their melancholy end.

"The lesson of which is," he remarked when I had finished, "that because a man is master of one trade, it does not follow that he is master of another. You are, I should judge, one of the finest shots in the world, you are also a great hunter and explorer. But when it comes to companies, Quatermain!—— Still," he went on. "I ought to be grateful to that Bona Fide Gold Mine, since I gather that had it not been for it and for your rascally friend, Mr. Jacob, I should not have found you here."

"No," I answered, "it is probable that you would not, as by this time I might have been far in the interior, where a man cannot be traced and letters do not reach him."

Then he made a few pointed inquiries about the affairs of the mine, noting my answers down in his pocketbook. I thought this odd, but concluded that he wished to verify my statements before entering into a close companionship with me, since for ought he knew I might be the largest liar in the world and a swindler to boot. So I said nothing, even when I heard through a roundabout channel on the morrow that he had sought an interview with the late secretary of the defunct company.

A few days later, for I may as well finish with this matter at once, the astonishing object of these inquiries was made clear to me. One morning I found upon my table a whole pile of correspondence, at the sight of which I groaned, feeling sure that it must come from duns and be connected with that infernal mine. Curiosity and a desire to face the worst, however, led me to open the first letter, which, as it happened proved to be from that very shareholder who had proposed a vote of confidence in me at the winding-up meeting. By the time that it was finished my eyes were swimming and really I felt quite faint. It ran:

"Honored Sir: I knew that I was putting my money on the right horse when I said the other day that you were one of the straightest that ever ran. Well, I have got the check sent me by the lawyer on your account, being payment in full for every farthing I invested in the Bona Fide Gold Mine, and can only say that it is uncommonly useful, for that business had pretty well cleaned me out. God bless you, Mr. Quatermain."

I opened another letter, and another, and another. They were all to the same effect. Bewildered, I went to the stoop, where I found Hans with an epistle in his hand which he requested me to be good enough to read. I read it. It was from a well-known firm of local lawyers and said:

"On behalf of Allan Quatermain, Esq., we beg to inclose you draft for the sum of $3250, being the value of the interest in the Bona Fide Gold Co., Limited (in liquidation), which stands in your name on the books of the company. Please sign inclosed receipts and return same to us."

Yes, and there was the draft for $3250.

I explained the matter to Hans, or, rather, I translated the document, adding:

"You, see, you have got your money back again. But, Hans, I never sent it; I don't know where it comes from."

"Is it money, Baas?" asked Hans, surveying the draft with suspicion. "It looks very much like the other bit of paper for which I paid money."

Again I explained, reiterating that I knew nothing of the transaction.

"Well, Baas," he said, "if you did not send it someone did—perhaps your father, the Reverend Predikant, who sees that you are in trouble and wishes to wash your name white again. Meanwhile, Baas, please put that bit of paper in your pocketbook and keep it for me, for otherwise I might be tempted to buy square-face with it."

"No, I answered, "you can now buy your land back, or some other land, and there will be no need for you to come with me to the country of the Kendah."

Hans thought a moment, and then very deliberately began to tear up the draft; indeed, I was only just in time to save it from destruction.

"If the Baas is going to turn me off because of this paper," he said, "I will make it small and eat it."

"You silly old fool," I said, as I possessed myself of the check.

Then the conversation was interrupted, for who should appear but Sammy, my old cook, who began in his pompous language:

"The perfect rectitude of your conduct, Mr. Quatermain, moves me to the deepest gratitude, though indeed I wish that I had put something into the food of the knave Jacob who beguiled us all that would have caused him internal pangs of a severe, if not of a dangerous, order. My holding in the gold mine was not extensive, but the unpaid bill of the said Jacob and his friends"——

Here I cut him short and fled, since I saw yet another shareholder galloping to the gate, and behind him two more in a spider. First I took refuge in my room, my idea being to put away that pile of letters. In so doing I observed that there was one still unopened. Half mechanically, I took it from the envelope and glanced at its contents. They were word for word identical with those of that addressed to "Mr. Hans Hottentot," only my name was at the bottom instead of that of Hans and the check was for $7500, the amount I had paid for the shares I held in the venture.

Feeling as though my brain were in a melting pot, I departed from the house into a patch of native bush that in those days still grew upon the slope of the hill behind. Here I sat myself down, as I had often done before when there was a knotty point to be considered, aimlessly watching a lonely emerald cuckoo flashing, a jewel of light, from tree to tree, while I turned all this fairy godmother business over in my mind.

Of course, it soon became clear to me. Lord Ragnall in this case was the little old lady with the wand, the touch of which could convert worthless share certificates into bank notes of their face value. I remembered now that his wealth was said to be phenomenal, and after all the cash capital of the company was quite small. But the question was—could I accept his bounty?

I returned to the house, where the first person whom I met was Lord Ragnall himself, just arrived from some interview about the 50 Sniders rifles which were still in bond. I told him solemnly that I wished to speak to him, whereon he remarked in a cheerful voice:

"Advance, friend, and all's well!"

I don't know that I need set out the details of the interview. He waited till I had got through my halting speech of mingled gratitude and expostulation, then remarked:

"My friend, if you will allow me to call you so, it is quite true that I have done this because I wished to do it. But it is equally true that to me it is a small thing—to be frank, scarcely a month's income; what I have saved traveling on that ship to Natal would pay for it all. Also, I have weighed my own interest in the matter, for I am anxious that you should start upon this hazardous journey of ours up country with a mind absolutely free from self-reproach or any money care, for thus you will be able to do me better service. Therefore, I beg that you will say no more of the episode. I have only one thing to add—namely, that I have myself bought up at par a few of the debentures. The price of them will pay the lawyers and the liquidation fees; moreover, they give me a status as a shareholder, which will enable me to sue Mr. Jacob for his fraud, as to which business I have already issued instructions. For please understand that I have not paid off any shares still standing in his name or in those of his friends."

Here I may add that nothing ever came of this action, for the lawyers found themselves unable to serve any writ upon that elusive person, Mr. Jacob, who by then had probably adopted the name of some other patriarch.

"Please put it all down as a rich man's whim," he concluded.

"I can't call that a whim which has returned $7500 odd to my pocket that I had lost upon a gamble, Lord Ragnall."

"Do you remember, Quatermain, how you won $1250 upon a gamble at my place, and what you did with it, which sum probably represented to you 20 or 50 times what it would to me? Also, if that argument does not appeal to you, may I remark that I do not expect you to give me your services as a professional hunter and guide for nothing."

"Ah!"I answered, fixing on this point and ignoring the rest; "now we come to business. If I may look upon this amount as salary, a very handsome salary, by the way, paid in advance, you taking the risks of my dying or becoming incapacitated before it is earned, I will say no more of the matter. If not I must refuse to accept what is an unearned gift."

"I confess, Quatermain, that I did not regard it in that light, though I might have been willing to call it a retaining fee. However, do not let us wrangle about money any more. We can always settle our accounts when the bill is added up, if ever we reach so far. Now let us come to more important affairs."

THE marriage of Miss Elaine Shelton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Shelton of 4111 Cleveland avenue to Roy William Butts of Lebanon, Mo., took place at the home of the bride at 8 o'clock last evening. The Rev. A. C. Smither was the officiating clergyman. The bride wore a gown of white satin and tulle. Her veil was of tulle, held with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses.

Miss Martha Shelton was her sister's maid of honor and Miss Nell Butts, the bridegroom's sister, was bridemaid.

Miss Shelton wore a frock of pale green taffeta, trimmed with silver lace, and carried pink roses and Miss Butts wore a gown of pink taffeta with silver lace trimmings and carried pink sweetpeas. Little Miss Jane Butts, the bridegroom's niece, was flower girl.

Roy Haden of Hannibal, Mo., was best man and Dean Shelton was groomsman. The living room, where the ceremony was performed, had the mantel banked with greenery, white carnations and sweet peas, before which the bridal party stood.

THE ART STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts of Washington University will give a costume ball, Thursday, at the art school, Skinker road and Lindell boulevard.

The girls will wear their grandmothers' dresses of about 1860, while the men will wear the military uniform then in vogue—Confederate and Federal—and also evening dress of that day.

There will be a number of group dances, made up of art students and coached by Miss Florence Grant of the university. The hall will be decorated with Union and Confederate flags and as the design of the building already suggests the period, the surroundings will be very harmonious.

The old Rye Waltz, the Virginia Reel and the Schottische will be danced.

The proceeds of the affair will be donated to the scholarship fund for art students.

Tickets may be had from J. M. Heller or Emil Frei or from any of the art students.

Those not in costume will be allowed on the floor after 11 p. m. while the dancing starts at 8:15.

The girls' costumes, hoop skirts and pantalettes are simply great and, judging by the grace with which the dancers have gone through in the rehearsals for the last two weeks, should make a remarkably pleasing reminder of thise quaint times, customes and costumes.

TO STOP BAD COUGH

SOOTHE DRY, IRRITATED THROAT WITH PARMINT SYRUP. SAYS THIS OLD-FASHIONED COUGH MEDICINE IS THE BEST.

We are told that the old-time remedies are best and invariably contain less harmful yet better medicine than those which are in use today. This being so, undoubtedly the following old fashioned recipe, which is quick acting, will be welcomed by many, as there seems to be a regular epidemic of coughs at the present time. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce Parmint (double strength). Take this home and add to it a quarter pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar, stir until dissolved. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day. No more racking your whole body with a cough. Clogged nostrils should open, air passages of your head should clear and your breathing become easy. Parmint syrup is pleasant to take, easy to prepare and costs little. Every person who has a stubborn cough, hard cold or catarrh in any form should give this prescription a trial.—ADV.

SAFE FAT REDUCTION

Reduce, reduce, reduce is the slogan of all fat people. Get thin, be slim is the cry of fashion and society. And the over-fat wring their hands in mortification and helplessnes, revolting at nauseating drugs, afraid of violent exercise, dreading the unwelcome and unsatisfying diet, until they hit upon the harmless Marmola Prescription and learn through it that they may safely reduce two, three or four pounds a week without one change in their mode of life, but harmlessly, secretly and quickly reaching their ideal of figure, with a smoother skin, better appetite and health than they have ever known. And now comes Marmola Prescription Tablets from the same famously harmless formula as the Marmola Prescription. It behooves you to learn the satisfactory, beneficial effects of this great, safe fat-reducer by giving to your druggist 75c for a generous-sized case, or sending a like amount to the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich., with a request that they mail to you a full case of Marmola Prescription Tablets.—ADV.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFULLY DARKENS THE HAIR WHEN IT IS FADED OR GRAY

Sage Tea when Mixed with Sulphur Makes Your Hair Soft, Lustrous and Removes Every Bit of Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product — called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's" which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy soft and abundant.—ADV.

Great Sale of New Spring Coats

That Will Be the "Talk of the Town" After Monday

There's a Coat Manufacturer in New York—one of the big ones—who is continually "doing things" that make his competitors wear a look of wonderment and "interrogation." It's one from whom we buy several thousand Coats every season, and when he has something of this unusual kind, we get first chance, and in turn we are continually springing something out of the ordinary on an appreciative clientele that causes other stores to wonder.

The "unusual" with the manufacturer this time is selling us (for reasons of his own) 650 of the smartest, cleverest, "stunningest" (excuse so many superlatives, they're justified) Spring Coats we've seen, at an average of about ⅓ below regular prices. The "unusual" (which is NOT unusual with us), we have them to pass them along to our customers as we bought them, and here are the facts, as far as figures can talk. See the Coats for the rest of the story.

"Where Words Fail"

HERE'S what our coat buyer said to the ad. writer when this lot of 650 Coats was being unpacked, assorted, ticketed and hung on racks:

"If you can do as well in telling the people in your ad. about these Coats as the designer who designed them, and the manufacturer who made them, every woman in St. Louis who reads your ad. will be here Monday morning—whether she wants a coat or not."

But the ad. man gives it up, and after looking them over at close range finds that the designer designed and the manufacturer manufactured better than the ad. writer can write—and it isn't often that an ad. man admits defeat—

But if there can be found an ad. man with words at his command that will tell, without exaggeration, one-half the story of the beauty, charm of individuality and practicability of these Coats, we would like to meet him.

As to the values, we will state them in plain figures, and leave the rest of our claims to the judgment of every woman who will take the trouble and time to come here tomorrow and look them over.

Thomas W. Garland,
409-11-13 Broadway

Sale starts at 8:30 Monday, on Fourth Floor, South Section. Coats are arranged according to prices, for easy choosing. Extra salespeople will assure prompt service.

Constipation Makes You Tired, Nervous, Sick

A Wineglassful of Tollo Water Will Quickly Remove Poison From Your Stomach and Bowels and Make You Feel Fine in Half an Hour.

No use being constipated, tired, nervous and sick—Tollo Water from Dawson Springs, Kentucky, is Nature's own system cleanser. Its action is quick and gentle, yet it cleans the system and intestines more thoroughly than can be done by drugs and oils.

Don't allow the waste from your food to lie in your stomach and bowels to poison your system, causing headache, bilious spells, bad breath, pimples, nervousness and indigestion, but get a 15-cent bottle of Tollo Water from the drug store and take a third of a tumblerful in a glass of plan water before breakfast. It will keep your bowels as regular as a clock and make you enjoy your meals as you did when you were a child and got plenty of exercise.

After you have taken it for a few days and thoroughly cleaned the system, an occasional wineglassful will keep your bowels regular and make you feel good all the time.—ADV.

Why Society Women Wash Their Own Hair

They do, not because it is a fad, but because they wish to obtain the greatest possible hair beauty and be sure they are not using anything harmful. They have found that in washing the hair it is never wise to use a makeshift but is always advisable to use a preparation made for shampooing only. Many of our friends say they get the best results from a simple, home-made canthrox mixture. You can use this at a cost of about three cents a shampoo by getting some canthrox from your druggist, and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes enough shampoo liquid to apply to all the hair instead of just the top of the head, as with most preparations. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear in the rinsing water. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you.—ADV.

$6000 IS NEEDED FOR COUNTY RELIEF WORK

Women's Welfare Association Begins Campaign for Money for Year 1917.

A campaign to raise $6000 to enable the St. Louis County Welfare Association to carry on its work for 1917 has been started by a number of women of St. Louis County. The association was organized in December, 1915, with headquarters in the Clayton Courthouse, to give relief to the sick and poor, do family rehabilitation and social service work for those in distress, and to prevent and curb the increasing prevalence of tuberculosis in the county.

The association is maintained through voluntary subscriptions. Its funds are almost entirely exhausted. The office files contain at present the names of almost 300 families who are in need, many of whom are handicapped by blindness, sickness and other physical disabilities, which prevents them from being self-sustaining.

As the work is county wide in scope and some of the worst conditions are found in the most remote parts of the county, the appeal for funds is made to every county resident. The size of the county, which covers 487 square miles, presents in itself a problem for transportation facilities, and has been partially solved by the loan of automobiles by interested women for the use of those investigating and reporting cases.

A number of women connected with the association have agreed to give a stipulated amount of money annually in lieu of personal service. Others have given their personal attention to matters relative to the work as well, by serving on committees and by investigation of conditions. Some bring clothing and household articles to headquarters for distribution.

The present campaign is headed by Mrs. Samuel Plant, vice president of the association; Mrs. Eugene Angert, chairman of the Membership Committee; Mrs. Charles Rice, chairman of the Finance Committee; Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones, chairman of the Good Housing and Sanitation Committee; Mrs. O. K. Bovard, chairman of the Case and Relief Committee, and Mrs. David Fentress, chairman of the Tuberculosis Committee.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS CLINIC IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Illinois Board of Health Will Conduct Conference Thursday and Probably Friday and Saturday.

The Illinois Board of Health will hold a clinical conference on infantile paralysis in East St. Louis next Thursday, and probably also Friday and Saturday.

Physicians from St. Clair, Madison, Bond, Fayette, Clinton, Marion, Washington, Randolph, Monroe, Perry, Greene, Jersey, Macoupin and Montgomery Counties, who have treated cases of the disease, have been invited to attend, and, if possible, bring the patients with them. The announcement states that demonstrations on how to cure deformity or other ills resulting from the disease will be given.

Public meetings also will be held at the City Auditorium and free lectures given. There were seven cases of infantile paralysis in East St. Louis during the epidemic a year ago, but only one suffered any after effects. There were quite a number of cases in the counties around St. Clair County.

MINISTERS TO CONFER ON EVANGELICAL CAMPAIGN

City-Wide Effort Will Be Planned at Meetings Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

A conference of ministers of the Protestant churches in preparation for a city-wide evangelical campaign will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The conference will open with a luncheon at noon Wednesday in the Second Baptist Church, King's highway and Washington boulevard.

Suggestions for measures to remedy the diagnosed spiritual ills of the city will be made at the second conference in the Union Avenue Christian Church, Union and Von Versen avenues. At the last of the noon conferences in the First Presbyterian Church, Washington boulevard and Whittier street, the subject for discussion will be "Practical Methods for a City-wide Revival."

The conference will close with a mass meeting for ministers and lay workers in the Union M. E. Church, Grand avenue and Delmar boulevard, Friday night.

STUDY OF SPANISH INCREASES

Growing Interest Shown in Language at Washington U.

The study of Spanish at Washington University has quadrupled in the past four years, Chancellor Hall said yesterday. This is taken as an indication of the growing tendency of St. Louis students to look toward the Latin-American countries for business openings, or to look forward to commercial relations with those republics which will make a knowledge of the Spanish language necessary and profitable.

Dr. Hall said that there are more young women studying Spanish than young men, but that this is the case in all the language classes at the university.

$72,784.00 worth of Carpets and Rugs—the most Stupendous Sale of Floor Coverings ever attempted by our large rug section, comprising over 5000 rugs of all sizes.

These will be offered to you tomorrow at a saving of from 25% to 35%.

PICTURES DEPICT LIFE OF BALINESE

Work of Artist Who Spent Time in East Indies on Exhibit Here.

In the collection of paintings by Maurice Sterne, now on exhibition at the City Art Museum in Forest Park, St. Louisans have an opportunity to see and judge examples of the much talked-of ultra-modern art. Sterne is closely affiliated with the post-impressionist school, and his work has much in common with that of Cezanne and Gauguin. So different is his art from that to which the public has been accustomed that it is sure to be misunderstood and misjudged by many.

Sterne was born in Libau, Russia, in 1877, and came to New York City when about 14 years old. His early artistic training was acquired in the school of the National Academy of Design, where he won the traveling scholarship which enabled him to study in Europe.

Recently he spent 20 months on the Isalnd of Bali, near Java in the East Indies, and most of the paintings on view at the museum were executed there. More than two-thirds of Bali is virgin jungle, and it is inhabited by a proud race of Malays, having many strange and weird customs. Here, among this haughty semi-savage race, where, as Sterne writes, "Not only religious functions, but the commonest pursuits, are carried out with a grace, dignity and grandeur familiar to us from the finest ancient art alone," there was abundant material for the artist.

In the pictures now on exhibition, Sterne has attempted to depict something of the mysterious Oriental characteristics of the Balinese. To do this, he shows in oils, water colors and drawings, their feasts, religious ceremonies, dances and bazars, together with numerous sketches of heads and figures.

One of the most important compositions is the "Dance of the Sacred Elements." In this pitcure, priests and priestesses, representing fire, water and air, are shown in a frenzied dance, their brown, half-nude bodies rising and falling in sinuous, rhythmic cadence. Similar in spirit and execution are the "Two Dancers" and "Temple Feast." In these the artist has represented the feeling of movement and religious ecstacy, but here cognizance must be taken of certain ver obtrusive crudities of drawing. Arms, legs and bodies are blocked off like picket fences or tree trunks, shoulders are angular, hands and feet are unrecognizable. These and similar crudities are all the more disturbing when it is noted that they are intentional, for certain earlier drawings in the collection, notably the "Study for a Decoration," reveal that Sterne has unusual powers as a draftsman when he cares to exercise them.

The black and white sketch, "Man With Dagger," is an impressive rendition of racial character, as is also the "Head of a Young Boy" and several other works in the group.

Sterne's works will remain at the Art Museum until the end of February, as will also the exhibition of paintings by Robert Spencer.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples Are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out, but in many instances more toxins and impurities are created than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.—ADV.

"Gained 32 Pounds in Sixty Days"

Says Young Lady Who Formerly Was "Horribly Thin and Anaemic."

Advises Thin Blooded People to Use Hypo-Nuclane Tablets.

A brief extract from a letter from Miss Cassie Brown, Danville, Ills., reads: "Doctors had given me up to die. I was subsisting on milk alone. My stomach would not retain solid food. I was deathly pale and my blood was watery. As a last hope I tried three-grain Hypo-Nuclane Tablets. The effect was marvelous. I began to gain and in a few weeks could eat and digest anything. My strength grew by leaps and bounds and I soon became plump and contentedly well."

This is an extraordinary case, but any thin, bloodless, anaemic person can increase weight, strength and health through the use of Hypo-Nuclane Tablets. One or two packages will prove that this new compound of the salient extract from yolks of eggs, hypophosphites, iron, and simple vegetable tonics in tablets is a blessing and benefit taken with meals to produce new blood new flesh and induce plumpness. The process is intricate, but the results are certain. Sold by druggists, 90 cents, or direct from the laboratory of The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio.—ADV.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances, or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in St. Louis by Johnson, Enderle & Pauley, Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson and other druggists.—ADV.

Mrs. Belle C. writes: "I am informed that I have kidney trouble and that it is fast approaching a serious stage. What would you prescribe?"

Answer: If your symptoms are the usual ones, such as puffs under the eyes, swelling ankles, accompanied by headaches, pains, depressions, fever, chills, etc., I would advise the immediate use of balmwort tablets, a very fine remedy for such difficulties, sold in sealed tubes with full directions for self-administration.

Miss Daisy B. writes: "I have what people call liver spots on my skin. I am sallow, almost like a person with jaundice, and I know my liver is not right. Have sour risings, coated tongue and get terribly sleepy after eating. Am constipated and seldom feel good.

Answer: Such symptoms indicate the need of a good tonic for stomach, liver and bowels, and I advise cardiol tablets as superior to calomel and of lasting benefits. Your druggist can supply in sealed package with direction thereon.

Miss Bertie L. asks: "What remedy can you recommend to reduce obesity safely? I want to reduce about thirty pounds."

Answer: I rely on five-grain arbolone tablets as being the most effective and convenient treatment to reduce abnormal fat. Druggists supply this in sealed tubes with complete directions. After the first few days a pound a day is not too much reduction.

Mr. G. R. writes: "Please tell me what to take to get rid of pimples, boils and bad blood. I know I need a constipation remedy."

Answer: It is probably neglect of constipation that has made your blood bad. Begin a thorough treatment of three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets). Continue for several months.

BOY BITTEN BY A DOG FOUR WEEKS AGO DIES FROM RABIES

Doctor Who First Treated Him Had Said Pasteur Treatment Was Unnecessary.

George Sappington, 5 years old, son of Joseph Sappington of Sappington, St. Louis County, died yesterday at Alexian Brothers' Hospital from rabies. He was bitten by a neighbor's dog four weeks before, but a physician who saw the wound at that time said there was no need of Pasteur treatment. The boy became sick Thursday.

Dr. J. D. Graul of 3572 Crittenden street, who made the diagnosis at the hospital, said the time since the bite seemed too short for the development of rabies, and he thought it must have had some earlier cause, particularly as the dog which bit the boy has shown no signs of the disease.

PREMIERE OF MOORE OPERA TOMORROW

"Louis XIV" to Be Given at Odeon With an Excellent Cast.

An event which, in all its phases, is probably without parallel in the history of music in the United States, will occur tomorrow night at the Odeon, when the opera in English, "Louis XIV," by Homer Moore of this city, will have its first production anywhere. It is to be repeated Wednesday, Friday and next Sunday nights.

Moore not only composed the music himself, but wrote its versified libretto, condensing into three acts the six voluminous novels of the "Vicomte de Bragelonne" series, a sequel to Dumas' "Three Musketeers." Probably several hundreds of American composers have more or less original operas of their own composition moldering on the shelves; but Moore was fortunate and enterprising enough to enlist the aid of a number of St. Louis business men and musicians, who as a matter of local pride underwrote all the expenses of the production.

With the exception of an unusual aggregation of singers in the principal roles, the performance is almost strictly made in St. Louis. The composer and author is a local music teacher and music critic of the Republic. The orchestra of 52 pieces has been recruited from the Symphony Orchestra. In the Grand Opera Chorus, established last summer, was found material for the chorus of 60. A ballet of 30 dancers was enlisted in this city, and trained by a local teacher. Two of the chief roles are taken by St. Louis singers, Russell Rizer and Robert Stark. Moore has conducted the daily rehearsals for the last several weeks, and will direct all the performances.

Constantino in Cast.

The cast is headed by the well-known Spanish tenor, Florencio Constantino, whose veteran vocal and histrionic skill will be devoted to creating the title role, that of the Grand Monarch Two of Dumas' old musketeers, Athos and Aramis, now become respectively Comte de la Fere and Bishop of Vannes, will be portrayed by Henri Scott, basso of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and by Russell Rizer, tenor. Carl Cochems, a popular concert and operatic basso, heard here last with the San Carlo troupe, will sing the part of St. Aignan, the King's confidant. Mischa Leon, tenor, formerly of the Paris Opera Company, will take the part of Malicorne, a courtier; Octava Dua, tenor of the Chicago Opera Company, will portray De Guiche, a nobleman; and Milli Picco known from San Carlo performances, will take the role of the hapless Raoul de Bragelonne, son of Athos.

The feminine roles will be assumed by Marguerita Beriza, soprano, as the sprightly lady in waiting, Mlle. Montalais; by Miss Evelina Parnell, soprano, as Louse de la Valliere, the opera's heroine, and Mme. Augusta Lenska, contralto, as Henrietta, Duchess of Orleans.

The Story of the Opera.

The story of the play is this: Since his youth, Raoul de la Bragelonne has conceived a vehement passion for Louise de la Valliere, to whom he is betrothed. His father, Le Comte de la Fere, one of those tremendous fighting men inherited from Louis XIII, contests the match. From different motives Louis XIV opposes it likewise, he having fallen temporarily in love with Louise.

By an extension of poetic license—which Dumas would never have dreamed of—Louis XIV consents to disguise himself and fight a duel with Raoul, with the understanding that the winner shall possess the maiden.

As no private person may overcome a King, Raoul is disarmed by Louis. Yet the action continues though the possession of Louise has been settled officially. It is still necessary for Athos to snap his sword across his knee. The King remains triumphant at the climax, although he has broken the heart of a faithful servant and outraged the loyalty of a family devoted to his house.

Those who have heard the music of the opera say that it is melodious and naive, without any attempt at organic structure. The solos and choruses are said to be well written, and the orchestration to display clever harmonization.

Secrets of Health and Beauty
by Claire Ainsworth

"Mrs. J. C. B." asks: "Can you advise something to remove disfiguring hair growth?"
Answer: A very widely-used and popular depilitory is sold at apothecary shops under the name of fluvol powder. I find it reliable and harmless. Directions accompany each sealed tube.

"Young Lady" asks: "Will you please advise what to use to cure blackheads?"
Answer: Glowene is specially prepared of emulsified oils and used as per directions accompanying the package will quickly rid you of blackheads.

"More Flesh" asks: "What can one eat or take to increase the weight about 20 to 25 pounds? How long will it require?"
Answer: The latest discovery of science is that the concentrated extract of ordinary alfalfa will, in compound form, quickly aid assimilation, thereby increasing flesh. Ask your druggist for Alfalfex Tablets in sealed tubes.

"Mrs. C. C. B." asks: "For years I have envied those women who have beautiful waving hair. Mine is positively 'stringy,' and won't look nice no matter what I do. Please advise if you can?"
Answer: Not one woman or girl in ten has natural waving hair. I know that thousands now use a simple preparation, obtained of druggists or toilet counters, named wavolene. It makes the hair dress superbly. Many hair dressers use wavolene.

"Mrs. L. C. B." asks: "Would you advise one who suffers greatly with catarrh of the nasal passages and throat to use Pretzinger's Catarrh Balm? Does it contain anything dangerous?"
Answer: Any sufferer from catarrh will find the remedy you mention very effective, very curative, and thoroughly harmless. I do not hesitate to recommend, because I have used it with wonderful results.

"Elsie B." asks: "Would you advise a method whereby a sorely troubled girl could satisfy her vanity by increasing her bust measurement?"
Answer: There is a compound of nourishing oils and fats, by name, medicated venosol, which, if used by any young lady regularly, will surely develop the flesh of the bust. Obtained from drug stores and toilet counters in sealed tubes with full directions.

"Obese" asks: "I am a young woman, height five feet four inches, and I weigh 170 pounds. I am too fat. Please can you tell me of a remedy to reduce me to 140 pounds?"
Answer: The most reliable flesh reducer that I know of, and which is harmless if used as per directions, is five-grain phy-thy-rin tablets, in sealed packets at all drug stores.

"Susan" asks: "May I inquire how to treat a deep-seated chest cold accompanied daily with neuralgic headache?"
Answer: Yes, I am glad that I know of one preparation that will relieve both ailments. Obtain pine-o-latum and apply as directed on label. I consider it marvelous.

"Catherine" asks: "How can one protect the skin from cold winds?"
Answer: I always apply Gloriol Balm before going out and find it exquisite in preserving and beautifying the skin.

FRANCE AND AMERICA UNITED FOREVER, IS AMBASSADOR'S TOAST

partings which in many cases were eternal. But who could hesitate, for was it not duty?

France Did Not Hesitate.

And are those the light hearted and laughing Frenchmen, a witty and song-loving people, as the world has known them and as they have portrayed themselves? Yes, truly they are the same. In those Frenchmen you have the rare spectacle of individualists who are also self-sacrificing. Place before them a task which is greater than their interests, greater than their persons, a task involving the nation, mankind, liberty and their lightheartedness and heedlessness vanishes. In its place dauntless resolution, affectionate co-operation, patience in trials, faith in the outcome. What wonder that with characteristics so similar they should understand Americans? Indeed as soon as the soldiers of Washington and Rochambeau met they understood one another.

In many a market place the drums beat and from many a belfry the tocsin sounded. In the villages of Brittany the same church bells which ring for the new born and toll for the dead, clanged through the countryside the news of the great duty to be performed. Young men gathered hastily in August, 1914, in the public squares, and when at the solemn tolling of the bells they saw their mothers' eyes fill with tears, they cried, "Oh, you don't understand; it is not that." And running to the bell ropes they transformed the mournful tocsin into the joyous peals of festive days. It was not, they thought, an hour of sadness, but the coming of a deliverance. In the early or distant future, they knew deliverance would come and that liberty would triumph. The hour of liberty is at hand.

In closing I give you a great name, the name of George Washington. What you are doing today, oh Frenchmen of New York, oh, American friends of France, is not without precedent.

In 1783, the year of that peace which consecrated independence, a similar celebration was held in the United States. The password given on that day to the American army was written personally by its Commander in Chief Washington, and the words he chose were "America and France," with the answer, "United forever." The father of this great republic, so dauntless, so full of energy and which loves so wholeheartedly, had chosen well. What he then proclaimed we see today.

WHAT OUR COURSE SHOULD BE IF WE MUST GO TO WAR

argued that the German vessels have put themselves in our power, relying on our protection, and that it is contrary to the professed policy of the United States to confiscate private property at sea. We have never, however, proclaimed our intention to forego the right of seizure until there should be a general agreement among the nations. On the other hand, all that Germany, strictly speaking, can reasonably expect is that we should protect her vessels as long as the peaceful relations continue. We are, therefore, under no obligations in regard to the German liners, but I hope that we may take the occasion to establish a precedent by making adequate compensation for such of the vessels as we shall find it necessary to requisition.

Treatment of Germans in U. S.

The most difficult question of all will be the treatment of American citizens of German birth, German parentage or German name. They will reflect our attitude toward them. If we expect them to stand loyally with us to resist Germany's violations of our rights they will stand with us shoulder to shoulder, but if we curse them for the sins of their motherland, in the bitterness of their hearts they will band themselves together and some of them will turn against their brothers who proved so ungenerous.

It will be the severest blow of all to Germany to find that her scions in this country will support us against her and it is a proper reply to her transgressions that she should have to drink this bitter cup to its last drop. I have always believed that the American people will be astounded by the response of those who have preferred this country to Germany. For that very reason they will know how to support and appreciate our point of view if we do not turn our backs upon them.

In the conduct of this was, contrary to Bethmann-Hollweg's statement that a nation fighting for its existence can only consider how it may hew its way through, we must prefer defeat to violation of the law unless we are ready to follow along the unjustifiable path which Germany has been treading. A people has only a certain amount of emotional strength; let none of this go out in hatred of German noncombatants here, in criticism of our citizens of German birth, and let us also turn aside from retaliation and reprisals and achieve for our country the highest pinnacle of glory which comes from the observance of the international law of civilized nations.

Must Co-operate With Allies.

We have another opportunity which we must accept. We must co-operate to the fullest extent with those who will become our allies. They have been fighting our fight; we must now take up on our untired shoulders the principal burden. At least we must be ready to make every sacrifice for the common good. While we are all united let us avoid the painful experiences of our great sister state, and accord to our administration from the first moment power sufficiently large to conduct our operations with energy. President Wilson, as Commander in Chief of the American forces, must have the same extension of power for this country as Lloyd-George and Briand have in England and France.

It is to be hoped that our Government will make every effort to impart the fullest information of the course of events to the nation and that we shall be allowed the freest criticism and discussion of policy. If we grant dictatorial powers it is meet that the dictator should be advised as to what the nation is thinking. I am convinced that there has been no blunder so colossal in the conduct of the war as the pitiless and unjustifiable censorship which has hung like a pall over Europe and made intelligent public opinion in this country suspicious of every statement allowed to filter through.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET.

A well known actress gives the following recipe for gray hair: To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Advertisement.

ism of service that shall express the high purpose of our country.

"Military training does not mean military service; the larger the number of men trained, the less probability there would be of actual service. Every individual capable of bearing arms is now subject to call. There is no escape from this liability, whether trained or untrained. We cannot evade the obligation to defend the country by failing to train, but by thorough training and being ready, we probably would escape war. Under our conditions, military training is more a preparation for peace than it is for war.

"Young men between the ages of 18 and 25 make the best soldiers. From an economic standpoint, as well as that of humanity, the defense of the country should rest upon the young men, and whatever service is required of them should be performed before they enter their permanent business life and take up the responsibilities of a family. One of the saddest features of war is taking men away from their wives and children, breaking into settled life plans, which usually means a serious money loss and, perhaps, financial ruin. Hence, from every viewpoint, the defense of our country should rest with the young, unmarried men.

"After months of careful study and numerous conferences with Gen. Wood, Gen. Young, Gen. Carter, Col. Moseley, Senator Chamberlain, members of the War College, heads of leading educational institutions and other authorities, both military and civilian, and correspondence with many persons, a plan of military training has been worked out, which seems best adapted to this country. (The provisions of the Chamberlain bill are then described.)

"The training proposed would be a very definite physical, mental and moral benefit to any young man. It would teach respect for authority and prompt obedience. It would emphasize neatness, punctuality, good order and good manners.

"It would increase a young man's self-respect, make him more manly, bring home to him his duty to his country, promote a patriotism of service and a love for the flag, which would make him a better citizen; it would give him a valuable experience and broaden his horizon. It would tend to create good fellowship and remove misconceptions between young men in different walks of life—the rich and poor, from city, town and country. It would broaden sympathy and develop true democratic ideas in this close relationship where all would be on the same footing.

"It would make him a better employe, and would be ideal training preliminary to a business career. He would be given substantial preference in Government service, and, no doubt, states and municipalities would, in this, follow the Government's lead.

"Gen. Leonard Wood emphasized the fact that such training would come at the right time to take the boy off the street, and in every country where such military training has been in vogue the experience has been that there is less crime, greater loyalty and higher moral standards.

And, finally, authorities agree that if the young man were called to the colors, the chances that he would return unharmed would be two or three times greater than those of a young man going in as a raw recruit, who did not know how to take care of himself, either in camp or in the field. Gen. Wood was emphatic in the statement that without the preparation contemplated, in case of war, many more lives would be sacrificed, the struggle would be greatly prolonged and it would be far greater.

THE STORY OF A DRUNKARD

How His Sister Secretly Cured Him

Here Is the Prescription Which Released Him From the Clutches of the Demon Drink.

You Can Prepare It at Home and Use It Without the Knowledge of Anyone.

For 15 years I was a slave to alcohol. Every penny I could get my hands on was spent over the bar. I earned a good salary and at first I was able to disguise my condition, but finally my employer began to grumble. I fought and prayed against it, still I sank lower and lower until I lost my position. Then my friends turned me down, one after another, until I was left a wreck and alone. Whisky was the cause of it all. I was kicked around from one place to another. Drunk practically all the time. All I wanted or cared for was whisky, and I had reached that point where I would not stop drinking of my own accord.

A friend of former days wrote my sister, whose home was in Germany, telling of my pitiful condition. She consulted a famous chemist. He gave her a prescription, a secret formula, and told her if she could arrange to put it in my coffee or tea it would destroy the appetite for alcohol in any form. She took the first steamer for New York, and when she found me I did not recognize her, and she hardly knew me. She immediately began to give me the remedy without my knowledge. In a few days after she arrived I noticed that whisky did not taste the same. I tried other saloons, with the same result. After a month I could not drink a drop, and in a short time my health began to improve, my brain to clear up. All the desire had left me. The chains of alcohol slavery had been broken. I was a new man. I secured a splendid position, and have never taken a drink since. The craving has never returned. After eight years my sister told me how she worked it and gave me the formula. She was afraid to tell me the secret before for fear I might go back. It is a simple, inexpensive home remedy which can be had at Johnson, Enderle & Pauley's, Wolff-Wilson's or at any first-class drug store, and I advise everyone who has a relative or friend addicted to the liquor habit in any form to try it. Here is the prescription: Ask any druggist for prepared Tescum powders; dissolve one powder in Coffee, Tea, Water or any other liquid; give one powder twice a day. Each powder makes a dose. Do not let the individual know Tescum is being administered. It is tasteless and cannot be detected by anyone.

In a short time all desire for drink should disappear. I feel so grateful for what it did for me that I am glad to tell the whole world about it. I feel sure that after you have tried it you will thank me for publishing it.—H. J. BROWN.—ADVERTISEMENT.

DRAINAGE CONVENTION HERE

National Organization to Meet in St. Louis Next October.

The St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau was advised yesterday by telegram from D. E. King, Industrial Commissioner, Missouri Pacific Railway, and vice president of the National Drainage Congress, that the executive committee had selected St. Louis for the next congress, which will probably be held in October.

The St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau is endeavoring to have the National Conservation Congress, of which Gifford Pinchot of Washington is president, to meet at the same time.

AN UNDIGESTED DINNER

Worse than a badly cooked dinner is a dinner that you can't digest. Do you know what it is to turn away from the best food, ill-humored and without appetite, though you know that it is dinner time and that you need food to sustain you? This is nature's way of telling you that your digestion is out of order. Your stomach is not in a fit state to absorb food if you eat it, or your blood able to carry the necessary nourishment to your nerves, brain and muscles. First of all, put off eating until you are hungry. If you eat when you are not hungry you can't digest the food.

To put your blood in the right state to derive good from your food, take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Without any purgative or weakening effect they purify your blood and enrich it, so that you not only have an excellent appetite for food, but are able to digest it comfortably and get benefit from it.

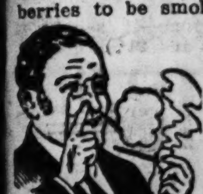
So many dyspeptics have been helped by this simple treatment that every sufferer from stomach trouble should try it.

A diet book, "What to Eat and How to Eat," will be sent free on request by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or a box will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of fifty cents.—ADV.

Medicated Smoke Drives Out Catarrh

Try This Pleasant Herb Smoke. Sent Free By Mail.

Dr. Blosser, who has devoted forty years to the treatment of Catarrh, is the originator of a certain combination of medical herbs, flowers and berries to be smoked in a pipe or ready prepared cigarette. The smoke-vapor reaches all the air passages of the head, nose and throat. As the disease is carried into these passages with the air you breathe, so the antiseptic, healing vapor of this Remedy is carried with the breath directly to the affected parts.



This simple, practical method applies the medicine where sprays, douches, ointments, etc., cannot possibly go. Its effect is soothing and healing, and is entirely harmless, containing no tobacco or habit-forming drugs. It is pleasant to use, and not sickening to those who have never smoked. No matter how severe or long standing your case may be, we want to show you what our Remedy will do.

To prove the beneficial, pleasant effect, a liberal sample will be mailed absolutely free to any sufferer, that will verify all claims by actual test. This free package contains a pipe, some of the Remedy for smoking and also some of our medical cigarettes. If you wish to continue the treatment, it will cost only one dollar for a month's supply for the pipe or a box containing one hundred cigarettes. We pay postage.

If you are a sufferer from Catarrh, Asthma, Catarrhal Deafness, or if subject to frequent colds, send your name and address at once by postal card or letter for the free package, and a copy of an illustrated booklet, to The Blosser Company, 596 Walton St., Atlanta, Ga.

FREDA HEMPEL TO BE SOLOIST AT SYMPHONY

Noted Coloratura Soprano to Appear at Friday and Saturday Concerts.

The Symphony Society will present the second vocalist in this season's list of solo artists at the two symphony concerts this week, Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, when Mme. Frieda Hempel, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, New York, appears with the orchestra. Mme. Hempel has been heard in St. Louis only twice up to this time, once in recital a year ago and again in the open-air performance of "Siegfried" last summer.

She is bringing a program that will appeal very strongly to the lovers of the older operas.

One of her numbers is the Mozart aria, "Il re pastore," which has no operatic connection and is seldom sung nowadays. Mme. Hempel revived the work at the recent Mozart festival in New York. St. Louis is the second city to hear her sing it. Her other number is the well-known "Qui la voce," from Bellini's opera, "I Puritani."

Conductor Zach has announced an orchestral program of modern music for the two concerts. There are two "first-time" numbers, one of which is the Second Symphony of the Russian composer, Kalinaikow, whose first symphony was played here last season by the New York Symphony Orchestra. The second new work is the "Intermezzo Goldoniani," by Bossi, which never has been heard in St. Louis. The program will be as follows:

Kalinaikow.....Symphony No. 2 in A Major
1—Moderato; allegro non troppo.
2—Andante cantabile.
3—Allegro scherzando.
4—Andante cantabile; allegro vive.
(First time.)
Mozart..........................Aria, Il re Pastore
Rossi..Intermezzi Gordcniani, for string orchestra.
1—Preludio a minuetto.
2—Gagliardi.
3—Serenatina.
4—Burlesca.
(First time.)
Bellini....Aria, Qui la Voce, from I Puritani
Mendelssohn..........Overture to Ruy Blas

Two members of the orchestra will be featured in today's "Pop" concert at the Odeon. John F. Kiburz, first flutist, will be the soloist. Oswald Thumser, a member of the viola section, will have the first performance anywhere of his latest compositions, two melodies for string orchestra, which are tonal reminiscences of a tour in Europe just before the war. Thumser was in Vienna when war was declared and, like other Americans, was greatly delayed in returning home.

The afternoon's program follows:

Presidential Polonaise.................. Sousa
(First time.)
Overture to Oberon......................Weber
Two Melodies for String Orchestra...Thumser
(a) In Amalfi.
(b) La Belle Viennoise.
(First time.)
Concertino for Flute, in D, Op. 107.Chaminade
Selection from Aida.........................Verdi
(a) Carissima .... Elgar
(b) Air a danser, Opp. 16...............Durand

Seven Per Cent Increase in Number of Ships, but Tonnage Averaged Less.

PANAMA, Feb. 10.—Traffic statistics for the Panama Canal show that the number of ocean-going ships which made the transit through the canal in the calendar year 1916 was 1253. Their aggregate net tonnage was 3,933,869 tons, and they carried a total of 4,931,911 tons of cargo.

The number of ships was 7 per cent greater than in 1915, but in net tonnage, tolls and cargo, the record for 1916 was a little less than 1 per cent les than 1915. The two years had about the same bulk of traffic, and both saw the canal closed for a period of three and a half months.

The tolls collected in 1916 were $3,677,695.60, which was not equal to the expenses. The ships in the United States coastwise trade were slightly over 3 per cent of the aggregate tonnage in 1916. In 1915 they were one-fourth of all the traffic, and in 1914 they were two-fifths. Most of the former coastwise ships have been diverted to the more profitable foreign trade.

New Gold Discovery in Russia.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 10.—Gold, silver, zinc and lead mines in the Altai Mountains which had been abandoned as exhausted, have been reopened and found to still contain rich seams of minerals. Exploration of one mine indicates beds of 3,500,000 tons of zinc and lead with a considerable proportion of gold and silver.

UNIVERSAL TRAINING LEAGUE EXPECTS TO PERPETUATE DEMOCRACY

hardship to those engaged than with a well-trained citizen soldiers capable of responding quickly and efficiently in defense of the flag. This plan will provide for training 500,000, or more, young men per year, and in five years we should have a reserve of approximately 2,500,000 men. With a standing army of 200,000 regulars, it is quite probable that the country would be able to deal with any ordinary situation without calling the reserves. When the world knows that we have millions of trained men ready to defend the flag, and with the enormous resources back of us, any nation would be simply foolhardy to attack us. Given an adequate navy in both the Atlantic and Pacific, and with such a superb citizen-soldiery as contemplated, we should be invincible. In American today preparedness means peace.

"Being ready, no country would disturb us. Without such a vast body of trained defenders, we might have trouble. It is quite probable. In such case, every able-bodied man would be subject to call, and the first called would be the young men who have not yet entered upon a business career or assumed the marriage relation. A general system of required military training not only diminishes to the vanishing point the probability of war, but in case war should some, the trained man, by knowing how to take care of himself, reduces more than 50 per cent the dangers of war.

"For the purpose of getting the commercial value of military training, we submitted to about 100 large employers of young men the question whether, other things being substantially equal, they would give the preference to young men who had taken military training. There was no sentiment about it; it was a cold business proposition. Of this number, only one failed to attach a very substantial value to the proposed training. All the others stated emphatically that the young man so trained would be a better employe and would be given a preference. It will pay any young man to take the training."

ECZEMA
Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, etc.

DR. CANNADAY,
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone—ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D—and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

J. E. CANNADAY, M. D., 1273 Court Bk., Sedalia, Mo.

Reference: 3d Nat. Bank, Sedalia, or ask your banker to find out about me. Send this notice to some poor sufferer from eczema. It will be a kind act by you.

Pretty as a Picture—Every sign of Wrinkles and Complexion Blemishes gone

How a muddy, sallow, aging skin can be made wonderfully youthful and beautiful through remarkable discovery of osmosis of the skin.

Grace Valentine
Beautiful Metro Picture Star

When you see a woman past thirty with no horrid crowsfeet or pouches around her eyes, no enlarged nose pores, no deep lines or furrows about the mouth, and possessed of a clear, velvety complexion, you can be practically certain that she knows beauty secrets not possessed by the average woman. She may have as much cause for looking old and careworn as anybody, yet she is able to go on year after year with never a sign of wrinkles or complexion blemishes, all the while preserving a fresh, youthful appearance. And there is really no reason why any woman between thirty and sixty should not look from five to fifteen years younger than she really is, by simply knowing the secret of just what to do. It ought to be a matter of pride with you to keep your complexion clear and your face youthful as much as it is to keep your hands and nails clean. But you cannot hope to be beautiful and attractive unless you give your skin full opportunity to act freely and renew its youth. No matter what your age, no matter how coarse, harsh and unsightly your complexion, nor what you have tried unsuccessfully, the moment you produce osmosis of the skin you will look younger and far more beautiful. Many a wrinkled, hollow-cheeked, faded-looking woman has regained her charm and awakened to find herself pretty as a picture, with every sign of wrinkles and complexion blemishes gone through this wonderful, simple method. Watch what it does for you! Merely wash your face in warm water at night and rub in a teaspoonful or two of any good roseated cream which you can obtain from the druggist. In the morning wash the face with cold water and rub in more cream. In three weeks or less you will be astonished at the change that has taken place. See how the old, hardened, coarse, rough skin turns into new, fresh, soft, youthful-looking skin almost before your very eyes, all due to simple osmosis of the skin, produced solely by warm water and roseated cream. But be sure to use only pure roseated cream, as it is an entirely different thing from ordinary face creams, and must not be confounded with them. Most women prefer Creme Tokalon (Roseated), but any good brand will do. If you have wrinkles, get a box of Japanese Ice Pencils and use them in connection with the cream and you can get quick action on the deepest wrinkles, no matter of how long standing. For giving an indescribably beautiful effect to the neck and arms, as well as suppressing almost immediately the appearance of all smaller wrinkles and marks of age, many women use a little Santonex in connection with this method for producing skin osmosis.

No Need for Ugly Nose Pores and Deep Wrinkles

This Wife and Mother Wishes to Tell You FREE How She Stopped Her Husband's Drinking

By All Means Write to Her and Learn How She Did It.

For over 20 years Jas. Anderson of 10 Pearl Av., Hillburn, N. Y., was a confirmed drunkard. His case was about as bad as it could be, but a little over twelve years ago his devoted wife, after years of trying, finally succeeded in stopping his drinking entirely.

Write to this woman if you have a relative or friend who drinks.

Not only did she save Mr. Anderson, but she stopped the drinking of her brother and several of her neighbors as well. All this she accomplished by simple home treatment which she now desires every man and woman who has a relative or friend who drinks to know all about, for she feels that others can do just as she did.

The treatment can be given secretly if desired, and without cost she will gladly and willingly tell what it is. Therefore, every reader of this notice who is interested in curing a dear one of drinking should write to Mrs. Anderson at once. Her reply will come by return mail in a sealed envelope. She does this gladly in hopes that others will be benefited as she was. One thing she asks, however, and that is that you do not send money, for she has nothing to sell. Simply address your letter with all confidence to Mrs. Margaret Anderson at the address given above and she will reply by return mail in a sealed envelope.

Man's Letter Answered

Dear Sir: In the year 1913, month of March, I read in my newspaper a recipe or prescription and had it filled, as I was in run-down health and was particularly nervous, weak and worn out. I was despondent and unable to work part of the time. The medicine at once revived my energy, will power and strength and have felt like a "new man" until just recently. Have lost the recipe and would appreciate your publishing it again for my benefit and others needing such a grand medicine to restore health.

H. H. B.

Answer—The prescription referred to is herewith given. Any well-stocked druggist can mix it. It really is a wonderful strength-giving tonic for nerve-broken men, and women, too:

Tincture Cadomene Comp.	1 oz.
Comp. Essence Cardiol	1 oz.
Comp. Fluid Balmwort	1 oz.
Comp. Syrup Sarsaparilla	3 oz.

Mix. Shake well and take a teaspoonful before or after each meal and one at bedtime for several weeks.

DR. LEWIS BAKER.

Note—Clip this out and retain it, as it will not appear again—ADVERTISEMENT.

PROFESSOR URGES HISTORICAL ART FOR NEW CAPITOL

Its Construction Affords Unusual Opportunity for Decoration, Says Dr. John Pickard.

ADDRESSES ART LEAGUE

Building Will Have From 40 to 60 Spaces Available for Mural Paintings.

The decoration of Missouri's new $3,500,000 State Capitol at Jefferson City with paintings of memorable scenes in the history of the State and sculptured monuments to the men who made that history, was urged by Dr. John Pickard, professor of art in the University of Missouri, in an address Friday night before the St. Louis Art League at the Artists' Guild. A bill providing for such decoration to be undertaken has been drafted by former Solicitor-General Fred W. Lehmann for the Advisory Art Committee of the State Capitol Commission and will be introduced in the Legislature this week.

The plan is to ask the Legislature to appropriate from time to time sums from the Capitol Tax Fund not used in the construction of the building, thus avoiding any additional taxation upon the people. The bill provides for the creation of a State Art Commission and the appropriation of $25,000 to begin the work. The commissioners would serve without pay.

Dr. Pickard showed stereopticon views of the Capitol and declared that when completed it will be one of the most beautiful capitol buildings in America. He praised the achievement of the Capitol Commission in producing a structure in which symmetry and beauty of lines are obtained despite the immensity of the building.

Opportunity for Decoration.

Its construction affords an unusual opportunity for decoration, he said, and Missouri is richer than almost any other State in historical material for such adornment. After showing by stereopticon views how other great public buildings have been decorated, including the National Capitol, the Congressional Library and several State Capitols, he suggested the manner in which Missouri's history and a record of her present activities in commerce, agriculture, education, art and literature might be preserved. The building will have available from 40 to 60 wall spaces for mural paintings, he said, and a great number of spaces for statuary.

Some historical events which he thought should be commemorated in paintings were the crossing of the Mississippi River by De Soto, the first white man to behold Missouri soil; the first settlement at Ste. Genevieve in 1735, the founding of St. Louis in 1764, the completion of the Louisiana Purchase by Thomas Jefferson in 1803, the founding of Missouri Territory in 1812, the admission of Missouri to statehood in 1821 and the Lewis and Clark expedition.

Other Early History Scenes.

Other scenes of early history which he hoped would be depicted were the Santa Fe Trail, Boone's Lick Trail, the Pony Express, Mark Twain's old home at Hannibal, the old forts at Boonville and scenes of the early political life, especially such as have been preserved in the paintings of Bingham.

The scenic beauties of the State should be the subjects of a number of paintings, he said. He mentioned the great rivers, the valleys and fields and the Ozarks, with their unequaled grandeur. The fields of corn, cotton and wheat, the cattle, horses and mules, all should have a place in the paintings, he said, showing the State's great resources. He suggested statues of the State's most famous pioneers, Senators, Governors and other public men.

Dr. Pickard will visit many parts of the State delivering his lecture and displaying the views in an effort to arouse sentiment in favor of the adequate decoration of the capitol.

A. Fohrell Elected Treasurer of Buettner Furniture Co.

A. Fohrell, for 38 years manager of the drug sundries department of the Meyer Bros. Drug Co., was elected treasurer of the Buettner Furniture Co. at the annual meeting. He became interested in the Buettner firm several years ago and at the urgent solicitation of the management concluded to become actively identified with it. He assumes his duties as treasurer at once. He says he will continue the policy of honest merchandising and truthful advertising upon which the firm has been built up. The motto, "Every customer must be satisfied no matter what the cost," will continue to be adhered to. Treasurer Fohrell plans a great many improvements in the service and in the appearance of the company's quarters at the northeast corner of Washington avenue and Eighth street. Fohrell is a man of wide business experience and will work with the Buettner organization to make it one of the strongest institutions of its kind in the city.

ZUCKER AND KATZ ACQUITTED

St. Louisans Acquitted of Arson in Illinois Establish an Alibi.

Max Zucker of St. Louis, charged with arson, was found not guilty by a jury in the Circuit Court at Benton, Ill., Friday, on an alibi established by witnesses from St. Louis. The indictment grew out of an attempt to burn a box car of merchandise at West Frankfort in January, 1916. Myer aKtz, also of St. Louis, was jointly accused with Zucker and was acquitted.

The car was loaded at West Frankfort one afternoon preparatory for shipment to Benton, where Zucker advertised he would open a store. The car was sealed and a receipt taken from the railroad company, a value of $16,000 being placed upon it. That night it caught fire.

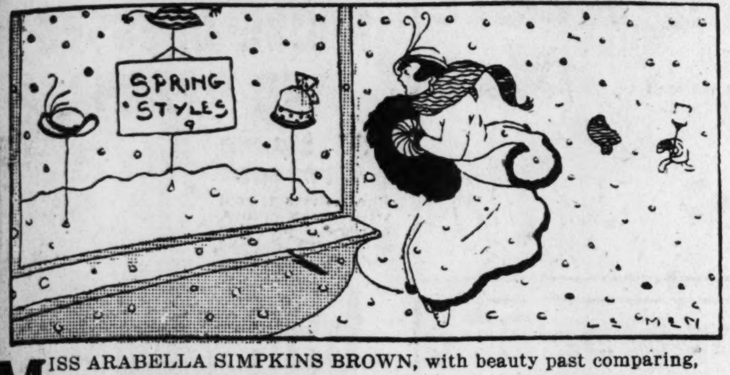
ARABELLA PICKS THE STYLES.



SPRING STYLES
LEMEN

MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN, with beauty past comparing,
When winter winds are sweeping down for springtime is preparing.
She's got a line on every style in some mysterious manner
Though how this knowledge comes, we know, is past our comprehending,
But she will sense just where to go her vernal coin a-spending.
She'll never make a slight mistake, although she is no heiress;
Her purchases of homely make will shame the marts of Paris.
Though foreign styles are just divine and handsomer than thunder
They borrow beauty from the shine of eyes that peep from under,
And after all it is the girl, if only she be pretty,
Can make a bonnet seem a pearl, though made in Kansas City.
She'll buy a simple modest gown, perhaps for less than fifty,
And yet no outfit in the town to you will seem as nifty;
She'll make you wonder why so far she outshines Maude and Katie
With hats that inexpensive are; mere trifles bought for eighty.
Twelve dollar shoes are good enough for charming Arabella,
With dainty tops of brown or buff, or maybe green or yellow—
For while she keeps expenses down, for springtime she's preparing,
This fairest girl in all the town, with beauty past comparing.

A CASUALTY.

"HELLO, Jinks."

"Howdy Jinks. What makes you look so sad?"

"My brother's been wounded."

"That's too bad."

"Yes, the doctor thinks he'll get over it, but he'll always be kind of foolish."

"Well, that will be an improvement. Was he at the front?"

"Yes, right in the thick of it."

"I always said that sort of thing ought to be stopped."

"Yes, but you know how young fellows are."

"Sure, they rush right in without thinking of the danger."

"That's the way my brother was."

"Was it a hand-to-hand battle?"

"The hottest kind."

"I believe that's worse than lying in the trenches."

"Much worse."

"A fellow has no chance at all."

"Not a bit."

"Wonder how long men will keep taking such risks."

"O, as long as they have any sporting blood in them, I guess."

"I wouldn't call it a sport."

"Of course it is."

"Say, where was your brother hurt?"

"In an ice hockey game. Did you think he was in the war?"

"No, I thought he had been playing soccer football."

O SUM HAT.

ALL hats for America is now Chinese;
Is very nice millinery kind,
With alphabet letters for a frieze
And peacocky plume behind.

All kind yellow and blue and green
For make him Oriental hue,
And every lady that is seen
Will look like belle from Nanki 'Poo

Chop suey style is all the go;
Is very fine kind of lid,
Which cost you much big heap of dough
All same as old kind did.

CHINA BOY POET.

AT THE LIBRARY.

(Enter chorus of attendants.)

WE'RE here to give you what you need.
Most anything at all, indeed,
We've music rolls and pictures, too,
And you never can tell what next we'll do.
In fact, if your knee you properly crook
We'll condescend to lend you a book.

(A little girl enters.)

I AM my mama's darling pet,
She told me to come down here and get
A peck of potatoes from your shelf;
Thank you, ma'am, she'll peel 'em herself.

(Enter a boy.)

I've got a ticket; don't think me bold,
But I'd like to have my shoes half-soled.

(Attendants in chorus:)

WE'D love to give you what you want,
But really we're afraid we cawn't.
We can let you have a one-step roll
For the uplift of your little soul,
But, as for the soles upon your shoes,
We're sorry, but we must refuse.

(Boy:)

O WELL, if you can't repair my shoe,
A dining-room picture, I guess, will do.

(Attendants:)

Why, yes, we have all kinds to suit,
Would you rather vegetables or fruit?
Or, if another sort you wish,
We have some lovely things in fish.

(Boy:)

WATERMELON'S my choice,
With a dark green stripe;
And plug it, please,
To see if it's ripe.

(Goes out with picture under his arm. Enter chorus of artists:)

AT LAST we have come into our own,
No more we sit and weep and moan.
Art no longer is "on the bum;"
In fact, we might say it's "going some."
The six best sellers this week we hear
Are still life studies of mugs of beer.
Next week marines may have the call;
We're versatile and we paint 'em all.

(Authors enter in gloomy procession.)

IN us you see a sad, sad bunch;
We haven't got the price of lunch.
Our public has turned to other gods;
Whatever we write, it makes no odds.
The ticket-holders have played us false;
Instead of a book they take a waltz,
Or maybe some picture of a scene
Where the grass is done in shutter green.

(Chorus of attendants.)

AWAY! Away! You authors all.
Go out on Olive street and bawl.
Get jobs as waiters or as cooks,
If you can't make lunch money writing books.

(Enter lady with ticket in her hand.)

I HAVEN'T quite made up my mind
If I want the sad or cheerful kind.
But just to satisfy myself
I'll take a look at the fiction shelf.

(Attendants, in chorus:)

O, look! O, look!
She wants a book.

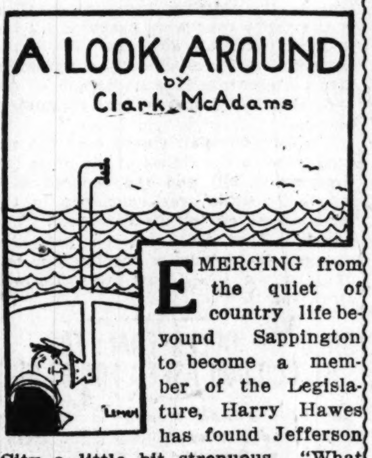
A LOOK AROUND

by Clark McAdams



EMERGING from the quiet of country life beyond Sappington to become a member of the Legislature, Harry Hawes has found Jefferson City a little bit strenuous. "What the Legislature should do," he said to me last week, "is to first meet and introduce its bills. It should then go home and consider those bills for three months, after which it should meet again to engross what it wants to consider further. After that it should take another rest, and then meet to vote. It is not possible for anyone to comprehend fully under the present system everything that is offered for consideration. We have 1500 bills, and only 70 days in which to dispose of them. We rush from one committee meeting to another, and are always going day and night. It is impossible to do justice under such a system to everything brought to the Legislature's attention." I met Roger Baldwin a moment later. "He is quite right about it." Roger said. "The California and Oregon legislatures, I believe, are already doing that very thing." You may trust the West.

About the Biplane.

ALBERT BOND LAMBERT, who is about the only aviator we have in St. Louis lighting right side up as a regular thing, has recently returned from one of the Government's aviation camps. He says most of the experimental flying now is being done over water. A fall into water is not ordinarily serious. The same fall upon land might be fatal. He says the biplane is the chief reliance of aviation. It carries a bigger load by reason of the two planes, and is easier handled, especially in lighting. The element of danger from the airplane itself has been virtually negligized by the war. All Europe is in the air, so to speak. The enemy has become about the sole peril to flying, one time considered perilous in itself. There is no appreciable difference in speed between the biplane and the monoplane. Nor is the machine itself much improved as a vehicle over what it was when the war broke out. Necessity has become the mother of ascension.

Hunting the Submarine.

LAMBERT says, by the way, that the use made of airplanes at sea is not generally understood. The aviator almost never fights the submersible, or attempts to hit it with bombs. Upon the contrary, his aim is chiefly to discover the boat under water and signal a destroyer to the scene before the submarine rises. He says that under average conditions an aviator flying from 500 to 3000 feet high can see a submarine as much as fifty and sixty feet under the surface of the sea. The submarine cannot, of course, see the airplane, nor is it unlikely that it will go very far without coming to the top for a look around. It is the business of the aviator to bring an armed craft to its assistance, in the hope that the submersible may be shot when it comes up.

When the Ballot Was Pure.

DR. JOHN PICKARD, who teaches the history of art at the Missouri State University, will address the Missouri Legislature tomorrow night on the subject of decorating the new State Capitol. He has a collection of stereopticon slides showing what other states have done in this way, and exhibits also some of the paintings of Missouri life done more than fifty years ago by Bingham. In one of these we are reminded that men once voted by word of mouth. They simply stepped up, made oath to support the constitution, and said: "I vote for Goldberg for Governor, Mutt for Lieutenant-Governor, Jeff for Secretary of State, 'Smatter Pop for State Treasurer, Uncle Si for Attorney-General," etc. Within a few days after seeing that picture I encountered in the Montgomery County (Ill.) News a communication from an old resident of Illinois in which the writer lamented that voting by word of mouth had ever passed out. It was his opinion that at that time the ballot was pure. There was no such thing as repeating. Friends of the candidates, checking the vote off as it was cast, forestalled corruption in the official count. "With all our subsequent laws pertaining to the ballot, we have never improved upon that system," says the writer. In the words of the purist, "Ain't it the truth?"

Lift Corns Out With Fingers Don't Hurt a Bit—It's Magic

Few drops stop soreness, then the corn or callus shrivels and lifts off. Try it and see! No humbug!

This tiny bottle holds the wonder of wonders. It contains an almost magical drug called freezone. It is a compound made from ether.

Apply a few drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a hardened callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you just lift it off with the fingers. It doesn't hurt one particle.

You feel no pain or soreness when applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin.

Just ask in any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. This will cost but a few cents but will positively rid your poor, suffering feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, or the tough calluses on bottom of feet. Genuine freezone bears the name of Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, O.—ADV.

BRITISH CAN'T DEPORT ALIENS TO A SPECIFIED COUNTRY

Court Overrules Home Secretary and Holds Foreigner Is Free to Go to Place He Chooses.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The British courts have decided that the Government has no right to deport to Russia or France citizens of those countries who have taken refuge here. An order of deportation, may be issued against any alien, but the order must not specify the country to which the deported alien must go.

The decision completely nullifies the widely proposed deportation of all allied aliens for military service in their own countries.

The test case discussed by the courts was that of the Duke de Chateau Thierry, a French subject of military age, resident in England prior to the war, against whom the British Government made an order of deportation to France at the request of the French Government. No offense or misconduct was alleged against the Duke, but the Home Secretary claimed the right to deport him under certain war legislation. The courts took the broad ground that while the Home Secretary has discretion to make a deportation order, he has no power to select the country to which the deported alien must go.

SENATE HAS NOT PASSED A BILL, BUT ADJOURNS AS USUAL

Work of Upper House of Missouri Legislature Delayed Three More Days.

SESSION HALF OVER

Legislators Paid for Days of Adjournment, Sundays Included.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 10.—Although there are 169 bills on the Senate calendar awaiting definite action, the Senators, following out the systematic policy of delay, adjourned at noon yesterday until Monday afternoon. Thirty-nine of the 70 days of the session have passed.

In addition to acting as a deterrent to legislation and a delay of virtually three days, the adjournment enabled St. Louis and Kansas City Senators to reach their homes in time for dinner last evening, and will enable them to depart leisurely for the capital Monday morning to reach it in time for a brief session in the afternoon.

The Senators receive pay for the days of the adjournment, Sundays included. The average daily cost of a session of the Legislature is more than $4000, including salaries of members, officers and clerks and incidental expenses.

House Has Worked Rapidly.

In the present session the House of Representatives has proceeded more rapidly than usual with its business, but the Senate has devoted less time to work than at any previous session in recent years. It is farther behind with its business than two years ago, when the Senate acted as the barrier to all legislation of importance. So far this session 511 bills have been introduced in the Senate, while two years ago 524 had been introduced.

The committees of the 1917 Senate have reported 229 bills, while those of the 1915 Senate, in exactly the same period of time, reported 340. The 1917 Senate has engrossed 95 bills, while the 1915 Senate in the same time had engrossed 114. The Senate this year has not passed a bill, while the 1915 Senate by this time had passed 17 Senate bills and three House bills, and the latter three had become laws.

From this record the outlook for the progressive measures pending is not good, and while it is possible to advance bills rapidly in a few days and pass them, the only object of the systematic delay is to place the calendar in such a congested condition that nothing will be passed unless the Senate combine, of which Senator John F. Morton of Ray County is the leader, will consent to suspend the rules and take up particular bills.

Gardner Measures Held Up.

The Gardner administration measures are included in those which will be caught in the jam and the Governor is in the position of being entirely at the mercy of the combine.

Up to the present time there has been no indication that the combine will consent to the Gardner measures passing in the shape they were prepared by the Governor and his advisers. While the Governor seeks to give the impression that his program is in no danger of defeat, it is to all appearances completely blocked.

The Governor felt elated over the engrossment in the House of the State tax commission bill and the secured debt bill, but neither was engrossed in the form presented by the Governor. The secured debt bill was so radically changed that virtually nothing was left of it after the House was through amending it.

SALE OF COLLATERAL FOR $6,000,000 ASKED FOR IN SUIT

All Stocks and Bonds of Missouri and North Arkansas Railroad Held as Security for Notes.

A suit was filed yesterday by Festus J. Wade, George L. Edwards, G. Herbert Walker, D. R. Francis Jr., Edwards Whitaker and Robert McKittrick Jones, composing a "committee of certain noteholders protective agreement," to sell at foreclosure collateral held by the committee as security for notes aggregating about $6,000,000.

The collateral consists of all the issue of stock and bonds of the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad Co., which is now in receivership, according to Samuel A. Mitchell, attorney for the committee. The purchaser of the collateral will become the owner of the railroad.

There are about 100 defendants, among them being Katherine B. Henry, the Travelers Insurance Co., the estate of Sylvester C. Dunham, Howard Elliott, Francis Bros. & Co., the Corwin H. Spencer estate, Robert S. Brookings, Lewis D. Dozier Jr., Eleanor Dozier Stickney, John Scullin and Edward Mallinckrodt. They are the owners of the equity in the security.

The committee holds all the notes except $525,000 held by the National Bank of Commerce. Attorney Mitchel said the suit was a formal matter and that he did not look for a contest.

Laxative Good for Babies Also Good for Everybody

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the Safe and Efficient Family Remedy.

Every member of the family is more or less subject to constipation and every home should always be supplied with a dependable remedy to promptly relieve this condition. Whenever the bowels become clogged and the natural process of elimination thereby disturbed, the entire system is affected, and readily subject to attack by disease. Constipation is a condition that should never be neglected.

Mrs. E. R. Gilbert, of Millbro, Va., says that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a splendid laxative for children because they like its pleasant taste, and it acts so easily and naturally, without griping or strain, and she finds it equally effective for the rest of the family.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that contains no opiate or narcotic drug. It is mild and gentle in its action, and does not cause pain or discomfort. Druggists everywhere sell this excellent remedy for fifty cents a bottle.

Mrs. E. R. Gilbert

To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure you get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a fac-simile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. U. S. Rights in New Sea Zone Stand on Treaty

Are Guaranteed by Prussia

By STERLING E. EDMUNDS
Lecturer on International, Law St. Louis University Law School

In considering the rights of citizens of the United States and their ships in the new German war zone, it must be kept in mind that these rights do not rest alone upon the principles of humanity and the laws of civilized warfare, as is the case with other neutrals.

The rights of the United States are especially guaranteed by Prussia herself in a solemnly pledged treaty of acknowledged binding force. The particular provisions under which the protection of United States' citizens and their property must be granted are found in our treaties with Prussia of 1785, 1799 and 1828.

First of the Treaties.

The first of these treaties was negotiated in Berlin by Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and John Adams, as the American plenipotentiaries. The treaties of 1799 and 1828 are largely copies reviving expressly certain provisions of the preceding treaty and were negotiated by John Quincy Adams and Henry Clay, respectively, as representatives of the United States. The most important provision of the treaty of 1785, in present circumstances, is the following article 12:

"If one of the contracting parties should be engaged in war with any other power, the free intercourse and commerce of the subjects or citizens of the party remaining neuter with the belligerent Powers shall not be interrupted. On the contrary, in that case, as in full peace, the vessels of the neutral party may navigate freely to and from the ports and on the coasts of the belligerent parties free vessels making free goods, insomuch as all things shall be adjudged free which shall be on board any vesel belonging to the neutral party, although such things belong to an enemy of the other; and the same freedom shall be extended to persons who shall be on board a free vessel, although they should be enemies to the other party, unless they be soldiers in actual service of the enemy."

The treaty of 1785 was revised in 1799 and the above-mentioned article 12 was not incorporated in the latter. The treaty of 1799 was revised in 1828 and by article 12 of the last treaty article 12 of the treaty of 1785, as well as articles 13 to 24, inclusive, of the treaty of 1799 were "hereby revived with the same force and virtue as if they were made a part of the context of the present treaty."

The articles of the treaty of 1799 revived in the treaty of 1828, likewise form the basis of our special right to protection.

Revived article 13, for example, says:

In other words, vessels of the United States, under convoy of our warships, shall not even be searched, after the warship's commander declares the vessel to be of his convoy.

Article of Special Importance.

The fifteenth article is of special importance. It says:

"And to prevent entirely any disorder and violence in such cases (visit and search), it is stipulated that, when the vessels of the neutral party, sailing without convoy, shall be met by any vessels of war, public or private, of the other party, such vessels of war shall not send more than two or three men in their boat on board the said neutral vessel to examine her passports and documents. And all persons belonging to any vessel of war, public or private, who shall molest or insult, in any manner whatever, the people, vessels or effects of the other party, shall be responsible in their persons and property for damages and interest, sufficient security for which shall be given by all commanders of private armed vessels before they are commissioned."

"And in the same case of one of the contracting parties being engaged in war with any other Power, to prevent all difficulties and misunderstandings that usually arise respecting merchandise of contraband, such as arms, ammunition and military stores of every kind, no such articles carried in the vesels, or by the subjects or citizens of either party, to the enemies of the other, shall be deemed contraband, so as to induce confiscation or condemnation and a loss of property to individuals."

Nevertheless, the article continues, it shall be lawful to stop such vessels and detain them, paying erasonable compensation for such detention; and it shall further be lawful to use such articles upon payment of their value, to be ascertained at the place of destination. In case a vessel is stopped, if the master will deliver out such contraband goods as are in his cargo, the vessel shall not be further detained or carried into port. Such articles delivered out shall be paid for.

Provision for Passport.

The fourteenth article provides for teh carriage by the vessel of each of a passport which each may be required to show, but it declares further that if the vessels, being neutral, are under he vonvoy of he neural's warship "the simple declaration of the officer commanding the convoy, that the said vessel belongs to the party, of which he is, shall be considered as establishing the fact, and shall relieve both parties from trouble of further examination."

Any doubt as to the validity and binding force of the treaty is dispelled by the note of Secretary Bryan of April 28, 1915, in the William G. Frye case, in which he said:

"Unquestionably, the destruction of this vessel was a violation of the obligations imposed upon the Imperial German Government, under existing treaty stipulations between the United States and Prussia."

The Frye note specifically mentioned these treaties of 1785, 1799 and 1828. In its notes of April 5, June 7 and July 30, 1915, in the Frye case, Germany expressly admitted her obligation to pay compensation for such losses, including contraband, as United States' citizens had suffered, under the treaty provisions referred to.

Case of the Ship Frye.

It will be recalled that in the Frye case the Prinz Eitel Frederich attempted first to have the contraband cargo of wheat thrown overboard, but owing to the slowness of this work, it removed the crew and passengers to its own decks and torpedoed the ship. The question of sinking without warning was not at issue. The only question was one of reparation for breach of the treaty.

These treaty provisions can be interpreted in no other light than as a positive prohibition against any molestation of United States' vessels, trading with Germany's enemies, except that, when Germany wishes to detain or use contraband in the cargoes, she may do so upon payment of compensation. No right of destruction can be inferred, even where warning is given and persons on board removed to a place of safety. This was the contention of the United States in the Frye case, from which it has never receded.

There is, furthermore, a positive obligation created to prevent all violence and insult to the persons of citizens of the United States on board their own vessels. The treaty provisions do not appear to extend with the same force to cases involving the use of enemy vessels.

PAGEANT OF FASHION TO OPEN WEDNESDAY

Annual Style Show of St. Louis Merchants Will Continue for One Week.

The Pageant of Fashion, a new sort of artistic style show promoted by St. Louis merchants to bring together and entertain the comemrcial interests of the St. Louis trade territory, will open Wednesday night at Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard. It will be presented every night for a week, except Sunday night.

The art of pageantry has been adapted for the display of the new styles produced in St. Louis, affording an appropriate setting and proving that the garments are suited to the most artistic uses. The book of the pageant contains four episodes—spring, youth, sport and evening. The characters are Aurora, goddess of day; Saint Louis and his attendants, Art, Industry, Economy and Efficiency; Queen of Fashion and her attendants; heralds, pages, dancers and vocalists, and 50 living models.

The pageant opens in darkness, with music playing a theme significant of dawn. The outline of a majestic portal is slowly disclosed in the center background, through which Aurora is revealed.

Aurora brings greeting to the House of Saint Louis and then disappears. Saint Louis seats himself in the throne chair. A herald announces the approach of the Queen of Fashion. Saint Louis crowns Art, Industry, Economy and Efficiency in recognition of their faithful service.

The Queen of Fashion enters and takes her place on a throne opposite Saint Louis, surrounded by her attnedants.

Saint Louis calls for the followers of Terpsichore to interpret the season of spring. Then follows the dance, "The Awakening of Spring." The stage is darkened and the sceneograph changed. The stage is slowly lighted and Spring is seen lying across the threshold. Pan, who has been charged to watch her and wake her with his pipes, has fallen asleep. The fairies steal a march on Pan and dance; he wakens and joins the fairies. He then softly calls to Spring and she wakens and joins in the dance.

Then follows the display of the spring styles. Forty models wearing suits, coats and skirts pass in front of the Queen of Fashion for her approval, then down the runway through the audience.

The stage is again darkened, and the scene is changed. In the distance is the Fountain of Youth, which is being supported by Nixies. In the fountain stand two lovers. It is the task of the Nixies to keep the lovers in the fountain that they may ever remain young. The Nixies, wearying of their task, leave their posts and begin to dance. The lovers step down from the fountain and dance until they become exhausted. When they would return to the fountain the Nixies tell them that since they have stepped on the earth they are doomed to grow old.

Then follows a display of the styles for children and young girls.

The next scene is that of Sport. The scene represents a Grecian racing field, in the distance a statue of Diana, the goddess of Sports. Eight Grecian contestants engage in running races, disc throwing and other Grecian games. Diana leaves her pedestal and joins in the merry-making by presenting the Dance of the Hunt. The sport styles are then displayed.

The last scene is "Night." There are eight dancers in this tableau, Night, the New Moon, Two Stars and Four Clouds. The scene opens in darkness. Gradually the stars appear in the heavens, then slowly a large golden moon rises. The New Moon descends to earth, and is joined by the Two Stars, then the Four Clouds. The Four Clouds join in a "Storm Cloud Dance."

The evening gowns are then displayed. The pageant closes by the Queen of Fashion presenting to St. Louis an emblem of approval.

MEN WHO CONDUCTED GAMBLING IN VENICE FINED $1000 EACH

Ferd Warner, Former Member of St. Louis House of Delegates, and Saloon Keeper Plead Guilty.

Ferd Warner, former member of the St. Louis House of Delegates, and Sam Bridgeford, a saloon keeper, were fined $1000 each in the Madison County Circuit Court yesterday, when they pleaded guilty to a charge of conducting a gambling game in Venice. They paid the fines.

Judge Gilham told Warner and Bridgeford that if they were brought before him again they would be sent to jail or the penitentiary, according to the charge.

The arrest of Warner and Bridgeford was made at the instance of Madison County officials, who had been assured by State's Attorney Strueber that he would enforce the gambling laws.

Knocks Obstinate Coughs in a Hurry

A Simple Home-Made Remedy That Gets at the Cause.

Thousands of people, normally healthy in every other respect, are annoyed with a persistent hanging-on bronchial cough year after year, disturbing their sleep and making life disagreeable. It's so needless—there's an old home-made remedy that will end such a cough easily and quickly.

Get from any druggist "2½ ounces of Pinex" (50 cents worth), pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Begin taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract combined with guaiacol and is used by millions of people every year for throat and chest colds with splendid results.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

In taking Casca Royal Pills.

Thinks People Spend Dollars Where Dimes Would Do.

A big city physician, with no ax to grind, makes the statement that "too many people spend dollars for medicine and doctors where dimes would readily answer. I mean that nine-tenths of the ills of the human family are due to faulty elimination. Inactive kidneys and constipated bowels bring on a train of ills that would require a page to enumerate. Headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, biliousness, backache, indigestion, nervousness, insomnia, etc., unless in a chronic stage can be corrected by taking Casca Royal Pills, instead of high-priced stomach medicines, liver tonics, blood purifiers, etc."

Just try a 10c or 25c package and you'll save many dollars and keep your health good too. Any druggist can supply you with this very pleasant physic, tonic and purifier. Sold by druggists everywhere.—ADVERTISEMENT.

ONE SPOONFUL buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka benefited her INSTANTLY. Because Adler-i-ka flushes the ENTIRE alimentary tract it relieves ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas and prevents appendicitis. It has QUICKEST action of anything we ever sold. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., corner Sixth and Washington.—ADVERTISEMENT.

BUSINESS IMPROVED IN LOCAL THEATERS

"Common Clay" Comes to the Jefferson; "A Dry Town" Stays at Players.

These are cheerful days in St. Louis theaters, as compared with the lean business of last season, and of the first part of the present season. There is a welcome relief from the familiar complaints of actors and managers about the loneliness and losses of the "week in St. Louis."

The principal attractions shown here since Christmas have been well patronized. The Dolly Sisters, at the Jefferson last week, drew large audiences, and "Daddy Longlegs," the week before, had a seat sale which surprised the management. About the only play which has not had the success which it seemed to merit, in the last six weeks here, was "Hobson's Choice," at the Shubert-Garrick.

At the Garrick "A Daughter of the Gods," the Annette Kellermann photo drama, is having a run that seems likely to keep spoken-drama attractions out of the house indefinitely. The fourth week of the film begins today, and seats are still in about the same demand that they were on the opening day.

"A Dry Town" to Stay.

The Players Theater has not been large enough for those who wished to see Lewis B. Ely's "A Dry Town," and the play will continue through this week, with the prospect of a further prolongation of its run. Mitchell Harris, who went to New York to attend his mother's funeral, is back in the cast.

The bills announced at the Jefferson, for this week and the six weeks to follow, seem to promise a continuance of the present good business. The diversion of the Garrick to film purposes also tends to help business elsewhere.

When "Common Clay" is played at the Jefferson tonight, St. Louis playgoers will have their first chance to see one of the plays which were so deliciously burlesqued in the Cohan Revue, which opened the Jefferson's season. No one who saw that very enjoyable performance can have forgotten the courtroom scene, in which Richard Carle, as the Judge, rapped ragtime on the bench, and in which the prosecutor rhythmically informed the Court that "Her name's not Clay, her name is Mud." This was the Cohan version of the big scene in the third act of "Common Clay."

Two other plays which were burlesqued in the same Revue are to come to the Jefferson in the next few weeks. One is "The Great Lover," in which Leo Ditrichstein is to appear, and the other is the musical play "Sibyl," in which "Julia, Donald and Joe"—Miss Sanderson and Messrs. Brian and Cawthorne—are tri-starred.

From Harvard to Broadway.

"Common Clay," was written by Cleves Kinkead of Louisville, while he was a student at Harvard, and was a prize play there. It was first produced in Boston, but its greatest success came in New York, where it gained great popular favor. Its melodrmatic style smacks more of Broadway than of Harvard. John Mason, who is rated high in dramatic ability, has the role of the Judge, as he had in the New York production.

The Ziegfeld Follies, coming to the Jefferson a week from tonight, is limited to one week here, and there will be 10 performances, an extra matinee being given on Thursday, Washington's birthday. The current Follies is in two acts and 18 scenes, done by Joseph Urban. George V. Hobart and Gene Buck wrote the lines and lyrics, and the music is by Louis Hirsch, Jerome Kern and Dave Stamper. In the company are Ina Claire, Fannie Brice, Anna Pennington, Allyn King, Emma Mabel Haig, Bert Williams, Bernard Granville and Will Rogers.

The Columbia Theater's headliner, for the week beginning tomorrow, is Digby Bell in "Mind Your Own Business," a sketch by Winchell Smith, author of the play "Turn to the Right." Paul Morton (of the Four Mortons) and Naomi Glass offer a musical satire, "1917-1950," and Dorothy Shoemaker and company present a playlet, "Supper for Two." Ice skating by the Alaska Trio is another item of a promising bill.

Hans und Fritz will get der Captain and der Inspector all ge-worked up, in the performance of "Katzenjammer Kids" at the American today. At the Grand tomorrow, Al Fields and company will head the bill with a sketch, "The Vegetable Hunters." At the Standard, this week's burlesque bill is "September Morning Glories," and at the Gayety "The Behman Show."

SWIMMING POOL FOR W. U.

The Washington University Union is raising a fund to install a swimming pool in the Francis Gymnasium on the campus. The university has agreed to maintain the pool, keeping it open all day and evening during the academic year. The pool will cost about $18,000 and will be 30x75 feet in dimensions. Construction, it is expected, will begin the coming spring.

This is the first time in the history of Washington University that a concerted effort has been made to have the university community—students, former students, alumni and faculty—unite in presenting a gift to the institution.

DUNSANY INTRODUCED HERE BY PORTMANTEAU

Stuart Walker's Players to Show Two of His Works at the Victoria.

St. Louis will get its first view of the dramatic works of Lord Dunsany, when two of his short plays are presented by Stuart Walker's Portmanteau Theater company, in their engagement at the Victoria Theater, Wednesday night and Thursday afternoon. "The Gods of the Mountain" will be played at the first performance, and "The Golden Doom" at the second.

Lord Dunsany (pronounced Dun-SAY-ny) is John Edgar Moreton William Drax Plunkett, eighteenth Baron Dunsany, and he is now "doing his bit" in France. He has written amusingly of his own works, and his words about allegory have been widely quoted.

"Don't hunt for allegories," he advises audiences at his plays. "As a rule I have nothing to do with allegories. What is an allegory? A man wants the streets to be better swept in his town, or he wants his neighbors to have rather cleaner morals. He can't say so straight out, because he might be had up for libel, so he says what he has to say, but he says it about some extinct King in Babylon. But he's thinking of his one-horse town all the time. Now, when I write of Babylon, there are people who cannot see that I write of it for love of Babylon's ways, and they think I'm thinking of London still, and our beastly Parliament.

"In my plays I tell very simple stories—so simple that sometimes people of this complex age, being brought up in intricacies, fail to understand them. Take my 'Gods of the Mountain.' Some beggars, being hard up, pretend to be gods. Then they get all they want. But destiny, Nemesis, the gods, punish them by turning them into the very idols that they desired to be."

"The Gods of the Mountain" is considered by many Dunsany's masterpiece, though another of his works, "A Night at an Inn" has been called "the best one-act play ever written by anybody." "The Gods of the Mountain" starts as comedy and ends as tragedy of the most impressive type.

The other plays at the night performance will be Stuart Walker's "Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil" and Oscar Wilde's "The Garden of the Infanta." At the matinee, besides Dunsany's "Golden Doom," two plays of Walker's will be presented. These are "Nevertheless" and "The Lady of the Weeping Willow."

The Portmanteau, otherwise called "the theater that comes to you," is a portable stage, which is set up on the stage of a theater, or on a ballroom platform or any other rostrum large enough to accommodate it. By setting up his own theater wherever he goes, Walker obtains uniformity in his scenic and lighting effects. His associate players include Gregory Kelly, McKay Morris, Nancy Winston, Judith Lowry and Robert Cook.

NOTED ORGANIZATION TO APPEAR HERE IN FIVE SHORT PLAYS

Washington Square Players Will Give Performances Tomorrow Night for Servian Relief.

One of the most interesting dramatic events of the season will be the single performance of the Washington Square Players of New York, at the Victoria Theater tomorrow night. The performance is for the benefit of the Servian relief fund.

The Washington Square Players are probably the foremost among the groups of actors who, in the past season and a half, have built up a little theater cult in New York, which has spread to other cities, St. Louis being notably included in the list.

Five one-act plays are to be presented. These are "In April," by Rose Pastor Stokes, a tenement play; "The Roadhouse in Arden," by Philip Moeller, which was written for the Shakspearean tercentenary, and in which Shakspeare, Bacon, Hamlet and Cleopatra are among the characters; "A Miracle of St. Anthony," by Maeterlinck; "The Bear," a Russian farce by Tchekov; and "Helena's Husband," by Moeller.

The largest number of characters, 11, appears in "A Miracle of St. Anthony." In "The Bear," there are but three. The "Helena" in the Moeller play is Helen of Troy, and Menelaus and Paris are also present.

This is the first time that the Servian Relief Committee has appealed to the people of St. Louis for funds. The committee has pledged itself to raise $10,000, to supply and equip one consignment of food and clothing relief. The local committee was organized two months ago, and is a branch of a national committee. Archbishop Glennon, the Rev. Dr. Phillips of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, President Davis of the Chamber or Commerce, and a group of society women, are on the committee.

STOESSEL RECITAL ON FEB. 19

Albert Stoessel, native St. Louisan, will present four numbers new to this city in his violin recital Feb. 19, at the Sheldon Memorial auditorium. He will be assisted by his sister, Miss Edna Stoessel, pianist.

The novelties will be Stoessel's own "American Dance," an attempt to do with ragtime what has been done with the folk tunes of other peoples; Cecil Burleigh's "Moto Perpetuo," Faure's "Soir," and "Anaranza," by Granados, the Spanish composer who lost his life in the sinking of the Sussex. Other numbers will be a sonata by Franck, Saint-Saens 'Havanaise," and compositions by Bach, Schumann, Brahms and Kreisler.

Drama by Church Club.

Two performances of a four-act play, "Young Mrs. Winthrop," will be given this week by the Mallinckrodt Club of Holy Trinity Parish. The first will be at the church auditorium at 3 this afternoon and the second at North St. Louis Turner Hall at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

LOOK AND FEEL CLEAN, SWEET AND FRESH EVERY DAY

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone whether ailing, sick or well, should each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—ADV

Use "Gets-It," Lift Corn Right Off

Shrivels, Loosens—and It's Gone!

"Just like taking the lid off—that's how easy you can lift a corn off your toe after it has been treated with the wonderful discovery, "Gets-It." Hunt the wide world over and you'll find nothing so magic, simple and easy as "Gets-It." You folks who have wrapped

"O-o-!"
End Corn and Stop Pain Quickly With "Gets-It"

your toes in bandages to look like bundles, who have used salves that turned your toes raw and sore, and used plasters that would shift from their place and never "get" the corn, and who have dug and picked at your corns with knives and scissors, and perhaps made them bleed—just quit these old and painful ways and try "Gets-It" just once. You put 2 or 3 drops on, and it dries at once. There's nothing to stick. You can put your shoe and stocking right on again. The pain is all gone. Then the corn dies a painless, shriveling death, it loosens from your toe, and off it comes. "Gets-It" is the biggest selling corn remedy in the world today. There's none other as good.

"Gets-It" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in St. Louis and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., A. P. Bentz, Keiffer Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co.

BREITLING DEPARTS TO SAIL FOR GERMANY

"Deutschland Ueber Alles," Consul Exclaims as He Leaves City.

Dr. August F. W. Breitling, German Consul in St. Louis for three years past, and Mrs. Breitling, left at noon yesterday for New York. They expect to sail Tuesday with the Bernstorff diplomatic and consular party, on board the Frederick VIII.

"Deutschland ueber alles!" the departing Consul exclaimed, when reporters at the train asked him whether he had anything to say for publication, as to the circumstances of his departure.

A number of friends accompanied the Breitlings to the station. Frederick Widman, president of the Liederkranz Club; Adolph Meyer of 3519 Halliday avenue, and Dr. John Schwegel, Consul of Austria-Hungary, were among the men in the party. There were several women, one of whom was weeping. Mrs. Breitling's arms were filled with flowers.

The order for police protection of the Consul seemed to be carried up to the time of his departure, as a Police Sergeant and two patrolmen were within sight of the farewell group. On Gov. Gardner's order, the police in the last few days gave especial protection to Dr. Breitling, although he said that he did not desire it. This was done at the request of the State Department, which is anxious to avoid any possibility of an act of violence or discourtesy to any of the departing representatives of the German Government.

Perry Alumni Tea.

ST. LOUIS SECURITY LEAGUE FOR THE UNIVERSAL TRAINING BILL

The St. Louis Branch of the National Security League has passed resolutions demanding immediate action by the President and both Houses of Congress on the Chamberlain bill and it has gone further, and asked that if need be, the President call for an extra session of Congress for the sole purpose of passing preparedness legislation. The Senate Military Affairs Committee reported the bill favorably yesterday.

"The National Security League has been alert and working throughout the whole country, to bring pressure to bear upon the administration and Congress for the passage, without further delay, of the Chamberlain bill, which will give us a system of universal obligatory military training and service, and will discard forever the unfair and inadequate volunteer system," said Chairman George M. Browne of the league's St. Louis branch yesterday

"Citizens who have the nation's interest at ehart," said Mr. Brown, "can perform no greater service to their country now than to advocate this important measure, and appeal by personal letter to tehir Congressmen and Senators that it be made a law immediately."

Relief from Diabetes Obtained by Use of Old Reliable Remedy

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy has brought health and happiness to many who thought themselves beyond aid.

Diabetes is a peculiar and baffling disease which the medical profession seems to be unable to accurately describe and definitely cure despite the many years of experimenting and research by foremost physicians throughout the world.

Diabetes is invariably the result of impaired nutrition—this results in an excess of sugar in the blood and failure of the food to nourish, hence a gradual wasting away while eating well.

Symptoms of the disease are increased thirst, emaciation and dry skin, often with sweetish odor.

Following are a few voluntary words of praise from a man who has used Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy with gratifying results. Perhaps you may be benefited in a like manner.

"I had been troubled with Diabetes for 8 years. I heard about Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy and I tried some of it and got myself in good condition and went to work again. One man said he doctored for 2 years and that one bottle of Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy did him more good than all the doctors. I am much pleased and so thankful for your lifesaving remedy that I cheerfully recommend it to anyone troubled with Diabetes and I hope this will be the cause of helping many sufferers." (Signed) James Platt, Nat'l. Military Home, Dayton, Ohio.

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is made from a formula tried and tested and used with remarkable results during the past 40 years. As the name indicates, Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is absolutely safe as it is made from herbs and other beneficial ingredients.

For sale by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and all leading druggists. Free sample on request. Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 245 Rochester, N. Y.

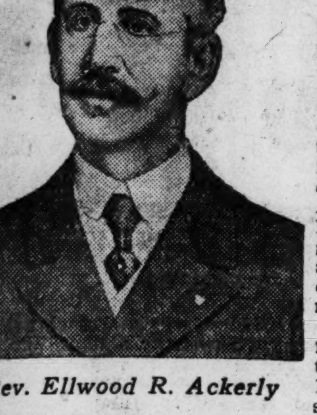
Was Compelled to Abandon His Ministerial Work

Had Suffered Terribly for Days and Was as Weak as a Child.



Rev. Ellwood R. Ackerly

The eminent lecturer, Rev. Ellwood R. Ackerly, who is in charge of the First M. E. Church at Montgomery, N. Y., says: "I had suffered terribly for days and was as weak as a child. The doctors did not help me any and I had to abandon all ministerial work, when in answer to prayer, I believe, I was directed to take Fruitola and Traxo. After taking the first dose of Fruitola I was relieved of a large number of gall stones. I am now taking Traxo and am delighted to testify that my energy has returned and I feel like a new man."

Fruitola and Traxo are compounded from the original Edsall formulas at the Pinus laboratories in Monticello, Ill., and can be purchased in drug stores; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Friutola is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant. One dose is usually sufficient to indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a tonic-alterative that is most effective to rebuild and restore the weakened, rundown system.

A booklet of special interest to those who suffer from stomach trouble can be obtained by writing to the Pinus Laboratories, Monticello, Illinois.

The entrance of William C. Connett, lawyer and athlete, into the contest for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, with Dr. John H. Simon as an opponent, was the principal local political event of the week. It is considered likely that Connett and Dr. Simon will be the only candidates for the nomination, and it is expected that the contest will become spirited before the primary election, March 9, at which all parties will nominate their candiates for Mayor, Comptroller, and 14 members of the Board of Aldermen, one from each of the odd numbered wards.

The only other Democrat known to have an inclination to file is Horace S. Rumsey, present Excise Commissioner, who will retire from office Feb. 15. The last filing day is Feb. 26. While Rumsey is said to be eager to enter the race, he will be advised by his political friends that he has little chance to win the nomination. Democratic leaders are convinced that his policy as Excise Commissioner would make him unavailable as a candidate.

While Dr. Simon is a campaigner of broad experience, with strong political connections, he will be met on the stump by Connett, much younger in years, with political, business and legal connections which will form a powerful organization in his support.

Even if other candidates should enter the contest, Connett and Dr. Simon are likely to be the principal figures in it.

Connett an Able Candidate.

Connett is regarded as the ablest leader among the younger Democrats of St. Louis. While he has not written any platform upon which to make his campaign, his personal and political supporters assert that his record is a guarantee, in the event of his election, of an honest, capable, efficient and aggressive administration of municipal affairs.

As secretary to Rolla Wells during the last two years of his administration as Mayor, Connett acquired an intimate knowledge of municipal departmental work, and a thorough understanding of the political forces that are always struggling for advantage in municipal affairs.

One of Connett's big achievements since he retired from politics and reentered the practice of law in 1909 was the rebuilding of the Missouri Athletic Association's new clubhouse at Fourth street and Washington avenue. After the old Missouri Athletic Club was destroyed by fire in 1914, the club was badly disorganized and was practically without any money.

Connett, as a member of the board of governors, undertook the work of reorganizing the club and financing the new building. He not only succeeded in working out a plan which succeeded in producing the $850,000 required to construct the new building and furnish it, but was made chairman of the Building Committee, in which capacity he let all the contracts and exercised general supervision over the construction of the clubhouse.

The M. A. A. "Abe Lincoln."

As the result of Connett's administration the new building and its furnishings are said to represent the best building value ever obtained in St. Louis. The board of governors of the association was so impressed with the efficiency of Connett's work that it voted him an honorarium of $5000, with an additional sum of $1000 for winding up the affairs of the old organization. In addition to this recognition, 165 of his friends gave him a banquet at which they presented him a life membership in the association. He was asked to take the presidency and operate the club, but declined.

In the official organ of the association, "Ye Clubbe," Connett has been known for years as "the Abe Lincoln of the Athletic Club."

As general counsel for the Union Trust and Savings Bank of East St. Louis, Connett has handled many big business and financial propositions. In this capacity he represented the bondholders of the C. L. Gray Construction Co., a St. Louis corporation, which undertook vast building operations in New York City. The company was unable to carry out its project. Connett, as the representative of the bondholders, went to New York, refinanced the scheme and completed the $4,000,000 worth of buildings under construction when the company failed. His management of this business was such that the bondholders were saved from any losses.

Connett has been practicing law in St. Louis for 15 years, having been graduated from the law department of Washington University. He took a post-graduate course in law at the University of Virginia. He is widely known in athletics throughout the middle and central West. He and Byron Anderson entered the State tennis tournament in 1906, as dark horses, and easily won the Missouri championship, which they won again in 1907 and 1908. Connett then retired, having been undefeated. He was also a crack semi-professional baseball pitcher, winning a pennant for Belleville the last year he pitched in the Trolley League.

He has refereed the big football games in St. Louis and other central and middle Western cities for many years. He has been the referee of every game between the Washington and St. Louis University teams for more than 10 years.

SIMON WILL HAVE A STRONG RIVAL IN WILLIAM C. CONNETT

On account of his ability as an athlete, Connett has been attributed with a youthfulnes which he does not altogether deserve. He is 38 years old, married, and has four children. He has a very considerable law practice, stands high in his profession, and has been active in Democratic politics for many years, although not to an extent that would be likely to alienate the independent voters in a general election. He ran for but one office, the nomination for Circuit Attorney in 1908, and was defeated, owing to a strong political combination that worked for Thomas B. Harvey.

The strong card that is being played by Connett's supporters in his primary campaign is that he would attract the independent vote to the Democratic party in the April election, and would also get the vote of the Republicans who are dissatisfied with the Kiel policies and administration and would have an excellent chance to be elected.

Simon Good Mixer.

Dr. John H. Simon was the Democratic nominee for Mayor at the last election, four years ago, defeating Saunders Norvell, who had been president of what was formerly the Norvell-Shapleigh Hardware Co. He was defeated in the April election by Mayor Kiel by 2285 votes. James Y. Player for Comptroller, Sam Lazarus for President of the Council, Frank W. Schramm for Assessor, Henry C. Menne for Treasurer, Jeremiah Sheehan for Auditor and James W. Griffin, Democrats on the ticket with him, were elected by majorities running from 387 tc 7660.

It was alleged that a great number of Republicans, in the primary election of 1913, voted for Dr. Simon. The Democratic vote in the primary election was more than twice that of the Republicans, although Mayor Kiel was opposed by Dr. Max C. Starkloff, who had a good organization behind him, and there was almost as much interest in the Republican contest as in the Democratic.

Dr. Simon is a big man physically, is a good mixer, and has been very active in politics for more than 20 years. He is 49 years old, married, and has five children. He has been practicing medicine in St. Louis for 17 years. He has been, at various times, member of the staff of different hospitals, and is also a member of the Missouri Medical Society, the International Tuberculosis Congress and other medical organizations. He lives at 1201 McCausland avenue.

Once Health Commissioner.

Dr. Simon was appointed Health Commissioner by Mayor Wells in 1902, but was removed in 1905, on charges preferred by James G. McConkey, then private secretary to the Mayor. The charges again Dr. Simon were that he failed to devote his entire time to the duties of his office; gross and willful neglect of official duties in that he failed to familiarize himself with the needs of the various institutions under the direction of the Health Department or to consult and advise with the superintendents thereof; that he abused his official power and position in employing persons to fill positions authorized by ordinance, placing on the payrolls persons as employes before their appointments had been confirmed by the Board of Health; that he summarily discharged Miss Elizabeth Rowan, an old and faithful employe of the city, without cause, and that he attended to private practice.

After a hearing upon the charges, following the failure of Dr. Simon to have the Supreme Court issue an order on Mayor Wells restraining him from trying the case, Dr. Simon was found guilty by Wells and dismissed. Dr. Simon took the case to the Circuit Court on a writ of certiorari, but the action of Mayor Wells in removing him was sustained by Judge Kinsey and affirmed by the Supreme Court.

The record of the trial shows that there was a great deal of discord between Dr. Simon and the superintendents of the different city institutions. It was testified to by some of the superintendents that special trained employes were removed by Dr. Simon to make room for political friends, who were in no way qualified for the duties they were expected to perform.

Dr. Simon is of German origin. In a speech last fall he described himself as a hyphenate, proud of his hyphen, but declared that he was also an American. If he and Mayor Kiel should both be nominated for Mayor, St. Louis would be in the position of having two mayoralty candidates of German origin. According to census reports, about 28 per cent of St. Louis' population is of Teutonic stock.

Dr. Simon is quite a forceful public speaker. He was principally responsible four years ago for the passage by the Legislature of the law providing for the nomination of municipal candidates by direct primary election.

GIRLS! BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Get a 25 Cent Bottle! Freshen Your Scalp! Stop Falling Hair! Remove Dandruff! Grow Lots of Wavy, Glossy, Beautiful Hair--You Can!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die, then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and 10 minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—ADV.

"Big Drive" to Raise $150,000.

A "starter meeting" for what President Reed of Westminster College calls the "big drive" in his campaign to raise $150,000 among St. Louis Presbyterians for his college endowment and building fund will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Second Presbyterian Church. It is expected that most of the 200 men who will begin tomorrow morning a four-day canvass of the 4000 Presbyterian families in the city will be present to receive final instructions from President Reed and the four division commanders.

York Mother Finds Ideal Cold Treatment for Her Little Boy

Nothing to Swallow—You Just Rub It On.

RALPH I. SMITH
(4 YEARS OLD)

Mothers everywhere will be interested in the experience of Mrs. Chas. I. Smith, 623 West Gas Alley, York, Pa. Mrs. Smith tried the Southern remedy—Vick's VapoRub Salve, when it was first introduced in York, and writes—

"Our little four-year old boy had a cough for about a week. We gave him everything we knew, and nothing seemed to do any good. So when we got Vick's VapoRub I rubbed it on his chest well for two nights and I have not heard him cough since. I think it is the best medicine I have ever had in the house."

Vick's VapoRub comes in salve form, and when applied to the body heat, the ingredients are released in vapor form. These vapors are inhaled with each breath, opening the air passages and loosening the phlegm. It's a real "Bodyguard in the home" against all forms of cold troubles. 25c, 50c, or $1.00. At all druggists.

SENATE UNIVERSAL TRAINING BILL GETS FAVORABLE REPORT

Measure Requires All Youths to Receive Six Months' Military or Naval Instruction in Their Nineteenth Year and Be Placed in Reserve for Nine Years.

WOULD CREATE FORCE OF 3,165,000 MEN

Passage Not Indicated at This Session, but Bill Offers Plan on Which Public Sentiment Can Crystallize.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The Senate Military Committee reported favorably today a bill framed by a subcommittee creating a military and naval citizen force based on universal training and service. While the committee report does not indicate any belief that Congress will act on the measure at this session, the bill brings to a definite head the universal service discussion of the last few months and offers a specific plan on which public sentiment can crystallize.

The bill requires six months' training without pay for all youths during their nineteenth year. Exemptions are confined to the members of the regular army and navy, those physically unfit, those who are the sole support of dependent relatives and those affiliated with religious creeds which forbid them to bear arms. The latter class are liable, however, for training in the noncombatant branches of the army.

It is estimated the bill would provide for the training of 500,000 boys annually, each of whom would be furloughed into a reserve for nine years after his training period. With allowances for shrinkage of classes due to various causes as the years pass, this plan would give a total force of 3,165,000 men who had had six months' training, at the end of the first nine-year cycle, all subject to call for service only in the event of a "defensive" war or the imminence thereof.

Army Men Want Year's Training.

The bill disagrees with the theory of the army general staff as to the amount of training necessary to make a soldier fit to go on the battle lines, although it contemplates about the total strength proposed by staff officers. A year of intensive instruction has been declared by Major-General Scott, the chief of staff, to be the minimum of safety for the training of even defensive soldiers. A universal training bill carrying the indorsement of virtually the entire membership of the general staff and based on a year's training is almost ready for final submission to Secretary Baker and the President. Neither official has committed himself on the principle of universal training.

The committee measure, which is based on that prepared by Maj. Moseley, formerly of the army general staff, fixes military training as a duty of citizenship, denying naturalization until such training has been at least begun or exemption granted. All Government employment would be closed to those who could not produce certificates of training or exemption, and private employers would be similarly prohibited from employing any man who has evaded military service. A blanket penalty with a maximum of $1000 fine and a year's imprisonment for each offense is provided for the violation of any section of the act except that those who evade training when liable for it must serve a longer time.

Reservist Required to Report.

For nine years, or until he has passed his twenty-eighth year, each reservist would be required to report in person annually to the registration authorities of his military district. In case of war the youngest classes would be called first. After his twenty-eighth year a reservist would pass into the great body of the unorganized militia, subject only to the general laws.

The bill provides no organization after the troops leave training, but the President is given wide latitude in this regard. No changes in the present national guard system are provided for. Training would be in military districts comprising single states or groups of small states, and the establishment by lease or purchase of training cantonments in each district is directed. Registration and medical examining boards for each district or subdivision also would be appointed by the President, the word of the latter as to physical fitness to be final; while action of the registration boards on exemptions could be appealed to the Federal District Courts. Youth liable for training would be required to report themselves or to be reported by parents or guardians.

To encourage preliminary military training such as that given in schools, credit to a maximum of three months, or one-half the total required period, might be allowed. The applicant

RADIUM EFFECTIVE ONLY AS PALLIATIVE, DOCTOR REPORTS

Research Said to Show It Is Unsatisfactory Means for Cure of Malignant Tumors.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Radium is not a satisfactory means for the cure of malignant tumors, but it is the best palliative treatment available in a number of cases, acording to Dr. Francis Carter Wood, director of the Crocker Cancer research Labaratory at Columbia University, as published today in a supplementary report on the years' activities at the laboratory.

"It is undoubtedly possible to prolong life and to render the patient more comfortable by the judicious and intelligent employment of large quantities of the substance, but it is equally certain that the use of small quantities of the element in such cases often results in a rapid extension of the tumor, so that the patient's condition becomes much worse than it would have been had he been left alone," Dr. Wood says in his report.

SOLDIER UNCONSCIOUS 29 MONTHS FROM SHELL SHOCK

Man in State of Coma Since Battle of Marne Taken to Paris for Examination by Specialists.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—Hatman, the French soldier who sustained shell-shock at the battle of the Marne and has since been in a state of coma, has been sent from Perigueux to Paris to be examined by specialists. He was carried to the train on a specially-made wicker bed, and was accompanied by his wife, who was constantly with him in the hospital at Perigueux.

During the last few days he has been seen to turn in his bed like an ordinary sleeper, and when he has had enough of the liquid food which is given him he turns his head away, these being the only signs of consciousness he has given for 29 months.

AMERICAN LINE'S SHIPS WON'T SAIL UNLESS PROTECTED

Government Seems Disinclined to Furnish Armament, Official Says.

NO GUNS TO BE HAD

Supply of Private Manufacturers Exhausted by Demands of Warring Nations.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Unless the United States Government provides convoys or guns and gunners to protect its ships, the American line, owners of the steamships St. Louis, St. Paul and other liners will not send them across the Atlantic, it was announced here today by P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine.

This decision was reached after the faiure of efforts to provide their own defensive armament, Franklin said. The only source of supply of guns in this country, he added, seems to be the United States Government, "and our Government seems disinclined to afford this protection."

He said the St. Louis would sail if only one gun could be obtained for her, but it seemed impossible to get even this from the Government or private sources.

"French and British ships are sailing to and from this port," he continued, "with indifference to any orders from Germany, because they are armed, but the American line has not even one gun to protect itself in case of any emergency. We should have guns of six-inch caliber and crews to man them. There are too many lives and too much property at stake to send ships out without protection."

The sailing of the Swedish-American liner Stockholm from this port Monday, Feb., 12, for Gothenburg has been postponed indefinately by instructions received today by the line's home office.

Two American Vessels Sail.

Two American vessels, the Rochester and Orleans left New York today for Bordeaux. Neither was painted with red and white stripes, as the German Government had prescribed.

The Rochester, owned by the Kerr Steamship Line, has a general cargo for Bordeaux.

The Orleans has an American captain, Allan Tucker, and a crew of 35, of whom 32 are citizens of the United States. The Rochester has 33 officers and men, of whom two-thirds are Americans. Both vessels have their names and "U. S. A." in large letters on their black sides. Neither is armed.

H. S. Quick, general freight agent of the Kerr line, announced that the sailings of the line would continue until forcibly stopped.

All information with respect to the clearing of vessels at the custom house, including their names, is being withheld. Officials said today that this was being done for the present on orders from Washington.

Safe arrival at Genoa last Thursday of the Italian steamer Dante Alighieri, which left this port Jan. 24, was announced here today in a cablegram received by the ship agent. She carried between 400 and 500 passengers.

Four Steamers Cleared From Philadelphia for War Zone.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10.—Four steamers today took out clearance papers for ports that will take them through the submarine war zones. They are the Orseolo (Italian), with explosives, for Spezia, Italy; Drammenseren (Norwegian), with grain, for Gibraltar for orders; Strathdona (British), also for Gibraltar, for orders, and Joaquin Mumbursa (Spanish), for Barcelona, by way of New York.

Governmenet Cannot Supply Guns, Navy Department Says.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—In reply to requests for the use of navy guns to protect their liners against submarine attacks, the Navy Department has advised several American steamship companies that the Government cannot supply the armament and has suggested that they make purchases direct from private ordnance concerns.

Until President Wilson decides upon a general change of policy, no guns will be turned over to the steamship companies.

GIRL, 5, CLIMBS ON WHEEL OF WAGON AND IS KILLED

Driver, Unaware of Her Presence, Starts Team, and Wheel Passes Over Her Body.

Alois Eckmeier, 68 years old, a coal dealer at 4107 North Broadway, stopped his team in front of 2847 Benton street at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and went to 2854 Benton street to inquire where the load of coal on his wagon was to be dumped.

Florence M. Poston, 5 years old, daughter of Charles Poston of 2506 Glasgow avenue, climbed up on one of the rear wheels. Eckmeier returned on the opposite side of the wagon and did not see her. He started the team, and the child was thrown to the ground in front of the wheel on which she had been climbing. It pased over her body.

Eckmeier, not knowing what had happened, was leading his team away, when Sidney Storm of 2506 Glasgow avenue ran after him and told him. The child was carried home. She was dead before a doctor arrived. Eckmeier was not arrested.

7 MORE STEAMERS REPORTED LOST, 1 A PASSENGER SHIP

Mantola's Passengers Saved; 25 American Muleteers on One of Ships Sunk.

89 CRAFT 9 DAYS' TOLL

In This Period 1100 Vessels Have Arrived At or Sailed From United Kingdom Ports.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Seven steamers, with a tonnage of 22,381, sunk of believed to have been sunk, constitute the harvest of the German submarine campaign reported in Lloyds' dispatches as cabled from London today and tonight. Four of these were British, the Mantola, a passenger steamer of 6826 tons; the Lullington, of 2816 tons; the Beechtree, of 1277 tons, and the Japanese Prince, of 2816 tons. The others were the Norwegian Solbakken, of 2616 tons; the Norwegian Ellavore, of 2760 tons, and the Norwegian Havgard, of 1100 tons.

This record is an increase of nearly 12,000 tons over the amount of tonnage reported destroyed yesterday.

The Japanese Prince had on board 25 white American muleteers, according to the British Vice Consul at Newport News. The steamer carried a mixed cargo of horses and general cargo. The muleteers signed at Newport News.

All the passengers on the Mantola were saved; seven Lascars of the crew are missing. The crew of the Lullington was landed Friday, and two of the crew of the Solbakken were lost. The captain of the Ellavore was landed, but the mates and 11 members of the crew are missing. The Beechtree's crew was landed. The Japanese Prince left Newport News Jan. 24 for Southampton. The Ellavore was reported as leaving Barcelona Jan. 13 for Naples.

Lloyds also announced that of the crew of the Norwegian ship Storskog, previously reported sunk, two were landed, the captain and the others being kept prisoner aboard the submarines.

The total number of vessels destroyed in the period of U-boat operations of Feb. 1 to 9, inclusive, is said to be 89, of which 21 were neutral vessels.

During that period, it was announced today by persons said to be close to British authorities, more than 1100 vessels arrived at or sailed from ports of the United Kingdom. Seven hundred vessels entered United Kingdom ports safely, and 410 departed, acording to this information.

Other figures declared to have been received from Admiralty sources show that 16 ships escaped after being attacked. Of the vessels sunk 21 were trawlers and smacks, it is said. The summary classifies these losses as follows: Torpedoed: British steamships, 25; entente steamships other than British, 13; neutral steamships, 21; trawlers and smacks, 21. Sunk by mines: Nine vessels, class and nationality not stated.

25 Americans on Japanese Prince Which Carried Steel.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Feb. 10.—The steamer Japanese Prince was commanded by Capt. Jenkins and, besides the 25 American muleteers, carried a crew of 50 men. Her cargo, besides 400 horses, consisted of grain and steel billets.

If the Japanese Prince was on a return voyage when sunk, the agents here said, the American cattlemen could not have been aboard, as it is the practice to send these men back on passenger ships.

GROCER AND 5 CLERKS HELD UP BY 2 MEN, WHO GET $720

Robbers Escape After Exchanging Shots With One Clerk, Whose Revolver They Overlooked.

Benjamin M. Frank, a grocer at Thirteenth and O'Fallon streets, was robbed of $720 in currency and $60 in checks by two men at 11:30 o'clock last night while on his way to his home at 1408 O'Fallon street, a block away, accompanied by five clerks to whom he expected to pay their weekly wages. The robbers escaped after exchanging revolver shots with one of the clerks.

Frank and his five clerks were on O'Fallon street, a short distance west of Fourteenth street, when the robbers stepped out of an alley. One robber, with a revolver in each hand, ordered the six men to hold up their hands and line up, faces to the wall. When they complied the other robber took Frank's money, but made only a superficial inspection of the clerks.

"Now you fellows run," the armed robber commanded. All six ran east on O'Fallon street.

Louis Messerly of 1523A North Fifteenth street, one of the clerks, had a revolver which the robbers failed to find in their hurried search of him. When about 30 feet away he drew it and fired at the robbers. Eight shots were exchanged. The robbers then ran north on Fourteenth street and disappeared in a gangway.

Last year the Post-Dispatch printed 14,668 Wanted to Purchase Wants, 1493 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers COMBINED.

KAISER SENDS ONE OF SECRETARIES TO ESCORT GERARD

Two Trains Placed at Disposal of Ambassador for Trip to Switzerland.

GERARD'S PHONE CUT OFF

Berlin Paper Says It Was Due to Subordinate's Error and Service Was Restored.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—An Exchange dispatch from The Hague says the German Emperor sent one of his private secretaries to escort Ambassador Gerard to Switzerland.

Two special trains were placed by the German Government at the disposal of Gerard for the trip to Switzerland according to the Berlin Vossische Zeitung, quoted in a Reuter Amsterdam dispatch. One train will be for Gerard, his staff and family and the other for Americans desiring to leave Germany.

The Vossische Zeitung confirms the report that telephonic communication at the American embassy was cut off, but explains that this was the result of a mistake on the part of a subordinate official. Communication, it adds, was restored by order of the Foreign Ministry.

Gerard, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from The Hague, sent to the German Foreign Office, through a neutral channel, a formal protest against the "cutting off of the embassy telephone by Government order 10 minutes after he had requested his passports."

Most of Americans in Berlin Haven't Received Passports.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 10, 11 p. m., via London, Feb. 11.—The first phase of the exodus of Americans from Germany took place today. A staff correspondent of the Associated Press passed the Danish frontier as the first American permitted to leave Berlin, several hours before the train with the official party of Ambassador Gerard was scheduled to leave the German capital.

Ambassador Gerard was permitted to take with him in addition to embassy and consular officials, American newspaper correspondents and a number of personally recommended friends.

The vast bulk of Americans in Berlin as yet have been unable to "arrange passport formalities," and are without information as to when these "formalities" can be completed, but up to the present they have no reason to complain of their treatment in any other respect. The attitude expressed officially is that, of course, when these formalities are completed, they will be perfectly free to depart.

Bernstorff and His Party to Have Strong Guard at Pier.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Patrol of the water front by launches carrying rapid-fire guns in the vicinity of the steamer Frederick VIII and heavy land guns about the approaches to the vessel are part of the precautions which will be takn to protect Ambassador von Bernstorff and other German officials at their departure from this port Wednesday.

The police of Hoboken, where the ship is docked, the United State secret service and the police of New York City have joined forces in the task of guaranteeing the safe departure of the Germans from this country.

A special train bearing them to Hoboken direct from Washington will bring them to within two and one-half blocks of their ship. There they will be met by automobiles and transferred under police protection to the pier. They are expected to reach Hoboken about 6 o'clock Wednesday morning. The steamer today obtained permission from the home office of the Scandinavian-American line to sail Wednesday with the Von Bernstorff party.

Not all the German Consuls will accompany Count von Bernstorff out of the country. A number have been instructed by the German Government to depart from their former posts for points in South and Central America. The men have been instructed to use the greatest caution to prevent their movements from becoming known.

BARONESS VON SCHELLE DIES

Wife of Head of Belgian Red Cross a Former Illinoisan.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 10.—Baroness Anna von Schelle, wife of the head of the Belgian Red Cross, died today in New York, according to private advices received here. Death, it was said, was the indirect result of exposure at the time of the sinking of the steamer Arabic, on which she was a passenger.

The Baroness had just returned to New York from Chicago, where she had been in charge of Belgian exhibits at the allied bazar. She was a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Fowler, who lived here many years. Her husband is in Brussels.

POLICE RECREATION DAYS OFF

Chief of Police Young last midnight, upon learning of a number of robberies and holdups during the evening, in which revolver shots were fired, rescinded his order of Friday for the resumption of recreation days in the Police Department.

For two months recreation days had been suspended in an effort to check robberies.

RAIDERS AND DESTROYERS IN BATTLE, RIO JANEIRO HEARS

Wireless From Island of Fernando Do Noronha Said to Confirm Previous Report of Fight.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (Sunday).—The Herald this morning prints the following special cable:

"RIO JANEIRO, via Galveston, Tex., Feb. 10.—A wireless dispatch received this morning by the Minister of Marine from Pernambuco confirms reports received here last night of a battle off the island of Fernanda do Noronha yesterday between warships of belligerent Powers. The dispatch says the battle was between British cruisers and two Prussian commerce destroyers, and lasted nearly 15 hours. The result of it was not known on Fernando do Noronha early this morning, owing to the heavy mist that obscured the view of the sea.

"The island of Fernando do Noronha is about 125 miles off the eastern extremity of Brazil and is Brazilian territory."

FORD TO DISCONTINUE HIS NEUTRAL PEACE CONFERENCE

Feels Effort to End War Is Inconsistent With Offer to Make War Implements.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Having stuck to his plan of trying to establish world peace until his own country came to the edge of war, Henry Ford has decided to discontinue the neutral conference for continuous mediation, the peace-seeking organization which grew out of the famous pilgrimage of the ship Oscar II, and which has been in operation in Europe since December, 1915.

Ford is in favor of peace just as strongly as ever, but it seemed to him that there was nothing further that the conference could do at present; and also it appeared to him rather inconsistent that he should have an organization in the old world striving for peace while his great working organization here is getting ready to make war implements should the United States become involved in the conflict. He sent a cablegram to The Hague, where his peace organization has headquarters, telling those in charge to prepare to close the affairs of the conference by March 1.

GERARD NO LONGER DIPLOMAT, JUST A MAJOR IN THE GUARD

American Ambassador Tells Interviewer He Is an Optimist "Until Last Minute Before War."

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—James O'Donnell Bennett, staff correspondent of the Chicago Tribune in Germany, tells in a Berlin dispatch today of asking Ambassador Gerard for a statement on the break between the United States and Germany.

"I am out of the diplomatic business," replied the Ambassador. "I am now a Major in the National Guard. But now, as always, I am an optimist until the last minute before war.

Asked about the Yarrowdale prisoners, he said, "I can only say that the case is still pending."

Answering another question, he said. "I won't tell the name of the ship on which I have been planning to sail from Spain to the United States until I am safe on board that vessel."

"Will you say good-by to the German officials?"

"Yes, informally; I expect to do so this afternoon."

"Can you give any idea what you will say?"

"Not until I look into their faces. I want to part friends with these people."

FRENCH ARMY FLYER BRINGS DOWN THIRTY-FIRST MACHINE

Third Member of American Aerial Squad Wins the Legion of Honor Cross.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The official statement issued tonight by the war office says that numerous aerial combats occurred yesterday and that two hostile airplanes, one a triplane, fell in the French lines. One of them was brought down by Sub-Lieut. Guynemer, who thus registered his thirty-first victory.

The report that Sergeant Givas Lufberry of the American air squadron had brought down his seventh airplane and had received the Legion of Honor cross is confirmed. Since then it is probable that he has destroyed his eighth machine, but that is unofficial. Although accomplishing these feats, Lufbery is barely able to walk from rheumatism.

Lieut. William Thaw has returned to the Lafayette squadron with one of the fastest biplanes on the French front.

Lieut. Thaw and Lieut. Sweeney of the Foreign Legion are the only other Americans in the French army who have achieved the Legion of Honor. Lufbey, formerly of New Haven, flew in Mexico and in the Philippines.

The Chinese Government has advised the German Government that China will break off diplomatic relations if the new submarine measures are pursued.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Germany has taken steps to open a discussion with the United States of means of preventing war between the two countries. In seeking an exchange of views on the subject, however, it is not understood that the Berlin Government has proposed any modification of is submarine campaign, and officials here say they cannot enter upon such discussion while vessels continue to be destroyed in violation of international law.

The new move is understood to be predicated upon a willingness on Germany's part to discuss especially the safeguarding of American ships and American lives on the seas and backed by a renewed expression of the desire of the German Government to prevent the diplomatic breach from leading to actual hostilities.

Just how American interests are to be safeguarded if the German war zone proclamation is to stand, however, and whether any specific means of preserving peace between the two nations is included in the communication has not been revealed.

Because of the delicacy of the situation, all officials refuse to discuss it in detail or even to indicate through what channels the communication was addressed to the American Government.

What may be the ulterior motive back of the step also is a matter of speculation. In some quarters it is evident there is a feeling that it is merely a play for time, designed to postpone any further action by the United States until the starvation blockade against England either has succeeded or failed.

Elsewhere there are suggestions that there may be behind it a sincere desire to make sacrifices to preserve peace between the United States and Germany, and may come as a response to the appeals understood to have been sent abroad by pacifists in this country.

Vigorous Preparation Continues.

In any event, there is no evidence that President Wilson is contemplating any other course than vigorous preparation of the nation for the eventuality of which he warned the country in his address to Congress if American rights are violated.

Up to tonight no official evidence had been received to show that the feared overt act had been committed. Aside from the new German communication interest in official circles centered chiefly in the early course of Berlin officials in placing obstacles in the way of the departure of Ambassador Gerard.

Great resentment has been aroused here over this incident, but officials have indicated that as soon as the Ambassador is safely out of Germany they will be disposed to consider the matter closed.

Although definite information regarding the channel through which the German communication was directed is lacking, it is considered certain that it has been forwarded by the Government of Switzerland. The Swiss Minister here, who has taken over German interests in this country, called at the State Department this afternoon and saw Counselor Polk. Both refused to discuss the conference, but it is considered probable the Minister, on behalf of Germany, communicated that Government's views. If he did the German suggestions were, it is believed, given orally.

It is regarded as improbable that specific suggestions would be put forward at least until the United States in some way indicates its sentiment toward the general proposal for a discussion. The development, however, served to draw attention to proposals for distinctive markings of vessels and arrangements for passage of American passenger carrying liners in the note announcing unrestricted submarine warfare.

Effort Made Previously.

It was disclosed tonight that when Count von Bernstorff informed the United States of the new German policy an effort was last week made to bring about a discussion apparently designed to result in the United States agreeing not to take any serious action, and that administration officials flatly declined to consider it. The present efforts, while more or less different in character, are looked upon as being more formal in nature than those made at first.

Some light also was thrown upon Germany's point of view when it was learned today that while the Berlin Government was arranging for the new campaign, certain German diplomats in various parts of the world were notified that while "military necessity" prevented the granting of a period in which neutrals might adjust their maritime interests, every care would be exercised that neutral and especially American passenger-carrying ships would not be subjected to unwarned submarine attack.

The manner in which the new German proposal was received in official quarters left the impression that there was little possibility of a favorable response here. The attitude of officials has been that only two courses are open to Germany—that she must either pursue her campaign at the hazard of war with this country or restore her repudiated pledges given in the Sussex case. It has been felt here that Germany has been warned more fully than she had any right to expect regarding the attitude of the United States and that she decided on her course with full knowledge of its results. It is not felt that Germany will be in a position to negotiate in the matter until she has withdrawn from a campaign which the United States has condemned with the most serious step it could take short of war.

Officials, however, apparently are not surprised at the German action. In one diplomatic quarter it was characterized tonight as calculated to shift to the State Department responsibility for what Germany's own actions may lead to. It is realized also that it will have an effect on the pacifist and the pro-German elements in the country whflich will be embarrassing to officials here.

Gerard in Switzerland Tomorrow.

A dispatch today from American Minister Stovall at Berne, Switzerland, said he had been informed that Ambassador Gerard would leave the German capital tonight, arriving at Zurich tomorrow. The Minister said he had arranged to meet the party at the frontier. When the State Department closed for the day, however, it was said no further word had been received.

It was disclosed at the department that an inquiry regarding the delay had been addressed to Gerard through the Spanish Ambassador at Berlin. Officials have indicated, however, that once Gerard and his party are safely out of Germany the United States probably will consider the incident closed.

Officials are confident that Germany has had in its possession from the start the fullest information as to the courtesies granted to former German officials and the rights admitted to German property in this country. This information has been sent daily both through the Swiss legation here, representing German interests, and the Spanish Embassy in Berlin reporting American interests. Plans for Count von Bernstorff's departure, the decision not to seize German warbound ships and other developments have been detailed.

Diplomatic Courtesy Respected.

The report that Count von Bernstorff was not allowed to communicate with his Government was indignantly denied here, Secretary Lansing declaring "every facility and convenience" had been placed at the German Ambassador's disposal. The United States, the officials declare, has gone out of its way in this crisis to respect international law and diplomatic courtesy. The original message of recall to Ambassador Gerard, on the other hand, was sent him direct both by cable and by wireless, but no record has ever been received as to whether he received the wireless message, and no date given for his receipt of the cable message. Subsequent messages to him have gone through Ambassador Willard at Madrid. No word has been received from the Spanish Ambassador in Berlin since he took over American interests there after the break. A dispatch from Ambassador Willard at Madrid received today said the Spanish Foreign Office up to yesterday had received no word from the Ambassador as to whether he had actually taken over American interests in Germany, though Ambassador Riano here has formally notified the State Department of Spain's willingness to do so.

While no mention has been made in recent dispatches of the American Consuls in Germany and of the American sailors brought in as prisoners on the Yarrowdale, it was assumed that all of them would accompany Gerard when he was finally permitted to leave Germany. The Consuls will face a unique situation when they arrive in Switzerland, as there will be 33 first-class officers and more subordinates whose positions have suddenly been destroyed. The present plan is to continue all these men on the official payrolls under a special emergency provision, some going to posts in other parts of the world, particularly South America, and others being recalled to Washington on special duty.

A dispatch received today at the Swiss legation here from Berne said:

"The American Ambassador, Mr. Gerard, with all his personnel and 50 American citizens, will leave Berlin Feb. 10, in the evening, by special train for Zurich. The Ambassador will be received at the Swiss frontier with all consideration due him."

The Swiss Minister, Dr. Paul Ritter, in charge of Germany's diplomatic interests in the United States, was today requested by the Berlin Foreign Office to ask the State Department for an affirmation of the Prussian-American treaty of 1828. The German Government made a similar request of former Ambassador Gerard, which he referred to the formal diplomatic channels.

The treaty provides that in the event of war between Germany and the United States, citizens of each country in the other shall have nine months to close up their affairs and depart in safety. It also gives guarantees for property.

Switzerland's reply to President Wilson's suggestion that other neutral Governments take action against the German submarine campaign was received at the State Department today. It is understood to say that Switzerland has protested against Germany's action, but will remain neutral.

U. S. Battleship Illinois Leaves Vera Cruz After Four Months.

VERA CRUZ, Feb. 10.—After four months' stay in these waters, the United States battleship Illinois suddenly left here this afternoon, under special orders. Her destination is not known.

Vienna Regards President's Delay as Favorable Omen.

VIENNA, Feb. 10, via London.—Government circles and the public generally view the delayed action of President Wilson regarding the relations with Austria-Hungary and the United States as a somewhat favorable omen and wonder if the rupture is to occur. The newspapers, in a majority of cases, hold a similar view, with the result that the tone of the editorials is losing all its sharpness, save in the case of a few radical papers, of which the Reichspost, the most prominent Catholic organ, is the chief instance.

The Reichspost has three large white spots, inflicted by the censor in an editorial attacking President Wilson this morning. All the other papers this morning confined themselves to discussing the attitude of the other neutrals toward the President's act regarding Germany and expressing the hope that the American Government would learn therefrom that the central Powers' case was not so one-sided as the friends of the entente would have the world believe.

The Associated Press learns that the Austro-Hungarian Government yesterday instructed the military and other public safety organizations that the greatest possible courtesy should be shown all American citizens in any event, and that possible complaints by any American should receive prompt attention.

At the American embassy the opinion was expressed this morning that the case looked hopeful. At noon the papers published with apparent satisfaction a wireless dispatch from New York to the effect that the American Government had not taken radical measures against German and Austro-Hungarian shipping and subjects reports of which were widespread here. The dispatch made the best possible public impression.

German Interests in Russia and Egypt Taken Over by Sweden.

BERLIN, Feb. 8, by wireless to Sayville, Feb. 10.—German interests in hostile countries, which, in most instances, have been transferred from American to Swiss representatives, have been taken over in Russia and Egypt by Sweden. British interests in Germany have been transferred to Holland, and those of Japan, Rumania and Servia, as well as the United States, to Spain.

GERARD'S ADVICE TO QUIT GERMANY HARD TO FOLLOW

Americans Unable to Go Are Given Every Assurance They Will Be Protected.

SWEDEN'S REPLY PLEASES

German Papers Say It Is Strongest Refusal to Follow U. S. Course Neutral Can Give.

By CYRIL BROWN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
(Copyright, 1917, by Press Pub. Co.)

BERLIN, Feb. 9, via Amsterdam and London, Feb. 10.—Toward the handful of Americans still in Germany Ambassador Gerard has done his full and last duty by advising all who asked for advice to leave Germany as soon as possible—advice, under the present circumstances, easier given than taken. With the exception of the American correspondents, American citizens here today are unable to obtain the necessary police permission to leave Germany.

It is understood that the Imperial Government, while not intending to hold American citizens against their will, are waiting until Germany has no reason to doubt that the treaty of 1799 will be kept by America in the eventuality of war. Americans who are unable to leave at present are given every assurance that they will be protected. Most of the Americans still in Germany are fairly well resigned to the situation.

Gerard Refuses an Interview.

Asked on the eve of departing for a farewell interview, Mr. Gerard authorized the publication of the following statement:

"I have not given any interview, and shall not do so; nor have I made any comment or statement, direct or indirect, regarding the situation, nor shall I do so until I have reported to the President. Anything else purporting to come from me is a lie."

Sweden's answer to President Wilson, which is published here this afternoon, is received with satisfaction by the German press.

The Tageblatt says: "Though naturally with absolute politeness, the Swedish note is none the less the most unequivocal rejection of a diplomatic demand which can possibly be made. Sweden, which has equally and in all directions most scrupulously maintained its neutrality, often in the most difficult situations, is justified in making clear to a distant mentor who, far from the theater of war, tries to instruct Europeans in international law, what the spirit of true neutral action is.

"Mr. Wilson's action is in diametrical contrast to Sweden's firm will to maintain neutrality and non-partisanship."

Other Germany papers too hint that if read between the lines, Sweden's note casts a reproach on President Wilson's neutrality. As far as an American correspondent can today ascertain, no European neutral will follow President Wilson's lead in breaking off relations.

This afternoon's Lokal Anzeiger says: "In the neutral press one still encounters a curious confusion of a blockade with our declaration of a 'seesperre.' " The warning cannot be too emphatically given not to take lightly our declaration as to the manner in which we intend to wage our sharpened submarine war.

Denies It Is Blockade.

"We have declared no blockade; we have created forbidden zones for all shipping. Whatever within these zones comes before our torpedo tubes will be sunk—quite apart from the danger of mines. It is technically practically impossible, and, moreover, lies far from our intentions, to make any difference whatever between neutral and enemy ships in the barred zones. All our sympathy for the neutrals can alter nothing in our action, which is dictated by imperative necessity."

The Lokal Anzeiger concludes by drawing the moral that from the purely business point of view, neutral shipping in the barrier zones is bad business and should look very different to business men than before the announcement of unlimited submarine war. The Lokal Anzeiger's utterances are important as dispelling any lingering illusion about possible discontinuonce of the campaign.

Austria Said to Favor Opening Mediterranean to Americans.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Reports from Vienna transmitted by the Exchange Telegraph Co. say that the Austro-Hungarian Government is negotiating with American Ambassador Penfield over the question of allowing Americans to travel unhindered in the Mediterranean, hoping thereby to avert a severance of relations between Austria-Hungary and the United States.

It is not expected, the dispatch adds, that the negotiations will succeed because Germany is averse to giving any pledge regarding Americans, on the ground that it would weaken the blockade in the Mediterranean, and Austria-Hungary is unable to give a guarantee without German sanction.

GERMAN RAIDER OBSERVED IN DOMINICAN WATERS FOUR DAYS

Small Vessel, With Crew of 12 Men, Said to Have Been Last Seen There Jan. 29.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CAPE HAITIEN, Feb. 2.—A German raider was in the waters of this island between Jan. 26 and Jan. 29. She is described as a small ship with a crew of 12.

On Jan. 26 she put in at Puerto Plata, Dominican Republic, to take on coal. On the following day she went into Monte Christi, Dominican Republic, to communicate with the German Consul, remaining in port for two hours. She was observed again on Jan. 29, since which time nothing has been seen of her.

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never failed to remove dandruff at once and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need) apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—ADV.

PLOT TO OVERTHROW CUBAN GOVERNMENT IS DISCOVERED

Mutterings of Uprising Prevalent Since November Election; Subordinate Officers Accused.

HAVANA, Feb. 10.—Havana was stirred today by reports of a revolutionary movement. During the night Secretary of the Interior Aurelio Hevia notified the authorities that a plot to overthrow the Government had been discovered involving civil and military officials, and rumors that high army officers had been under arrest spread over the city, causing excitement and alarm. There had been mutterings of an uprising ever since the presidential elections in November, the result of which has not yet been determined.

The subordinate officers, Lieutenants Arsenio Lopez Barcelo, Ramon Castellanos and Gustavo Gonzales Bobille, are under arrest charged with complicity in the plot, the exact nature of which is not known. The names of Baldomero Acosta, Mayor of Marianao; Chief of Police Parron of Marianao, and Gen. Loinaz del Castillo also have been mentioned.

IMPORTS FROM NEWEST COLONY GAIN 9700 PER CENT IN YEAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The importance of the recently acquired Danish West Indies as a land of export to American consignees is shown sharply in figures made public here today by Dudley Field Malone, Collector of Customs, covering imports through New York last month as compared with those in January, 1916. The imports from the new colony in January of 1917 totaled $195,540, against $2013 in the previous January, or a gain of about 9700 per cent.

Total imports here last month were approximately $123,345,000, as compared with close to $100,000,000 the previous January. The greatest percent of increase was from South America, the gain from there being more than $13,000,000. There was a decrease of nearly $2,000,000 from Africa.

DUTCH PROTESTS TO GERMANY PUBLISHED

Submarine Blockade Cuts Off Indian Route, Essential to Holland's Trade.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 10.—An official white paper issued here gives the text of the German and Austro-Hungarian notification respecting the danger zones established in the submarine blockade and protests by the Dutch Government dated Feb. 7. The Dutch note points out that the zone proclaimed as dangerous in the Mediterranean completely bars passage between Port Said and the channel from Gibraltar to Greece, so that the Indian route, which is essential and of importance to the commerce of Holland as a colonial power, is cut off.

The Dutch Government recalls its earlier protests against the British and German measures relating to the proclamation of war zones in the North Sea and continues:

"With all the more reason the Government is obliged to object with extreme energy against the regime now announced, which not only applies to much vaster areas but also includes attacks on neutral ships, whatever their cargo or destination, and without discriminating as to whether their presence in said zones is voluntary or not."

It is further pointed out that even had Germany qualified the new measure as a blockade, the merciless destruction of neutral ships would be contrary to international law, which only permits the confiscation and not the destruction, of blockade runners.

"Germany," continues the note, "does not use the term blockade, and rightly so, because it cannot be applied to such vast areas and because by the rules of international law it can only be directed against traffic with hostile ports and in no wise against direct navigation between two neutral countries. Now, the German warships are ordered to destroy ships, irrespective of their trafficking with enemy ports or between neutral ports.

"Faithful to the principle which has always been observed in this war, the Queen's Government can only see in such destruction of neutral ships violation of the rights of nations, to say nothing of the attack upon the laws of humanity, if this happened regardless of the security of the persons aboard. The responsibility of the eventual destruction of Dutch ships and the loss of life will fall on the German Government and all the more heavily in the foreseeable event of Dutch ships being forced to enter the danger zone by constraint of adversary warships exercising the right of search."

Germany Says Sinking of Gamma Was Not Due to New Submarine Policy.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—A Reuter dispatch from The Hague says that in reply to the explanation asked by the Dutch Minister at Berlin regarding the destruction of the steamer Gamma by a German submarine, the German Government declared that this must in no wise be considered a consequence of the intensified submarine warfare. The Government promised a thorough investigation immediately the submarine returned to port, and added that it would not hesitate to give full satisfaction if Holland's complaint was justified.

The steamer Gamma was bound from New York for Amsterdam with a cargo of oil for the Dutch Government when she was sunk by a German submarine.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON FORCED TRAINING BILL IN THE SENATE

could elect either army or navy service, his wishes to be carried out as nearly as possible. Specific prohibition is made against the use of the force in strikes or other industrial disputes.

Officers and enlisted men of the regular services could be commissioned in the citizen army, but would receive the pay of their grades only while on active duty, not during training periods. Provision is made for commissioning volunteer officers, selected by examination from men who have had experience in the national guard, military or naval training camps, at military schools or colleges, or who have served their own six months' training period under the act.

Requiremens for Officers.

These officers would be liable annually for three years for two months' duty in training troops, and could be promoted only on examination and compliance with training regulations to be fixed by the President. Machinery for the discharge of officers on unfavorable findings as to their qualifications by efficiency boards also is provided.

The sale of intoxicating liquors to a member of the citizen army or navy while in uniform is forbidden, although sale and use of such for medicinal purposes is possible under regulation. Another feature is that men who have completed their training would be entitled to wear a rosette showing the class to which they belong.

Officials of the general staff are inclined to disapprove of the bill, particularly because of the six months' training period. They declare that even the year minimum fixed in the staff plan contemplated only 50 per cent of the efficiency of the average European requirements for training.

The staff officers are inclined also to feel that inadequate provision is made for training personnel. A force of 500,000 men, they say, requires a minimum of 17,000 officers, at least 50 per cent of whom must be professional soldiers, if anything resembling intensive training is to be given in six months. The full commissioned strength of the regular army under the national defense act, will be fewer than 12,000 officers, and it is pointed out that if 9000 of these were to be detached for training purposes for six months out of each year, training of the regulars or any use of that force would be virtually impossible. It is understood that the staff bill takes these points into consideration.

Representative Temple, in discuss the principles of international law volved in the submarine controversy, serted that the law was based on rights of neutrals.

Representative Miller of Minnes while admitting that a submarine ha right to sink a merchant ship, said it could do so only if the crew given a chance to escape. "If civili tion means anything," he declared, means mitigation of war. It means can't shoot down women, children noncombatants."

The arming of merchantmen was tacked by Representative Cooper of W consin, who said that submarines hav right to sink vessels so armed.

M'CUMBER WANTS TO KNOW WHAT U. S. CALLS 'OVERT ACT'

Tells Senate President Is Receding, by Stand Not to Ask Congress to Declare War.

CITES U-BOATS' RECORDS

House Engages in Long Discussion of the Rights of Neutral Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Senator McCumber of North Dakota addressing the Senate today on his resolution to have the Secretary of State inform the Senate of the exact views of this Government on the use and limitation of submarines in warfare, said that if the reports of the Cabinet meeting of yesterday are true the administration has receded from its position in the controversy with Germany and should explain what acts will be considered a direct "challenge."

Press reports of the Cabinet meeting indicated that the President would not ask Congress for a declaration of war, in the event of an overt act of Germany, but simply would request authority to take the necessary steps to protect the rights of Americans at sea.

"We shall now need a definition of an overt act," Senator McCumber said. "Generally speaking, an overt act is an act done in the open, public. In criminal law it is an act done in furtherance of a criminal design.

Thinks Limit Has Been Reached.

"Just how the German Government could do more than it has done to commit an overt act it is difficult for me to understand. The proclamation of blockade by that Government said in effect that any vessel coming into the war zone would be sunk and indicated that they would be sunk without warning. Since Feb. 1 75 vessels have been sunk and have been sunk without notice. On one, at least, the life of an American citizen was taken, and I believe one was an American ship.

"And yet we are told by the morning press that this Government will await an 'overt act.' Certainly, if we wait for a more definite inification of the purpose of the German Government to adhere to its declaration, there can be, in my judgment, no danger whatever of war.

"I wish to note that in giving out this information, if it is correctly given, the words 'American lives and American ships' are used, and not the words 'American lives or American ships.'

"Does this mean that we have further receded from our position and that the loss of American lives on a belligerent merchant vessel torpedoed by a submarine will not call for anything sterner than a protest? Does it mean that another Lusitania case will pass unnoticed by this Government? If that is true, then by every principle of justice we ought to notify the American people, and not only notify them, but take steps to prevent them from traveling on belligerent merchant vessels."

House Discusses Neutral Rights.

The rights of neutral merchant vessels in the present submarine warfare was the subject of protracted discussion in the House today in the course of a debate on the naval appropriation bill. Representative Temple of Pennsylvania, an authority on international law, was greeted with much applause when he voiced his support of the principle that a warship had no right, under the recognized rules of international war, to attack and sink an unarmed merchant vessel which made no attempt to resist.

Representative Moore of Pennsylvania argued that since the United States might easily be forced into a war which required the blockading of a foreign country, it was to the advantage of this country to agree to the use of submarines in the manner in which Germany uses them.

"Now the question arises," he said, "why should we continue to construct submarines at enormous expense if we are not going to use them for offensive and defensive purposes, and if we were forced to a crisis which necessitated the blockading of a foreign country, or a crisis which necessitated the blockading of our own coasts, would we use these submarines in the manner the nations now at war use them, and if we would so use them, what is our complaint against the other nations which are using them?"

Merchant Ship May Elect Course.

Representative Temple, in discussing the principles of international law involved in the submarine controversy, asserted that the law was based on the rights of neutrals.

"If a vessel resists capture," he pointed out, "it may be blown out of the water.

"If a vessel which is a merchant ship fires first on a submarine or any other warship it loses its rights as a noncombatant. The law is based on the rights of the neutrals concerned. The right of neutrals does not depend on the weapon that is used against their ships. A merchant ship may fire first, but in this case it loses its noncombatant character and it must take the consequences. By agreement and long tradition the choice rests with the merchant vessel whether it will be a combatant or a noncombatant."

Representative Miller of Minnesota, while admitting that a submarine had a right to sink a merchant ship, said that it could do so only if the crew were given a chance to escape. "If civilization means anything," he declared, "it means mitigation of war. It means you can't shoot down women, children and noncombatants."

The arming of merchantmen was attacked by Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, who said that submarines have a right to sink vessels so armed.

Minority Leader Mann suggested that it might at some future time be to the interest of the United States that the right of submarines to sink armed ships should be established.

"While the submarine was performing the ladylike operation of examining a ship's papers," he said, "the ship would probably sink the submarine. It is to our interest, if we have submarines, to give them the power of doing execution.

"Men cannot engage in a ladylike war. I cannot agree that the use of the submarines by the United States should be limited, as our advantage from the use of them should be as great as possible."

ALKALI IN SOAP BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

Dancer, the Bride of Son of Harvester Company President

MRS. FRANK R. HASKINS.

HARVESTER COMPANY PRESIDENT SON MARRIES DANCING GIRL

Had Followed Her to St. Louis and Kansas City; Several of His Relatives at Wedding.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Frank R. Haskins has married Miss Josephine Gordan, and they are living at 739 Irving Park boulevard. Haskins is the son of Robert C. Haskins, president of the International Harvester Co. of America. His wife was a dancer, known on the stage as Miss Joy Gardner. They were married yesterday afternoon in the Church of Our Savior by the Rev. J. D. McLaughlin.

Several of the bridegroom's relatives were present. His sister-in-law, Mrs. Paul Haskins, attended the bride, and his mother gave her away. Kenneth Burns acted as best man. Miss Marguerite Webb was bridemaid.

A few months ago young Haskins went to a roof garden. Joy Gardner danced. He fell in love with her and followed her when she went to Kansas City and St. Louis.

Young Haskins was just out of the University of Minnesota. The girl was young and very lovely. His mother sent detectives westward and begged them to prevent an elopement. The boy and the girl were going picnicking one day at Excelsior Springs and the detectives laid hands on him and sent a telegram to his mother.

Recently Miss Gordan has been dancing at a cafe here.

MEALS WILL FIT! STOP INDIGESTION, GAS AND SOURNESS

Eat without fear of acid stomach, heartburn, belching or dyspepsia.

The moment "Pape's Diapepsin" reaches the stomach, distress goes.

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will sweeten a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is usually a sign of acidity of the stomach.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches or dizziness. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin helps to neutralize the excessive acid in the stomach which is causing the food fermentation and preventing proper digestion.

Relief in five minutes is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to usually keep the entire family free from stomach acidity and its symptoms of indigestion, dyspepsia, sourness, gases, heartburn and headache, for many months. It belongs in your home.—ADV.

GERMAN ATTACKS FAIL

British Retain New Position in France—Teuton Aerodrome Is Damaged by Bombs.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The British offensive south of Kut-El-Amara was resumed sucessfully on Friday, says an official statement issued tonight. Under cover of a heavy bombardment, a portion of the new Turkish front line west of the Hai River was secured and consolidated, in the face of two counter attacks and two bombing attacks.

Further westward, the statement adds, Turkish trenches were penetrated and by successful bombing work were secured and consolidated along a front of 1200 yards.

German Attacks on New British Positions Repulsed.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The official statement from British headquarters in France issued tonight reads:

"Last night the enemy attacked our new positions east of Sailly-Saillisel after a heavy bombardment. The attacks were everywhere unsuccessful.

"The enemy attempted raids during the night southeast of Neuville-St. Vaast, east of Vermelles, and south of Neuve Chapelle, but were repulsed in each case with considerable losses, leaving a few prisoners in our hands.

"A party of our troops entered the enemy's lines east of Neuville-St. Vaast, destroyed a machine gun emplacement and returned without casualties. This afternoon, opposite Givenchy, we captured 25 prisoners, including one officer. In the last 24 hours we have taken 48 prisoners, including two officers.

"The artillery has been active on both sides of the Somme in the neighborhood of Serre and in the Ypres sector. Four explosions were caused in the enemy's line by our fire.

"Yesterday our bombs did considerable damage to an enemy aerodrome. One German airplane was destroyed in an aerial fight and another was brought down by anti-aircraft guns."

Commander of British Patrol Fleet Says They Are Sinking Submarines.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—In a letter read at the war loan meeting today, Vice Admiral Sir Reginald Bacon, commander of the Dover Patrol, is quoted as saying:

"If you will try as hard to do your duty ashore by raising a loan as we are doing at sea by sinking submarines and frustrating other evil devices, you will make the loan such a success that it will be a knockout blow to the enemy."

Activity on All Fronts Never Ceased, Berlin Paper Says.

BERLIN, Feb. 6, by wireless to Tuckerton, N. J., Feb. 10.—Although army headquarters statements of late have announced that there have been no incidents of importance," says the Berliner Tageblatt, "the fighting activity has not ceased at any place for even one moment. On the whole 1200-mile front in Belgium, France, Russia, Rumania and Macedonia, troops with rifle in hand are ready at any hour of the night and day to repulse the besieged enemy's attempts to break the iron ring.

"Batteries hidden in woods and covered by ice and snow, are ready to open fire at a second's notice. On hundreds of sectors there are artillery duels, surprising fire attacks and violent cannonades. Every day numberless isolated enterprises under hardship and danger are carried out. Pioneers are digging and constructing in haste and there is intense and feverish activity in thousands of underground telephone stations.

"At dawn airplane squadrons take to the air for daily reconnaissance and combat with enemy machines. Night and day columns of men carry to the foremost positions ammunition, food and mails and bring back sick and wounded. In thousands of dressing places and hospitals on the front an army of surgeons, ambulances and Red Cross nurses are incessantly working."

French Aviator Drops Bombs on Karlsruhe.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The following official report was given out today:

"Last night one of our aviators set forth to drop bombs on the railway station and barracks at Karlsruhe (in Germany, about fifty miles from the French border). His objectives were attained. He set forth in a French machine at 10:50 p. m., and returned at 2:10 a. m. this morning, his mission having been accomplished.

"German aviators dropped bombs this morning in the region of Dunkirk, and last night and again this morning on Amiens. There were no victims at Dunkirk. One woman was killed at Amiens. Bombs also were dropped on Nancy and in the region of Point St. Vincent. One civilian was killed and four were wounded."

AUTO HITS BOY AND VANISHES

Widow's Son Suffers Concussion of Brain and Cuts.

William Schell, 9 years old, son of Mrs. Margaret Schell, a widow, of 5373 Patton avenue, was run down on Union boulevard, near Cote Brilliante avenue, at 9:30 yesterday morning, by a two-seated runabout automobile. The driver put on full speed after the accident, and the number of the car was not ascertained. Flight under these circumstances is a felony, punishable by a prison term.

The boy was roller-skating in the street. He suffered concussion of the brain, and cuts on the head and the body.

EMPLOYERS SEND THEIR MEN TO BE NATURALIZED

Workmen to Go to Office in a Body and Be Paid for the Time Required.

Systematic naturalization of aliens, at the instance of their employers, will be conducted on a large scale this week in the naturalization office in the Federal building.

Several firms which employ considerable numbers of aliens have arranged to send them to the naturalization office in a body, and will pay them at the regular wage scale for the time spent in this way. Two of these firms sent an advance guard of men yesterday. They were the St. Louis Cordage Mills, which sent 12 men and promised to send 80 tomorrow, and the American Manufacturing Co., makers of bagging, who sent six and promised 12 more tomorrow.

The number of applications for first papers, in the week which ended yesterday, was 599, a greater number than had been previously received in any month. Yesterday's total was 81, and would have been nearly twice as great, but for the fact that the office closed at 1 o'clock. It will be open at 9 tomorrow morning. Six clerks were on duty yesterday.

Anxious to Protect Property.

M. R. Bevington, Chief Naturalization Examiner here, says applicants have been questioned closely about their motives. The great majority are men advanced in years, and the reason they give in most cases is that they are property owners and they fear that if war should come their property would be taken from them. There is a Missouri statute which provides that an alien cannot acquire title to property, but the State Supreme Court has held that only the State itself can attack the title in such cases.

The St. Louis office is headquarters for naturalization in eight states, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and parts of Tennessee and Illinois. Reports received by Bevington are that there is a rush for naturalization in all these states.

A scarcity of the necessary forms is threatened. Supplies have been ordered for the St. Louis office by telegraph, but they have not arrived. Unless supplies are received at St. Louis and at the stations in the eight states in a few days, there will have to be a temporary suspension, as no substitutes for the official forms can be used.

Nearly all the applicants are natives of Germany or Austria-Hungary. One native of Russia, Izzy Holtzman of 2214 Biddle street, was among the recent applicants, and said he had lived in St. Louis 16 years. When asked why he was suddenly desirous of citizenship, he replied, "I want to fight the Kaiser." Another man, who was less in earnest about the matter, left when he found that he would have to await his turn. He said he would go to a matinee.

One applicant was a German who said he had been in this country 10 years and that his wife was in Germany. He last heard from his wife three years ago, when he sent her the last money to provide for her.

Came to U. S. 30 Years Ago.

Mrs. Barbara Dora Likar, 50 years old, 6711 Raymond avenue, St. Louis County, said that she had come to this country 30 years ago. She said her husband, whom she divorced two years ago, refused to take out papers and she had neglected to do so. She wanted papers now because she had been told the Government would intern all foreigners if they were not naturalized.

Mrs. Annie Dofing, 68, 2301 Sullivan avenue, was in tears when she applied for papers. She stated she came here from Wyhl, Baden, Germany, in 1872, and that her husband had taken out his first papers, but had gone back to Germany for his health and had died there. She was crying because she had heard that the United States would take all her property in the event of war and would put her son in prison. After she had been given her papers she said: "Now they won't take my property and my son, will they?"

The driver was arrested, charged with carelessness.

GARDNER, UNDER LAW, CAN'T PAY $1140 BILL

Bill Posting Company Wondering How It Will Get Money for Campaign Service.

The Donovan Bill Posting Co. would like to know how it is going to collect from Gov. Gardner a bill for $1140 which the Governor cannot pay without violating the corrupt practices act relating to campaign expenditures. The Governor has not been heard from definitely on the subject, but he is probably grappling with the same perplexity.

The bill posting company, after posting bills for the Governor through the recent campaign, collected $1500 and posted a bill to Jefferson City for the $1140 balance. The Governor or somebody in his entourage seems to have got the impression that the bill posting company was asking for a job under the new administration. At any rate, the company received a "form" letter which is sent to applicants for jobs.

The "form" letter is all that it has received to date, and the company considers that a very poor substitute for $1140.

The trouble is, or at least one of the troubles is, that Gov. Gardner has filed a statement of his campaign expenses which shows that he spent $3800. That comes within about $200 of the maximum amount that he could spend without running afoul of the corrupt practices act. He could send the $200 to the bill posting company without getting into trouble, but that would leave $940 still due and would not help the situation much.

The bill posting company, doubtful of its ability to solve the situation, has hired a lawyer, Forest P. Tralles, who has posted another bill to Jefferson City, which up to date has not even evoked a "form" letter.

Tralles says the bill posting was ordered by the committee which handled the Gardner campaign. He does not know who compose the committee, but one of the members was Omar D. Grey, Gardner's campaign manager.

Tralles says the $1500 was paid through the Lafayette-South Side Bank, of which Ben Brinkman, one of the Governor's Colonels, is a vice president. He does not know whose money it was, and he is not concerned about that, but he would like to know where the other $1140 is coming from.

On the Governor's itemized expense account there was nothing about bill posting. The Governor was in the city last night, but neither he nor his campaign representatives could be reached last night for a statement.

TWO MEN KILLED BY GAS IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Farmer Found Dead and Companion Unconscious in Room in Hotel.

Two young Illinois farmers, who came to East St. Louis Friday night to take a civil service examination for positions as railway mail clerks, lost their lives by gas axphyxiation. They were James H. Schuetz, 23 years old, of Plainview, Ill., and James W. Morton, 21, of Shipman, Ill.

Schuetz was found dead in bed yesterday in his room on the third floor of the Summit Hotel, Sumit and Collinsville avenue. His companion, Morton, was unconscious and was taken to the Deaconess hospital, where he died last night.

There was in the center of the room a combination gas and electric fixtures. Gas was escaping from a partly opened gas jet. It is supposed that in attempting to turn the electric light on or off one of them turned the gas jet partly open and they went to sleep without discovering that gas was escaping into the room.

Schuetz and Morton registered at 9 o'clock Friday night and went to bed considerably later. A maid, who went to clean the room in the afternoon, found the door locked, and smelled gas. The door was forced open.

Both young men lived on farms not far apart, in Macoupin County, 60 miles north of East St. Louis. In their pockets were cards, bearing their photographs. These were issued at Washington, and authorized them to take the civil service examinations.

CHAUFFEUR HELD UP BY 5 MEN

Robbed of $12.75—Two Other Hold-ups Are Reported.

Fred W. Hurston, a chauffeur, of 1712 North Whittier street, was robbed of $12.75 by five men in an automobile who accosted him on Whittier, near Lucky street, about 7:30 last night. He said three men threatened him with revolvers and a fourth searched him.

Michael Cahill of 2348 Adams street, a baggageman, was robbed of $1.40 by two negroes in an alley west of Twenty-third street, between Clark and Adams avenue. One negro hit him on the head and knocked him down.

George True of 2235 Dickson street was robbed of $6 by three men on Twenty-fourth street, between O'Fallon and Dickson streets.

NATION'S HONOR IS SAFE WITH WILSON, LANSING DECLARES

People Can Trust Him to Act Fearlessly, Secretary Says in Address.

"A TIME OF ANXIETY"

Says Spread of Materialism Is Becoming Menace to National Character.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Secretary Lansing, speaking at a banquet of Amherst alumni here tonight, said that although the United States undeniably was near the verge of war, "there is always hope that our country may be spared the terrible calamity of being forced into the conflict."

"It is a time," he said, "of anxiety for us all, a time of heavy responsibility for some of us. We are looking forward into the uncertainties of the future and we are striving to read what it holds in store for us and for our country. It is now as it has been from the beginning the wish and endeavor of this Government to remain at peace with all the world, if it can do so with honor.

"I cannot discuss here the supreme subject of American thought today, either to review the past or to prophesy for the future. It is not a time to speak, it is a time to think, to think earnestly and deliberately. It is a time for coolness and self-restraint, rather than for surrender to the natural impulses which are aroused by great events affecting the national honor, the national duty and the national welfare of our country.

Can Trust Wilson, he Says.

"I can only say this: That with the same patience, the same forbearance, the same deliberation and care, with which he has met the previous difficulties in our foreign affairs, the President will meet the present crisis. The nation can trust him to act justly and honorably and fearlessly in whatever may lie before us. In his hands the destiny of the United States is sure; the national honor is safe."

The Secretary took for his subject "College Spirit." The loyalty of a college man for his alma mater, he said, is a sentiment making for patriotism, because it is one of the elements of national life not based on material interest or selfish motive.

NAVAL BILL TO BE UP FOR FINAL VOTE IN HOUSE TUESDAY

Committee, at Daniel's Request, Agrees to Special Rule to Expedite Emergency Amendments.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—At the request of Secretary Daniels, the House Rules Committee today receded from its determination not to report a special rule to expedite emergency amendments to the annual bill providing authority to commandeer shipyards and munitions plants and appropriating $1,000,000 for purchase of the basic patents of aircraft. Under the rule later agreed to, the amendments will be brought in immediately, but authorization to draft the personnel of the commandeered plants into the naval establishment is eliminated, together with some other details, which would have authorized sweeping change of policy as to hours of labor and other matters.

The committee adhered to its former decision not to provide for expediting the administration amendment for a $150,000,000 bond issue to cover cost of quick delivery of ships and war supplies. It is understood that another method of securing this legislation will be undertaken by a bill emanating from another committee.

The naval bill will be up for a final vote on Tuesday under an agreement reached today.

BRAZIL DECLINES TO RECOGNIZE THE U-BOAT BLOCKADE

Notifies Germany That It Will Be Held Responsible for Any Overt Acts.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 10.—The note handed to the German Secretary of Foreign Affairs by the Brazilian Minister at Berlin, in reply to Germany's declaration of the resumption of unrestricted submarine warfare, was made public here today. At the same time it was stated that Fofeign Minister Lauro Muller, in replying to President Wilson's suggestion that other neutral nations take the same position as the United States in respect to the German submarine campaign, will inform Washington that Brazil has declared to Germany that she does not recognize the submarine blockade as effective. The note will further say that Brazil leaves with Germany the responsibility for all acts from which Brazilian merchantment may suffer in violation of international law.

Text of Reply.

The text of the reply to Germany follows:

"I have transmitted to my Government by telegraph your letter of Feb. 3 in which your excellency informed me of the resolution of the German imperial Government to blockade Great Britain, its islands, the littoral of France and Italy and the Eastern Mediterranean by submarines which would commence operations Feb. 1. Your letter stated that the submarines would prevent all maritime traffic in the zones above mentioned, abandoning all restrictions observed up to the present in the employment of means for sea fighting and would use every military resource capable of the destruction of ships.

"The letter of your excellency said further that the German Government, having confidence that the Government of Brazil would appreciate the reasons for the methods of war which Germany was forced to take on account of the actual circumstances, hope that Brazilian ships would be warned of danger they ran if they navigated the interdicted zones, the same as passengers or merchandise on board any other ship of commerce, neutral or otherwise.

"I have just been directed to inform your excellency that Federal Government has the greatest desire not to see modified the actual situation as long as the war lasts, a situation in which Brizal has imposed upon itself the rigorous observance of the laws of neutrality since the commencement of hostilities between nations with whom she has had friendly relations.

"My Government has always observed this neutrality while reserving to itself the right which belongs to it and which it has always been accustomed to exercise, of action in these cases where Brazilian interests are at stake. The unexpected communication we have just received announcing a blockade of wide extent of countries with which Brazil is continually in economic relations by foreign and Brazilian shipping has produced a justified and profound impression through the imminent menace which it contains of the unjust sacrifice of lives, the destruction of property and the wholesale disturbance of commercial transactions.

Cannot Recognize Blockade.

"In such circumstances and while observing always and invariably the same principles, the Brazilian Government, after having examined the tenor of the German note, declares that it cannot accept as effective the blockade which has just been suddenly decreed by the Imperial Government. Because of the means employed to realize this blockade the extent of the interdicted zones, the absence of all restrictions, including the failure of warning or even neutral menaced ships, and the announced intention of using every military means of destruction of no matter what character, such a blockade would neither be regular nor effective and would be contrary to the principles of law and the conventions rules established for military operations of this nature.

"For these reasons the Brazilian Government in spite of its sincere and keen desire to avoid any disagreement with the nations at war with whom it is on friendly terms, believes it to be its duty to protest against this blockade and consequently to leave entirely with the Imperial German Government the responsibility for all acts which will involve Brazilian citizens, merchandise or ships and which are proven to have been committed in disregard of the recognized principles of international law and of the conventions signed by Brazil and Germany."

Peruvian Government Protests Against New Submarine Warfare.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 10.—The Peruvian Government has sent its reply to the German Minister respecting Germany's notification of submarine warfare and the new danger zones. In its note the Government declares that it reserves all rights for the protection of Peruvian citizens, ships and cargoes, to which neutrals are entitled under international law.

"However deplorable may be the exteremes to which the belligerents are carrying hostilities," continues the note, "now, under new threats to neutral trade, the Peruvian Government must declare that it cannot admit the resolution of which your Government has given notification, because the Peruvian Government considers it opposed to international law and the legal rights of neutrals.

"The recent odious case of the vessel Lorton, which resulted in a claim being made by my Government, proves the error and injustice of the submarine campaign now generalized in an unacceptable form by the closure of enormou zones of free seas with serious danger to the lives and interests of neutral countries."

EDISON, 70 TOMORROW, IS EMPLOYES' GUEST

Tells 2000 "I Am Working Hard for My Uncle Samuel;" Letter From President.

ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 10.—Thomas A. Edison, who will be 70 years old tomorrow, was the guest of honor at a banquet given in his workshop tonight by more than 2000 of his employes and business associates. Letters of congratulation and good will were read from President Wilson and many others of note from all parts of the world. A band of 40 Edison employes furnished music.

Mr. Edison went from his laboratory direct to the banquet.

The inventor's employes and business associates had been seated at tables which filled a room covering an entire floor of the Edison workshop. A birthday cake, 10½ feet in circumference and 40 inches high was placed in front of Mr. Edison. It was aglow with 70 electric candles. In the center was a figure of liberty holding an electric torch.

Mr. Edison made a brief speech in which he thanked his "fellow workers" for their remembrance of his birthday. He added: "I feel fine and I am working hard just now for my Uncle Samuel."

The letter from President Wilson was as follows: "I wish with all my heart that I might be present to take part in celebrating Mr. Edison's seventieth birthday. It would be a real pleasure to be able to say in public with what deep and genuine admiration I have followed his remarkable career of achievement. I was an undergraduate at the university when his first inventions captured the imagination of the world, and ever since then I have retained the sense of magic which what he did then created in my mind. He seems always to have been in the special confidence of nature herself. His career already has made an indelible impression on the history of applied science and I hope that he has many years yet before him in which to make his record still more remarkable."

TWO MEN HOLD UP SALOON, RETURN OWNER'S WATCH

Two men with drawn revolvers entered Henry Vocke's saloon, Thirteenth and Market streets, at 9 o'clock last night. They ordered Vocke and his tartender, Andrew Beible, and Fred Gerken of 3638 Cook avenue to hold up their hands.

They obeyed and the men took from Vocke money and checks which he had cashed for customers aggregating [illegible] They were taking his watch when he said: "Gee, I'd like to keep that, if you fellows don't mind. They tossed it back to him. From Fred Gerken they took $1.25 and permitted him to keep his watch. In searching Beible they overlooked $19.

The three men were ordered into a rear room and the roobers took [illegible] from the cash register and left. After a discreet wait Vocke came out and telephoned the police.

IMMEDIATE FOOD INQUIRY ORDERED BY THE PRESIDENT

Trade Commission and Department of Agriculture Are to Co-Operate.

PRICE STUDY TO BE MADE

Particular Attention Directed to Charges of Manipulation and Anti-Trust Violations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—At the direction of President Wilson the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Agriculture will begin an immediate investigation into the causes of advancing food prices in the United States, with special reference to alleged violations of the anti-trust acts. Congress will be asked to make an emergency appropriation for the inquiry.

The Trade Commission announced today that it had held a conference with Agricultural Department officials to work out preliminary plans for the investigation and at the same time it made public President Wilson's request for the inquiry. An adequate food supply, a matter of concern to the nation at all times, is of peculiar importance at the present, the President declared. Despite much that has been done towards obtaining definite information concerning the supply and demand of foods, it is not yet clear, he said, what measures are necessary to fundamental improvements.

The President's Letter.

President Wilson's letter directing the inquiry says:

"While the population of the nation has increased 26,000,000 since 1900, the production of the two leading cereals, corn and wheat, while tending to increase, has shown only a slight advance and that of the meat products in the same period has shown an increase of only 8,500,000,000 pounds, a decrease of 29 pounds per capita.

"It is obvious," the letter asserts, "that there will be no sufficient incentive to enlarged production if there does not exist an unobstructed and economical system of distribution. Unjustifiable fluctuations in prices are not merely demoralizing, they inevitably deter adequate production. It has been alleged * * * that the course of trade in important food products is not free, but is restricted and controlled by artificial and illegal means. It is of the highest public concern to ascertain the truth or falsity of these allegations.

"No business can be transacted effectively in an atmosphere of suspicion. If the allegations are well-grounded it is necessary that the nature and extent of the evils and abuses be accurately determined, so that proper remedies, legislative or administrative, may be applied. If they are not true, it is equally essential that the public be informed, so that unrest and dissatisfaction may be allayed."

The commission is ordered "to ascertain the facts bearing on alleged violations of the antitrust acts, and particularly upon the question whether there are manipulations, controls, trusts, combinations, conspiracies or restraints of trade out of harmony with the law or the public interest."

FORD PLAN TO RECLAIM MEN GIVEN DEMONSTRATION HERE

Manufacturer's Social Service Workers Seek to Obtain Parole for Man Charged With Robbery.

The method by which Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, is working to make useful citizens out of men with criminal records was demonstrated in St. Louis yesterday, when the case of John Hays, a machinist, under indictment for first degree robbery, was called in the Court of Criminal Correction for preliminary hearing.

When Hays was arrested a few days ago at the Ford plant at Highland Park, Mich., a representative of the Social Service Department of the Ford company called on Assistant Circuit Attorney McCullen and asked that Hays be permitted to return to his employment with the Ford company. He said the Ford company would be responsible for the man and expressed confidence that he could be reclaimed.

McCullen required Hays to come from Highland Park and give bond for trial, but said he would be willing to recommend a parole if the circumstances justified. Hays came here accompanied by social service men, but not by detectives. He gave bond.

Mrs. Robert T. Doffolow, 25 years old, of 501 Ohio avenue, East St. Louis, who was married last Thanksgiving day, died yesterday in St. Mary's hospital from burns inflicted in her attempt to kindle a kitchen fire with coal oil Friday evening.

Mrs. Doffolow was found lying unconscious in the hallway of her home, with her wedding and engagement rings on the floor beside her. It is believed she removed the rings after her clothing took fire. Her husband, an inspector for the Terminal Association, was serving on a jury in Belleville at the time of the accident.

Games and Contests Saturday Afternoon and Evening If Weather Is Favorable.

If the weather is favorable there will be an ice carnival on Sylvan Lake in Forest Park next Saturday afternoon and evening. The games and contests will be arranged by the Park Department.

The afternoon program will be principally for children, who will appear both as spectators and participants. Exhibition skating by professional and amateur skaters, and races in which boys and girls will be contestants will be among the afternoon events. There will be races for boys and girls under 10 years of age; for boys between 10 and 16 years old, and for youths of more than 16. Girls over 16 will be entered in a special race.

Several teams each of four boys will furnish the principal event of the evening—a mile relay race. They will carry lanterns which, if blown out, will have to be relighted before the racer can continue. The remainder of the evening attractions will be backward skating contests, hurdle and tandem races and races for couples.

Wires and lamps will be installed to light the lake, and colored lights will mark the course. Prizes will be awarded to the winners of the several contests and races. These will be donated by Edward Koenig and his father, H. C. Koenig, former president of the Western Rowing Club.

BOARD'S CHOICE FOR BLEWETT SUCCESSOR NARROWS TO FOUR

Caucus Called for Tuesday Night, When Superintendent of Institution Is Expected to Be Chosen.

It was learned last night that the Board of Education's choice for Superintendent of Instruction, to succeed the late Ben Blewett, had narrowed to four men. They are John W. Withers, principal of the Harris Teachers' College; Henry J. Gerling, Carl G. Rathmann and George P. Knox. The last three are Assistant Superintendents.

Although the Board caucused last Tuesday night a definite selection was not agreed upon, and it was necessary for the president, Ben F. Stromberg, to call another caucus for 7 p. m. Tuesday, an hour before the open board meeting, at which the selection of a superintendent will be announced.

A majority vote of the 12 members of the board is necessary to a choice.

The DUO-ART
The Most Wonderful of Modern Pianofortes

A PERFECT and comprehensive instrument for musical expression is the Duo-Art, and something tremendously more significant!—it brings unchanged to you the artistic musical performances of the greatest pianists of today! Ernest Schelling, pianist of international renown—a composer of high attainments—suggests in the following sentences, quoted from a recent interview, the entire confidence in which musicians of high standing hold the Duo-Art Pianola. Mr. Schelling says:

"I think the Duo-Art reproduction of an artist's carefully prepared record will present that artist at his best. For example, I consider my interpretation of the 10th Rhapsodie, which we heard a few minutes ago upon the Duo-Art, was played as well as I could play it in one of my best moods. That makes my position clear, doesn't it?"

The Duo-Art Pianola reproduces with wonderful fidelity the playing of great concert pianists. Such men as Schelling, Bauer, Godowsky, Gabrilowitsch, Grainger, who have had recording experience with the instrument, do not hesitate to substantiate this statement. The scores of prominent musicians who have heard the instrument are unanimous in their praise and endorsement.

And you will enjoy the Duo-Art even more keenly than these men who judge it so critically.

Remember that the Duo-Art Pianola is an instrument which you can play. It is the most perfect player-piano yet constructed. And it is a beautiful pianoforte for hand playing—a Steinway, Steck, Stroud or famous Weber.

He said he was awakened at 6:30 by a negro man, who ordered him to leave the house and then cut him. The police arrested Henry Lewis, 21 years old, who was identified by Morris as his assailant.

BANKER OF JOPLIN IS INCOMPETENT, PHYSICIANS FIND

Three Examine T. W. Cunningham, Who Wed Osteopath, and Their Report Is Filed.

SANITY INQUIRY PENDING

City and County to Try to Preserve a Bequest He Arranged for Road Fund.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., Feb. 10.—Three Joplin physicians today examined Thomas W. Cunningham, the 72-year-old banker, and after a two-hour session unanimously pronounced him wholly incompetent to handle any business or even personal affairs of any consequence. Their opinion was filed informally with the Probate Court and will be used as a foundation for the sanity inquiry which will be held next Thursday.

The hearing results from Cunningham's secret marriage to a 30-year-old osteopath, Dr. Zoe W. Wilkins, who recently sold for $300,000 the Cunningham National Bank of Joplin, which she stated Cunningham had given to her as a wedding present, and of the recent transfer of $250,000 of his Jasper County property for a 6000-acre Michigan farm.

Deals After Suit Was Filed.

These deals were made after Mrs. Tabitha Taylor, 71, had sued Cunningham for divorce as a common-law wife, and before she sued Mrs. Wilkins Cunningham for $250,000 for alienation of Cunningham's affections.

At a special conference today of the members of the Jasper County Road Commission the members individually pledged themselves to undertake the financing of a rigid inquiry into the marriage of Cunningham and Mrs. Wilkins, and the circumstances under which Cunningham gave to her 1950 of the 2000 shares of the Cunningham National Bank of Joplin.

Those who attended the meeting and reiterated an informal agreement entered into for this purpose several days ago were John F. Wise, president of the Miners' Bank; H. V. Murphy, vice president of the Miners' Bank; Mayor Hugh McIndoe and former State Senator John Malang, chairman of the road district.

Mayor McIndoe pledged all assistance the city legally can extend in an inquiry of this nature, and through the City Counselor an effort will be made to obtain from the City Council and county officials an appropriation of money to support the inquiry.

Basis of Public's Interest.

The interest of the city and county is based upon the existence of a will, the contents of which were revealed to the members of the Road Commission several years ago, in which the banker leaves all of his property, with the exception of $10,000 bequests to each of his sisters and brothers, to the road district for the extension of the county's good road system.

He was one of the county's most earnest advocates of good roads, and is a member of the Road Commission.

Cunningham and Dr. Williams Married in Kansas City, Nov. 21, 1914.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 10.—It was learned here today that Thomas W. Cunningham and Zoe W. Wilkins were married here the evening of Nov. 21, 1914, on a license issued by the Recorder of Davies County, at Gallatin, Mo.

The license was obtained the same day the marriage was performed by the Rev. W. T. McClure, pastor of the Westport M. E. Church, at Mrs. Wilkins' home on South Park avenue. The license gave Kansas City as the residence of both persons.

Cunningham's bride two weeks ago announced that the marriage took place two years ago, and promised later to disclose the place and exact time. Cunningham, upon his arrival in Carthage last Wednesday, the day after his arrest here, said that he was married at some town in Colorado, but did not remember the exact place or the time. He said that his bride could explain that.

The circumstances surrounding the wedding ceremony were detailed today by the Rev. Mr. McClure.

"They called me on the telephone in the afternoon," said Mr. McClure, "and asked me to come to the residence of Dr. Wilkins at 8 o'clock that evening and perform the ceremony. On my arrival they asked that no publicity be given to the marriage. Cunningham was silent during the evening. There was a young woman and an older man at the home and a servant girl to serve refreshments. During the whole evening Cunningham did not say more than a half dozen words. The conversation was carried on by the bride. It was she who explained the details of their affairs, in so far as they related to the avoidance of undue publicity."

BARTENDER SHOT TRYING TO GRAB ROBBER'S REVOLVER

Wounded in Thigh After Scuffle for Weapon; Men Force Chauffeur to Drive Them Away.

Two men entered John Cleary's saloon, 1701 Cass avenue, at 10:30 o'clock, last night, and asked for a box which they had left there earlier. Cleary told them it was behind the bar. One went back of the bar, opened a drawer and took out Cleary's two revolvers. The other, standing near the door, then drew revolvers and the two covered Cleary and several customers and ordered them to hold up their hands.

They obeyed and the man behind the bar took $8.35 from the cash register. Cleary's bartender, Lonnie Casey, of 1508 Hogan street, entered from a rear room and held up his hands, but when he saw the man at the cash register lay down one of his weapons he sprang for it. He was not quick enough and after a scuffle he was shot in the left thigh.

The robbers ran out and jumped into an automobile that was waiting for Casey. They compelled the negro chauffeur to drive them away. They took Cleary's revolvers with them.

Machine Shop Building of the Union Switch and Signal Co., Near Pittsburg, Burns.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 10.—The machine shop building at Swissville, a suburb of the Union Switch and Signal Company, until recently engaged in filling munition orders for the European Governments, was destroyed by fire early tonight with a loss estimated at $4,000,000. The machine shop building covered 450,000 square feet and contained the emergency hospital, packing room, experimental department and general machine shops. More than 2000 shells probably were destroyed The president of the company, A. L. Humphrey, said no shells had been manufactured at the plant since November. The company, which was founded by the late George Westinghouse in 1881, was recently taken over by the Westinghouse Airbrake Company.

It was testified at the inquest that the wire carried only 110 volts and that other employes had received shocks from 240 volts without injury. A verdict of accident was returned. Schneider lives in St. Louis, but the Coroner did not learn his address.

Former United States Senator Mason

Pioneer in Pure Food and Drugs Legislation, Father of Rural Free Delivery System

Takes Nuxated Iron

to obtain renewed strength, power and endurance after the hardest fought political campaign of his life, in which he was elected Congressman-at-large from the State of Illinois. The results he obtained from taking Nuxated Iron were so surprising that

SENATOR MASON NOW SAYS

Nuxated Iron Should Be Made Known to Every Nervous, Run-down, Anaemic Man, Woman and Child.

Opinion of Dr. Howard James, late of United States Public Health Service, who has prescribed and thoroughly tested Nuxated Iron in his own private practice.

WHAT SENATOR MASON SAYS:

"I have often said I would never recommend medicine of any kind. I believe that the doctor's place. However, after the hardest political campaign of my life, without a chance for a vacation, I had been starting to court every morning with that horrible tired feeling one cannot describe. I was advised to try Nuxated Iron. As a pioneer in the pure food and drug legislation, I was at first loath to try an advertised remedy, but after advising with one of my medical friends I gave it a test. The results have been so beneficial in my own case I made up my mind to let my friends know about it, and you are at liberty to publish this statement if you so desire. I am now sixty-five years of age, and I feel that a remedy which will build up the strength and increase the power of endurance of a man of my age should be known to every nervous, run-down anaemic man, woman and child."

Senator Mason's statement in regard to Nuxated Iron was shown to several physicians who were requested to give their opinions thereon.

Dr. Howard James, late of the United States Public Health Service, said:

Senator Mason is to be commended on handing out this statement on Nuxated Iron for public print. There are thousands of men and women who need a strength and blood-builder, but do not know what to take. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to give increased strength, snap, health and staying power. It enriches the blood, brings roses to the cheeks of women and is an unfailing source of renewed strength, endurance and power for men who burn up too rapidly their nervous energy in the strenuous strain of the great business competition of the day!"

Dr. King, a New York physician and author, said: "I heartily indorse Senator Mason's statement in regard to Nuxated Iron. There can be no strong iron men without iron. Pallor means anemia. Anemia means iron deficiency. The skin of anemic men and women is pale; the flesh flabby; the muscles lack tone; the brain fags, and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy.

"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated corn meal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked, are responsible for another grave iron loss.

"Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful health and strength to a ripe old age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food, by using some form of organic iron—Nuxated Iron—just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt."

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician who has studied abroad in great European medical institutions, said: "Senator Mason is right. As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength builders.

"Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of health, strength and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, nothwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking organic iron—Nuxated Iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 he was care-worn and nearly all in. Now at 50, after taking Nuxated Iron, a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next, take two five-grain tablets of ordinary mixed nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again, and see how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, rundown people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely rid themselves of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from 10 to 14 days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. The iron demanded by Mother Nature for the red coloring matter in the blood of her children is, alas! not that kind of iron. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete and prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray; while many another has gone down in inglorious defeat smiply for the lack of iron."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in nuxated iron that they offer to forfeit $100 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Co., Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Co., Keifer Drug Co. and all good druggists.

From the Congressional Directory, published by the United States Government—"Wm. E. Mason, Senator from Illinois, was elected to the 50th Congress in 1887, to the 51st Congress in 1891, defeated for the 52d Congress 1892, elected Senator to the 55th Congress 1897 to 1903."

Senator Mason is now Congressman-elect from the State of Illinois.

Senator Mason's championship of Pure Food and Drugs legislation, his fight for the rural free delivery system and his strong advocacy of all bills favoring labor and the rights of the masses as against trusts and combines made him a national figure at Washington and endeared him to the hearts of the working man and the great masses of people throughout the United States. Senator Mason has the distinction of being one of the really big men of the nation. His strong endorsement of Nuxated Iron must convince any intelligent thinking reader that it must be a preparation of very great merit and one which the Senator feels is bound to be of great value to the masses of people everywhere, otherwise he could not afford to lend his name to it, especially after his strong advocacy of pure food and drugs legislation.

Since Nuxated Iron has obtained such an enormous sale—over three million people using it annually—other iron preparations are often recommended as a substitute for it. The reader should remember that there is a vast difference between ordinary metallic iron and the organic iron contained in Nuxated Iron, therefore always insist on having Nuxated Iron as recommended by Dr. Howard James, late of the United States Public Health Service; Dr. Schuyler C. Jacques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, and other physicians. In this connection Dr. Howard James says:

"Iron to be of the slightest value to the human system must be in a combination which may be easily assimilated. In the case of metallic salts of iron, iron acetate, etc., it is very doubtful if sufficient actual iron can be taken up and incorporated into the blood to be of any service, especially in view of the disadvantages entailed by its corrosive action upon the stomach and the damaging effect upon the dental enamel. When, however, we deal with iron in organic combination, such for instance as albuminate, or, better still, Nuxated Iron, a far different story is told. We will observe no destructive action upon the teeth; no corrosive effect upon the stomach. The iron is readily assimilated into the blood and quickly makes its presence felt in increased vigor, snap and staying power."

Monk Fowler Is Matched to Fight Joe Genail at Stag A. C.'s Next Smoker

Heavyweight Title Factor and Son Who Likes to Watch Him Work Out

FRED FULTON AND FRANK FORCE FULTON.

FROM a joke to serious championship factor within 12 months is the progress Heavyweight Fred Fulton can claim to have legitimately made.

When Fulton's name was mentioned last year about this time as being in line for a match with the world's champion, he and his supporters were laughed out of it. Frank Moran was chosen instead.

Since that time Willard has come along splendidly. He fought five fights last year knocking out Jim Flynn, Al Reich and Andre Anderson, besides beating Porky Flynn in 20 and 10 round contests.

Recently he stopped Tom Cowler in less than one round, and gained a lot of friends thereby. Tomorrow comes the hardest test he has yet faced—a 10-round go with Charley Weinert, at New York.

Weinert weighs 185 pounds, Fulton 220; Weinert is 5 feet 11 inches tall, Fulton 6 feet 4 inches; Weinert's reach is several inches shorter than Fulton's.

Negotiations for a match between Fulton and Willard are under way and will be concluded, if Willard's demands can be met—provided Fulton wins tomorrow.

Fulton's little son is now his constant companion. He has been with his father at Goshen, N. Y., where the latter has been training on the estate of Grant Hugh Brown. The little fellow watches his father workout each day, dispatches state.

Strike, Set for Feb. 20, May Never Be Launched

American League Heads Assert They Have Enough Players Signed Now to Start the Season; National Contracts Arriving—Fultz Appears a Loser Now.

By John E. Wray.

WITH only ten days remaining before Dave Fultz's strike order, set for Feb. 20, goes into effect, magnates are smiling the well-known Sphinx output and pointing with pride to Ban Johnson's statement that 85 per cent of American League players have signed.

While not so much is heard from the National Leaguers, the fact that Charles Weeghman has signed 27 men indicates that the difficulty of landing players is in direct proportion to the size of the pay offered, rather than to the potency of the Fraternity head's orders.

It is generally believed—and claimed by the club owners—that nothing but a calamity can stop the American League from opening with eight good teams. This, if true, breaks the strike, regardless of the National League's condition.

The belief that the strike will be ended before it has begun, so to speak, grew with the announcement that Fultz had sought a conference with minor league heads, after first announcing that the complaints concerned only five leagues, instead of all the minors. Whether rightly or not, it was construed as a backdown.

It is almost safe to say that April 11 will see both leagues opening with very few stubborn holdouts pleading for readmission.

It Happens in Baseball.

THANKS to the fault of a system of employment which prevents a baseball player from peddling his services to the highest bidder, the diamond star, in self-defense, has invaded the field of the lead-pipe guy and the dark-lantern man. On their face, his mthods of holding up his employer are sometimes so unreasonable as to cost them the sympathy of the wondering fans, at times.

We have in mind the case of George Foster, the Red Sox pitcher, who was important in establishing the record of Charley Barret as an ivory hunter of note.

George was a great right hander two years ago. Last year his arm failed and it's a question whether, like the immortal Joe Wood's, it has not gone up in "smoke." Last year he received $5500 salary plus $3800 world's series money.

Yet, although his arm is a dubious asset, he asks a raise of $500, and $200 expenses for his wife's trip to Hot Springs and back on the training trip!

The Player's Angel.

THERE is nothing conditional about the contract, so the story runs. Thus, if George failed to round into form, he would sit down and draw his salary, regardless.

Ballplayers argue that since Foster's arm went bad in the service of the Red Sox he is therefore entitled to some consideration, even though he prove a dead one. Also, because of his previous inability to dispose of his own prowess to the best bidder, he holds that he lost several additional thousands of dollars some rival club might have offered for him, in an hour of need.

It's queer logic. Yet a baseball system which sometimes sentences a great player to a career with an impecunious club, unable to pay him a deserved wage, must expect to run foul of some such back fire.

Why Not Conditional Contracts?

THE miracle is that more contracts are not written conditional on performances, or the club's success during the season.

On the one hand both employer and player ought to consider equitable a contract which calls for increased pay for exceptional performance. And on the other hoof, a system of profit-sharing by the club owners would go far toward contenting players with a life beside which a feather-bed seems a thorny pallet.

The Fraternity's Future.

BAN JOHNSON'S edict that "Fultz must go" has aroused some curiousity as to the possible future of the Fraternity leader, if the outcome of the threatened "strike" is unfavorable to avid. Here are some questions asked:

Will the organization be wiped out?

Will it survive under new leadership?

Will it simply register one defeat and go on fighting?

Will it merge in a proposed new organization, represented by a board of three players, as now proposed (evidently by the magnates).

The only way Ban Johnson can put Fultz and his Fraternity off the map is by discrediting Fultz with the members. But the mere defeat of Fultz's plans, at this time, will not be sufficient to break up the organization or knock out the David of baseball. The players need an organization and need a representative to fight their legal battles.

If they lose the present fight it will not be because they have not had in their hands the power to win, but that they lack belief in the importance and justness of the cause they are fighting for.

There is hardly any doubt that the Fraternity will continue to exist in some form, probably its present one. If it does, an effort will be made to line it up with the American Federation of Labor, next April, after which it may be a more formidable organization to oppose.

The Fraternity as a Union.

VERY queer ideas of the effect of entering the Federation have been advanced by interested persons.

CLEVELAND QUINT BEATS YEATMAN IN FAST GAME, 20-18

Denver 34, Colorado College 32.

Showing speed that almost bewildered their worthy adversaries, the basketball players of Cleveland High School last night torpedoed the athletes of Yeatman High, 20-18, in the feature game of the weekly interscholastic league schedule.

This was Yeatman's first defeat of the season and served the purpose of keeping the ultimate outcome of the titular struggle in doubt, thereby sustaining interest in a race that seemed all but over at the halfway mark.

Cleveland was too much for the league leaders last night, especially after Placke and Menze, the Cleveland forwards, got their running attack under way. Between them they scored 14 points, Menze caging the ball for four field goals. Kraehe, who alternated at center and guard, added the other six.

Hausladen was the star for Yeatman scoring 7 points, while Van Laehsten and Wettle each added 4. Linnemeyer scored 3. A peculiar feature of Yeatman's game was the fact that Winkleman, the star center of the North Siders, didn't cage a ball.

Yeatman Plays Two More.

Yeatman has two more games to play, meeting Central next Saturday and Soldan on March 3. An even break in these games will yield at least a tie for the title, for Yeatman, even though Cleveland should win all its remaining games. Cleveland, just now, is runner-up, with a mark of 4—2 against Yeatman's 5—1.

In their game last night, these teams were very evenly matched, the score at the end of the first half being indicative of this. They left the floor for the intermission with Cleveland leading, 12—11. The South Siders came back with a rush and slightly increased this lead, and although Yeatman made a gallant finish, Cleveland held tenaciously on.

Central Wins Easily.

Central ran rough-shod over the McKinley tail-enders, winning by the top-heavy score of 61—23. McElwee with 25 points and McElwee with 22 were the individual stars of this game. So far, McKinley hasn't won a game this season and now threatens to finish the year with an unbroken run of defeats.

More than 650 persons witnessed last night's double-barreled show.

CHARLEY SPENCER WINNER "DOUBLE TARGET" SHOOT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 10.—The international amateur white flyer championship, the feature event of the thirteenth annual interstate shoot, commonly known as the midwinter shoot, was not completed as expected today and the 21 marksmen will all shoot the remaining 40 of their 100 rounds tomorrow. Riley Thompson of Cainsville, Mo., led the field today with 58 kills out of 60 tries. Ben Goff of Winchester, Ky., was second with 57, while third place went to Frank Fuller of Milwaukee, with 56.

C. G. Spencer, professional, of St. Louis, won the double target championship cup, open to professionals and amateurs, breaking 87 out of 100 clay pigeons. O. C. Funderbunk of Detroit, amateur, and W. R. Crosby of O'Fallon, Ill., professional, tied for second place with 81. William Wetleaf, amateur, of Jewell, Io., was third, with 77. An erratic wind lowered the scores. The cup, which was held by George Nicolai of Kansas City, is valued at $500.

Eastern Tennis Men to Keep Up Fight for Amateur Code

Friday's Defeat a Mere Setback

George Adee and His Associates Insist That "Sporting Goods" and "Expense" Clauses of Proposed Rule Changes Are Right and Must Win Out.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Men prominent in lawn tennis affairs, who are closely associated with the executive committee of the National Association, declared today that the fight was only begun to free the sport from the taint of commercialism.

West Will Soon Control Tennis Affairs, Veteran Warns Eastern Leaders

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.

EDWIN P. FISHER, the veteran player and famous a decade ago as the holder of several championships, sat through the annual meetings of the United States Lawn Tennis Association at the Waldorf, on Friday evening, and after watching developments closely, remarked to certain Eastern leaders on leaving the room:

"The West kicked the tar out of the East in the recent political campaign. It will soon do the same thing in lawn tennis, if those in control do not watch their steps."

A new campaign of education will be instituted in the hope that when next the issue is presented the action upon it will be more far-sighted.

George Adee, who again was elected president, Bob Wrenn, and other leaders who are in favor of purging the sport, were disappointed but not discouraged when the delegates defeated the proposed amateur rule.

The delegates, most of whom came instructed to the meeting, were about evenly divided for and against the new rule; but as a two-thirds vote was necessary for passage, it was not hard for those opposed to kill the proposed legislation and to prevent declaring ineligible for amateur competition Maurice E. McLoughlin, William M. Johnston and other famous players who have entered into the sporting goods business.

Likewise they refused to make it a penalty for a player to receive expenses and entertainment while competing in a tournament.

Altogether the new rule, over which the members of the executive committee had worked so untiringly, was torn to tatters before the meeting adjourned in the wee small hours yesterday morning at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Rarely has any session in recent years been so well attended. It exceeded even the meeting two years ago at the time the national championship tournament was transferred from Newport to New York.

East Supported Changes.

The majority of the eastern clubs were lined up on the side of enacting the new amateur rule. Julian S. Myrick, Bob Wrenn and Karl H. Behr pleaded for the amendment and spoke forcefully in its favor.

The opposition was quite as well presented by Charles Carland of Pittsburg and J. C. Rohlfs, secretary of the Pacific Coast Association and the delegates finally lined up against what several times was designated as class legislation.

The first real test came when the clause prohibiting the payment of expenses was put to a vote. It received a majority, the ballot showing 153 in favor to 115 against, but it was considerably short of the two-thirds vote necessary to pass an amendment to the by-laws.

The clause relating to the sporting goods business met with a similar fate, although R. Norris Williams II, the national champion, tried to save it with a compromise amendment.

Williams aimed to get the rule through by permitting those already in the sporting goods business to continue as amateurs, which would protect McLoughlin and his co-workers.

The amendment was substituted for the more drastic rule suggested by the Executive Committee by a vote of 139 to 134. Bob Wrenn, Karl Behr and Julien S. Myrick spoke in favor of the amendment, but even then this compromise measure failed.

The rule prohibiting a club or association holding a tournament or matches at which gate receipts are charged from contributing to the expenses of players passed along into oblivion.

The whole thing just drifted back to the old rule that an amateur is an amateur, until he is paid cash money for his services.

The project to eliminate the word "championship" from tournaments of minor importance did not stand a chance. The delegates felt the word helped stimulate the sport in small places and recked not that it carried little real meaning. The idea of having an official Proxy Committee also was snowed under.

Strangely enough, when Dick Crosen of Cleveland and M. H. Wildes of the Northwest told of players receiving money to compete in tournaments, the delegates remained unmoved. Crosen said he did not want to inconvenience the lawn tennis tourists. He related how he had heard represetatives of two clubs debating which was to have Willie Davis and Johnston, the Californians, at their respective tournaments, the Dayton man being triumphant because his club had paid expenses to the tune of $150.

Wildes related how tournament managements of Tacoma and Seattle had entered into rivalry, Tacoma finally winning because expenses were paid only to players who agreed not to compete in the tournament at Seattle.

The one thing that the Easern delegates were able to do was to place all of the national championships tournaments except the clay court on Eastern courts. The national singles and the juniors and boys were awarded to the West Side Tennis Club for its field of turf at Forest Hills.

Western Delegate Protests.

With the East picking all of the tournament plums, Louis H. Waidner, president of the Western Association, hotly charged that there was danger of his association seceding from the national association.

He charged that with all of the western delegates from the Pacific Coast to Chicago favor keeping the national doubles in the west, that the eastern clubs had ignored the wishes of the west, and aided by the improper distribution of the vote, had wrested from his section of the country its rightful heritage in the sport. He moved and secured the appointment of a committee to report on a proper apportionment of the voting so as to equalize its effects.

Apparently the delegates believed that proper restrictions should be placed upon the entry list to the national championship tournament. No objection was raised. The conditions were that the list must close 10 days prior to the tournament. To be eligible competitors must have been ranked among the first 20 during the past five years, or have been semifinalists or better in at least two tournaments during the season, or have played in at least three sanctioned tournaments and with a reasonably good record, according to the committee of management of the tournament or be acceptable to the executive committee, if from foreign countries, and deemed sufficiently skilled to qualify. It was freely predicted that these qualifications would stimulate the list.

M. A. A. Whales Defeat Hamilton Club Swimmers

Chicago Natators Lose, 37-27, in Return Meet in Local Tank.

The M. A. A. Whales, the swimming team of the Missouri Athletic Association, took revenge on their old-time rivals, the Hamilton A. C. Seals of Chicago, in the Cherry Diamond tank last night, defeating the visitors by the score of 37 to 27. The Chicagoans had trounced Coach Whitaker's team in their first dual meet in Chicago last December.

The competition was keen throughout, and the final outcome was decided by the two last events, both of which the local team took in rather easy fashion.

W. H. Cox, of the visitors, was high man in the point gathering, finishing with a total of 13 points, two firsts and a second, while Gus Haenschen garnered a total of 10 by taking firsts in the 50-yard swim and the fancy diving.

Twenty-seven swimmers made the trip from Chicago, and are being entertained today as the guests of the local association. Summary:

Plunge for distance—Cox, H., first, 72 feet; Kaiser, M., second, 62 feet; Stone, M., third, 61¼ feet.

Fifty-yard swim—Haenschen, M., first; Davis, H., second; Kaiser, M., third. Time, 30s.

Fancy diving—Haenschen, M., first, 73 points; Swatek, H., second, 65 points; Carlson, H., third, 64 points.

Fifty-yard back stroke—O'Neil, M., first; Cox, H., second; Welch, H., third. Time, 39 2-5s.

Two-hundred-yard swim—Evans, M., first; Swatek, H., second; Niekamp, M., third. Time, 2m 47 3-5s.

Fifty-yard breast stroke—Cox, H., first; Davis, H., second; O'Neil, M., third. Time, 38 3-5s.

Two-hundred-yard relay—M. A. A. Whales, Kaiser, Smith, Evans, Haenschen, first; H. A. C. Seals, Welch, Cox, Davis, Swatek, second. Time 2m 5s.

Basketball game won by M. A. A. Whales. Score, 12 to 0.

Diedrichsen Will Play First Game of Season Today

Star Forward Will Line Up With Innisfails in Clash With the St. Leos.

When the Innisfails take the field against the crippled St. Leos in the opening and feature game at Robison Field this afternoon they will be strengthened by the return of Matt Diedrichsen, their star forward to the game. It will be the first game played by Diedrichsen since he was injured while in Sweden with the American team last summer.

With Diedrichsen back in the game, Slater, a youngster recently snared from the Municipal League will be sent to the bench by Manager Willie Foley, who still thinks his eleven will win the pennant.

The Leos are still in a pretty badly crippled condition, it being announced that Manager Bull Brannigan and Brother Dike, as well as Tommy O'Hanlon, the best young halfback seen here in many days, would not play another game this season. It is expected though that Brannigan will be able to put 11 men on the field.

The Leading Ben Millers and the Naval Reserves, who have slipped badly since the first of the year, will fight it out in the closing encounter. With a hard, fast field, the Navals will have a good chance of coming through with a victory. A wet field, and—well it looks like another for the Millers.

Phil Kavanaugh will referee. The initial battle starts at 2 o'clock. And it should be some "battle."

HARVARD CLUB PLAYER WINS SQUASH LAURELS

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Eric S. Winston of the Harvard Club defeated his clubmate, Anderson Dana, in three straight games in the final round of the National Squash Tennis Association championship tournament at the Yale Club here today.

When Winston won the title last year Dana was the other finalist, and by today's victory Winston obtained permanent possession of the championship trophy. The scores were 18—14, 15—6, 15—6.

"Grant H. Brown"—It's All You Hear in New York Town

GRANT HUGH BROWN

In One Month New Sporting Promoter Has Side-Tracked "Tex" Rickard.

GRANT HUGH BROWN is the only pebble on the New York sporting beach, just now. All previous promoters have been backed into oblivion. New Yorkers ask: "Who is Tex Rickard, anyhow?" it seems so long since the former faro-bank dealer and promoter of famous fights has had the center of the limelight.

And yet that was only a month ago!

The Brown bandwagon, with full brasses sounding, was first heard in the offing, late last year, as promoter of a race track in Cuba and the (alleged) Fulton-Frank Moran bout, then destined for Havana. Since that time he has amplified into:

The (alleged) purchaser of the Madison Square Garden.

The organizer of the (in embryo) Sportsman's Club of America.

The maker of the (doubtful) match between Willard and Fulton.

The owner of a $500,000 (said to be) estate at Goshen, N. Y.

The promoter of the matches bona fide between Les Darcy and Al McCoy; and between Charley Weinert and Fred Fulton.

Brown doesn't hide his identity nor silence the still small voice of publicity. New York reports that, in print, he is one of the most daring speculators that ever gave Wall street a sick spell.

Brown a "Daring" Promoter.

He has, however, figured in many legal proceedings. One of his most daring enterprises was the organization of the United Cobalt Exploration Co. in 1906. Some of the details of this became public four years later when several of the investors, who had bought some $50,000 worth of the stock, assigned their claims to William T. R. Price and Dunellen Van Schalk, who brought suit for the recovery of the money on the ground they had been induced to invest through fraud. In the end, Mr. Brown won out.

Mr. Brown was interested in numerous other Wall Street flotations and always seems to have come through with a clean bill of health though in 1908 he went through bankruptcy proceedings on claims of $43,000. He was discharged in 1910, having arranged with his creditors to pay 100 cents on the dollar, 10 per cent cash and 10 per cent additional each 60 days thereafter.

In 1905 he bought the "Haight Park" estate from Ex-Chief of Police John McCullagh, valued at $150,000. He made some improvements, changed its name to Brownleigh Park and it became, in the public press, a half million dollar estate.

At present the half million dollar estate at Goshen is largely a pasturage for mules. There are reputed to be 10,000 quartered there, all owned by the Russian Government, out of the keep of which Mr. Brown makes from 4 cents in winter, to 15 cents in summer, profit in the matter of feeding.

Mathey and Hurd Win First-Round Matches in Indoor Tennis Tourney

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The appearance of Dean Mathey, one of the Eastern team that will journey to the Pacific coast next month, Alrick H. Man Jr., former Yale captain, and Clifton B. Herd, the Californian, held the interest of tennis followers at the opening round of the national indoor championship tournament here today. The light was good and the playing fast. Mathey, using his famous cross fire shots, defeated Dansforth Geer Jr., 6—0, 6—1. Herd was very severe overhead and left Abraham Bassford Jr., whom he defeated, few chances for returns. The important matches in the first round follows:

Dean Mathey, Cranford, N. J., beat Dansforth Geers Jr., New York, 6—0, 6—1; E. A. Walbridge, Crescent A. C., beat R. C. Doggett, New York, 6—2, 6—1; L. Vandeventer, Princeton, beat C. P. Goodhue, New York, 6—3, 6—4; R. B. Haines, Columbia, beat King Smith, New York, 2—6, 6—1, 6—3; F. T. Hunter, New York, beat A. von Bernuth, New York, 6—3, 6—2; Carl Jolliff, New York, beat I. F. Hartman, New York, 6—3, 6—2; D. M. Phillips, New York, beat E. Binzen, Fordham, 6—4, 4—6, 7—5; H. L. Bowman, New York A. C., beat J. L. Anderson, New York, 6—1, 6—2; Craig Biddle, Philadelphia, beat Harold L. Taylor, Brooklyn, 6—4, 6—0; C. B. Herd, California, beat A. Bassford Jr., New York, 6—2, 6—2; A. H. Man Jr., New York, beat N. C. Stevens, Morristown, 6—0, 18—16; H. Parker, Cedarhurst, beat H. W. Robinson, New York, 6—1, 6—0; E. T. Appleby, Columbia University, beat C. M. Ammermin, New York, 6—1, 6—0; B. H. Letson, New York, beat Willard Botsford, Columbia University, 6—4, 9—7.

KEEN KUTTERS DEFEAT COMMERCE ELEVEN, 1-0

The Keen Kutters defeated the Commerce soccer team, 1—0, in the only game played to a decision by the Saturday afternoon division of the Municipal Soccer League. In the other game the Edens failed to show and the Arcades claimed the game on a forfeit, 2—0.

ERNIE KOOB SIGNS; BROWN BALL TEAM NOW STRIKE PROOF

Southpaw Hurler Sends In Twentieth St. Louis Player Contract.

CARDS MAY LOSE BOONE

Huggins Declares Waivers Were Recalled as Soon as He Put in a Claim.

By W. J. O'Connor.

Ernie Koob,, who is to do his own work plus Eddie Plank's, next season, yesterday signed a 1917 contract with the Browns and told Branch Rickey to give the world the news.

"I don't care who knows that I have signed," said Koob, who is wintering in Michigan. "I have no sympathies with the proposed strike because my main idea is to firmly entrench myself in the American League."

Rickey knocked off work for the day, when he received Koob's contract.

"That's the twentieth contract we have received," said Branch blightly, "and we are no more worried over the threatened Players Strike than Germany is about the Swiss navy. We will have every player we want under contract when the time comes to hit the blazed trail for training quarters. Just bet the family plate on that."

Koob is one of the players that the Browns sorely needed to round up a first division defense. Ernie is expected to prove the most dependable prop to Fielder Jones' pitching staff next season as he proved last year, after he rounded to on June 8, that he was a thorn in the side of the teams the Browns fear most. He whipsawed the Red Sox and White Sox almost every time he met them and those are the games that count. Koob will be ready to entrain March 1 for Palestine, as will all the others, Fultz notwithstanding.

Huggins Very Hopeful.

Manager Huggins discarded his opaque optics that gave the Cardinals only an indigo outlook yesterday and adjusted an optimistic lens that permitted him to visualize at least a scant ray of hope for the future.

"I am leaving for New York Sunday evening," said the Cardinal commander, "and I have every hope of making a trade that will help the club. I intend to talk turkey to Brooklyn, New York and Boston and if I can possibly change the personnel of my club without weakening it, I will do so. I will trade on an even basis, with the view of putting more color on the team. We are a rather drab, colorless collection as we now stack up. No one appreciates that fact more than I."

At last Huggins has spoken a mouthful. Give us a crimson streak of aggressiveness, something to enthuse over e'en though they lose, Hug! There has been too much "safety first" at Robison Field. Entirely too much.

Boone Deal Pending.

Huggins absolutely denied that he had closed a deal for the transfer of Luther Boone, the Yankee infielder, to the Cardinals. He admits however that this transaction may yet be carried to a successful end.

"Sometime ago I claimed Boone for the waiver price, $2500," said Hug, "but the Yankees then withdrew the waiver. Since then they have not sought waivers and I have heard nothing of the deal. The best evidence, however, of the fact that he doesn't belong to us, is that we have not paid for him and have not been asked to do so. There's a chance that we may land him but as yet the deal is by no means comnleted."

Huggins will be accompanied to New York by Lon O. Hocker, who will represent the club in executive sessions, in the absence of Mrs. Helene Britton, who is unable to attend.

Many Foreign Horses in List of Nominations for $15,000 Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 10.—Nominations to the Kentucky Derby of 1917, which will be run off at Churchill Downs, May 12, were announced tonight by Secretary Hamilton C. Applegate. In the list of 75, which breaks all records in number since the stake was changed from the old system of nominations, only two stars are found missing. They are Hourless, from the stable of August Belmont, and Campfire, leading money winning two-year-old of 1916.

Over half the entries are from the East, one-third of the total comes from across the Atlantic and one of these imported stars promises to be the favorite in the Winter book. There are 47 colts in the race, 18 geldings and 6 fillies. The set of four was omitted by their owners.

Three countries are represented in the list of nominations.

The addition of $15,000 to the Derby, this year, has drawn nearly all of the three-year-old stars.

Benton Has Won 24 Straight.

BENTON, Ill., Feb. 10.—The basket ball team of the Benton Township High School made it 24 consecutive victories last night by defeating Murphysboro, 40 to 10. The Benton team also broke all local records by winning every game played here this season.

SUNSET HILL CLUB GOLF COURSE WILL BE READY IN JUNE

Newest and Largest Links Near This City Equipped With Salt Water Pool.

WILL BE 3½ MILES LONG

Acreage of Grounds Almost Twice That of Any St. Louis County Rival.

Golfers of St. Louis are eagerly awaiting the opening of the new Sunset Hill Club, which boasts of equipment as pretentious as any in the Middle West. And if present plans do not go awry, the links, or at least a portion of greens, will be ready for play by June 1. The course is located between the Weber and Denny roads, just west of the Geyer and in juxtaposition with the Gravois road.

There are now more than 300 members in the club with a membership list that is still open and in a receptive mood. Jess L. Carleton is president of the new organization, but he is only one of the many ardent devotees of the game who conceived and helped to execute the plans for its building.

In some respects the club will be unique. In acreage, for instance, it is an overgrown "baby member" of the local colony. Whereas a majority of the courses in this or any other city have from 85 to 90 acres, the Sunset Hill links embrace 177 acres, with a total of 6270 yards for the actual course.

It has a salt-water bathing pool, conveniently located for the users of the locker room, and this in itself is an uncommon adjunct for an inland city. The discovery of this was quite accidental. When boring for fresh water, a stream made salt by contact with what is called St. Peter's "Vein of Salt" was encountered and found to contain a salt solution of about 20 per cent of the ocean water. This has been pumped and welled up for a bathing pool, 140x35 feet, only a few yards from the locker rooms.

Foulis Boys Designed Course.

The locker rooms are a distinct department from anything of that kind, a one-story building, 350 feet long and 18 feet wide, with a 11-foot porch around the front, overlooking a sunken garden, affords seven rooms each containing 45 lockers of specious dimensions. Showers, of course, are plentiful while another unique feature is a separate home for the caddies, with shower baths there also.

But the course itself is one which already has attracted considerable attention. It was laid out by the Foulis brothers, who had the assistance of Joe Williamson, for many years superintendent of the Glen Echo links. All the local professional golfers put their stamp of approval on the final physical appearance of the links, while Chris Kenney, Stuart Stockney, Eddie Limberg, Albert Bond Lambert and G. H. Walker were the amateurs who made suggestions, in many instances followed in detail.

Par for the course is 72, said to be a tough goal to shoot at. Bogy is 81, good golfing when done. Here are the cards:

Out
Par	4	3	4	3	4	3	4	5	3	—34
Bogy	5	3	4	4	4	3	5	6	5	—39
In
Par	5	4	4	3	5	4	4	5	4	—38
Bogy	6	4	4	3	6	4	5	6	4	—42

The Course by Holes.

Now for a description of the course, in capsule form:

No. 1—A 445-yard, two-shot hole, with a tee shot across the sunken gardens; a level fair green, smooth and nice to play if you're not inclined to slice.

No. 2—Only 140 yards, but troublesome all the way. A pond 60 yards from the tee calls for a clear carry of 110 yards to avoid the water hazards and the traps beyond. The green has generous dimensions and a 3 is within reach of the accurate shooter. That's bogy and par.

No. 3—Need for a driver here. It's a 325-yard hole, with a gully crossing the fairway 120 yards from the tee, while a sand pit yawns to the left for a pulled ball. You've got to shoot straight down the "aisle" from the tee, then a pitch to the green and you're in position for a 4, which is bogy and par.

Two Tees for Hole No. 4.

No. 4—There are two tees for this hole—one 190 and the other 220 yards, calling for a driver, spoon or iron, but there's a gully 150 yards away that breeds trouble. There's a shelter and spring house on this fairway and a deep trap along the right side of the green. But bogy 4 isn't too hard to shoot for. Par is 3.

No. 5—A 340-yarder, dipping down into the gully that crossed No. 4, with woods on either side. A well hit drive carries over the slope and it's an easy pitch to the green. Par and bogy both 4.

No. 6—This is 220 yards due west with the green cut into the slope of the opposite hill side, hospitably open to a good tee shot, but grim and forbidding to the hook or slice. Par 3, bogy 4.

No. 7—The first long hole—430 yards—back towards the club house. Out with the driver and keep safely away from the gully on the left. Par 4, bogy 5.

Here's a Hard One.

No. 8—This leads into the northwest corner of the links, near the Denny road, and is the second longest hole on the course—510 yards. The fair green is level and open, but it takes a good second to avoid trouble as the pond on No. 2, is just behind the green, with treacherous pits for the over-approach. Bogy 6, par 5.

No. 9—Takes you back to the club house, paralleling No. 1, 390 yards. A good chance here for a full mashie or jigger shot on the second. Par 4, bogy 5.

No. 10—West, with a bend, from the club house and down hill but pregnant with trouble if you don't keep to the right. It's a 490-yard hole, bogy 6 and par 5, for expert shooters.

No. 11—This is 320 yards up along the ride, with a long narrow green. It's a pitch shot on the second with lots of back spin needed to get at 4, par and bogy.

No. 12—Down along the hogback, 255 yards, tricky because of the danger of a bad roll. A divide in four with par and bogy.

No. 13—Only 125 yards down in the valley. An easy 3 if you shoot high from the tee with plenty of spin. A hard 6 if you get into the traps or rough beyond. Par and bogy is 3.

Hard to Keep Course.

No. 14. A full 475 yards along the level bottom, crossed by a creek, with the green beyond a knoll. Shoot as the crow flies to avoid trouble. Par 5, bogy 6.

No. 15. In the farthest corner of the course, a 500-yard hole that demands a good drive from the tee, with a pitch over the ditch to the green. Par and bogy 4.

No. 16. Homeward bound, 450 yards along the bottom, with a chance for two long shots. Bogy 5, par 4.

No. 17. The longest hole of the course, 560 yards up the valley and clear to the top of the hill, with woods on either side of the fair green. A creek crosses the course three times, and there's plenty of chance for trouble. Par 5, good shooting should yield bogy 6.

No. 18. A 290-yard hole as the crow flies, but a 500-yarder for he who tops, slices or pulls. A big ravine yawns below the tee, but an accurate tee shot will bridge the trouble. Par and bogy 4.

HOMESTEAD LEADER ANSWERS DEFI, BUT DOES NOT ACCEPT

Thinks His Soccerites Should Have Been Invited for Title Series by Barker.

D. C. Adamson, manager of the Homestead, Pa. soccer team, which played three games here during the New Years holidays, and secretary of the Pittsburg District League in a letter to the Post-Dispatch in which he refutes the statements made by President Barker of the St. Louis League in regards to alibis made by the Homestead men says that he thinks his team should have been given the honor of a direct invitation to compete in a championship series with the locals.

This is the only word direct or indirectly received since Barker hurled his challenge broadcast for a title series three weeks ago. Adamson, however does not accept the challenge, saying that few of his players have seen a ball since the games here.

He states though that a spring series will start in a short time and this will enable kickers to get into shape by probably the end of March or first of April, leaving ample time to settle the question of supremacy before the St. Louis team leaves for Sweden.

What Adamson Has to Say.

Adamson's letter in part follows:

The writer, as manager of the Homestead team, wishes to contradict the part of Mr. Barker's recent statement referring to "alibis," as a perusal of St. Louis newspapers on Dec. 30, 31 and Jan. 1 and 2 will show that the only alibis offered therein were on behalf of the St. Louis teams. In the two games we lost St. Louis papers acknowledged that Pittsburg had about 75 per cent of each, but failed to win because of the absence of a goal-scoring center forward, which was my fault and for which no excuse was offered.

For the information of St. Louis soccer fandom I will say that this is the first statement written for publication by any official or player of the Pittsburg team since it returned home and is made now to refute the charges in Mr. Barker's statement, which may be correct so far as the Eastern team which played in the city Christmas is concerned, but certainly is not so respecting Pittsburg.

Mr. Barker's statement also contained a challenge to play any team for the championship of America and it seems to me that as Pittsburg did better against St. Louis than any other team within possibly the last three or four years, we should have had the honor of a direct invitation to take part in such a series.

However, before Pittsburg could consider playing any championship games against the pick of St. Louis there would have to be an agreement regarding the referee and linesmen, it being absolutely necessary to have men who know and understand the rules of the game and who have the ability to interpret them both as to letter and spirit. Officials of that caliber are in the country, and their selection would insure that the Pittsburg team would be at liberty to rightfully profit by its science and that opponents would have to observe the rules of the game as adopted by the United States Football Association or possibly become victims of a debacle such as befell the St. Leos in New York City some years ago.

Few of our players have even seen a football since the St. Louis series, our fall schedule having been completed, but we propose having a spring series, to start within a few weeks, which would enable our players to be in fit condition by probably the end of March or early in April, leaving ample time to settle the question of soccer supremacy before the American team leaves for Sweden.

For Mr. Adamson's benefit it might be stated that the St. Leos on their Eastern trip did not play in New York and for that reason nothing is known locally of the "debacle" which befell the team in that city. On that jaunt, in 1912, the Leos trimmed the champion Tacony team, 2 to 1. The worst defeat was a 7—1 drubbing at the hands of the Howard-Bulloughs of Pawtucket, R. I. In the other contest lost the Leos were nosed out 3—2 by the West Hudsons. They tied the other two played, these with Paterson and Fall River.

Penalizing the Pitcher Is the Popular Pastime

Even Branch Rickey Thinks This Is the Only Solution for Problem of Increasing the Number of Hits—Many Radical Changes Proposed.

Many changes in the playing rules of baseball have been suggested this winter by persons who have more than a superficial knowledge of and interest in the national game. The popular tendency has been to penalize the pitcher, thereby increasing the efficiency of the batter and in the end making the game more interesting for the man who pays the freight, that is to say, the "fan."

President John K. Tener of the National League, Charles Lincoln Herzog, reformed manager of Cincinnati; John J. McGraw of New York and Percy D. Haughton have spoken. In the main their suggestions mean radical changes.

Tener proposes to enlarge the home plate and give the batter a walk on three balls instead of four.

Herzog's Foul Zone.

Charley Herzog would describe a foul zone adjacent to the present foul lines wherein line drives would not count as strikes. His idea is comprehensive. He argues that a line drive that lands foul by a few feet should not be penalized the same as a lolly-pop foul that flares into the grand stand. He would have such drives that land within a prescribed zone designated as neither a strike nor a ball. He thinks the batter should receive some credit for a well-conceived base hit that fails of its purpose only by 10 feet.

Percy Haughton, a novice in the game, would attack the very fundamentals of baseball. He wants to shorten the distance between home plate and first base and between third base and the home plate, leaving second base as it is. He also would prohibit the use of the spitball.

John McGraw goes the other way around. He thinks the easiest way to penalize the pitcher, thereby increasing the hitting, is to put more rubber in the core of the ball, increasing its resilience; ergo the chances for a safe hit.

Tener's Plan Impractical.

But now comes Branch Rickey for a literary digest of the "main idea." Branch wishes to cast a dissenting vote.

"I think Tener's suggestion of enlarging the home plate and at the same time arbitrarily establishing the limit of three balls instead of four for a walk gets nowhere," said Rickey. "If we enlarge the plate we further increase the efficiency of the pitcher. If we reduce the number of balls for a walk from four to three we no more than equalize the advantage given by enlarging the plate.

"I regard Herzog's suggestion of creating a foul zone as splendidly conceived, but entirely impractical. Who shall determine whether a drive into this zone is a liner or a pop fly? Personally I believe that a player who whales a drive down the foul line, only a few feet from fair territory, should not be penalized the same as the batter who pops one into the stand for his first or second strike. But how are we going to distinguish between the line drives and the pop flies that fall within the zone?

90-Foot Line Must Stay.

"Haughton's suggestion that we shorten the distance to first and from third to the plate is radical and impractical. Baseball has endured too long with a 90-foot base line for us to consider a change now. It must have been fundamentally correct or it would not have endured so long.

"As for prohibiting the use of the spitball, I hardly can lend by hearty support to such a move. It would be difficult to enforce such a rule.

"And now we come to McGraw's plan of putting more rubber in the core of the baseballs, increasing their resiliency and at the same time chances for base hits. I am opposed to that on the grounds that in 1912, when we had a livelier ball, we had many players injured. The pitcher and the third baseman have a tough time dodging line drives. If we have a livelier ball it will tend to shatter their confidence and weaken the defensive play. We must not do that.

"Summed up, my theory of the whole thing is to attack the evil at the root. If our pitchers are too effective, causing a decay in the desirable feature of hitting, let's penalize only the pitchers.

"I think we can do that without changing the physical appearance of the diamond and without making any rules so involved as to confuse the fans even for a season.

"Move the Pitcher Back."

"Why not move the pitcher back a few feet, or even a foot? The first big change in the rules, made when the game began to develop into a national issue, was to move the pitcher farther away from the plate.

"Today the pitcher is 60.5 feet from the batter's box. It is 63.63 feet from the pitcher's box to second base. My idea would be to put the pitcher halfway between the plate and second base. Move him back two feet, or perhaps only one and one-half feet. You'll find that that is a penalty sufficient to increase hitting, at least moderately.

"We mustn't attack the vitals of baseball. Base lines must remain at 90 feet. There's no need for foul zones. To make the balls livelier is hazardous, I believe. In fact, I see no need for any changes and it is my opinion that none will be made. But you have asked me to discuss changes already proposed and I have done so. I have finished."

That no radical changes will be made is almost the unanimous opinion of the fans. However, when men of the McGraw, Herzog and Tener type venture suggestions they are worthy of consideration. But in the end they will only prove that baseball is able to endure despite the apparent handicaps under which it is now laboring.

As long as baseball can keep out of the courts the present rules will suffice.

Dave Fultz's Strike, Set for Feb. 20, May Never Be Launched

Speculation as to the players' adjustment to union wages, union hours and other details of the customary workingman's organization have been needlessly dragged into the discussion.

It appears that the Fraternity would be left to work out its own ideas as to remuneration and time details. The principal idea in joining the Federation of Labor would unquestionably be to enable the Fraternity to hold, as a club over Organized baseball, the threat of a Union boycott of ball parks, in case of a break between the Fraternity and the baseball leaders.

In return for this support, the ballplayers would co-operate with the Federation boycotts, as well as agree to use only union made goods, necessities and luxuries.

How far a national federation boycott would affect baseball attendance is speculative. Most workingmen have not the right hours to patronize week-day games, as a rule. The Brooklyn Federal League Club was once boycotted around the circuit, but its attendance did not appear to have materially suffered, as compared with other clubs in the league.

Two More Cubs Sign.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Two more members of the Chicago Nationals, First Baseman Fred Mollwitz and Catcher Howard Elliott, signed contracts today. Elliott was purchased from the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League last fall.

President Weeghman plans to leave for New York tomorrow night to attend the National League meeting there Tuesday and to arrange a possible trade.

TEN LOCAL TENPIN TEAMS WILL BOWL AT GRAND RAPIDS

St. Louis Fives All Want Saturday and Sunday Dates at A. B. C. Tourney.

Ten teams from this city have sent in their entries to the annual American Bowling Congress tournament, which will be held at Grand Rapids, Mich., March 3 to 25. Most of these have asked for Saturday and Sunday dates from Abe Langtry, which means that they will be spread all through the event. This falls far short of the total expected from this city.

The quintets that will compete and their captains are as follows: Grape Smash, Jerry Ameling; Budweisers, Gus Schuttenberg; Griesediecks, Ed Rolfes; Cabannes, E. B. Wilder; Martin Fellhauers, Bob Meinhardt; Jack Daniels, Harry Rood; Hahn Bakerys, Al Werder; Washingtons, Otto Stein; Hyde Parks, Rudi Meyer; Burkes, Jake Pflueger.

With the exception of the Griesediecks, who roll in the Progress League in Maplewood, and the Hahn Bakerys, who are members of one of the South Side circuits, all the teams are from the Commercial League. This organization has the pick of the scratch bowlers in the city.

Commercial Sends 8 Teams.

Among the tenpinners who roll in the Commercial League are Jerry Ameling, Jule Schmidt, Oscar Whitehead, George Muenninghaus, Bill Hammann, Harry Rood and Con Fuerman, all of who are competing in the Greater St. Louis individual tournament at Peterson's. Many other shining lights are members of the circuit.

In tournament competition, the Fellhauers have made a betetr record than any of the others. They landed second money in the Middle West event with 2944, being high until the final night, when the Rubinis nosed them out. They copied the city scratch tourney with 2912, being many pins ahead of their nearest competitors.

The annual meeting of the A. B. C. is scheduled for March 9, which means that just about five of the 25 delegates named by the local pintopplers will be present. This will make no difference, however. As one of the local knights of the drives stated:

"We will go there and receive our little badges to show we are delegates, but that's about as close as we will ever come to the meeting."

Schmitt Rolls Muenninghaus.

What easily should result in the best match in the Greater St. Louis individual bowling tournament at Peterson's this week will be shot this afternoon, when Jule Schmitt and George Muenninghaus get together. Both of these pin topplers are right in the thick of the fight for first place.

Harry Rood, the pacemaker, gets into action on Thursday night, when he opposes Dan Schierbaum, who has been shooting great tenpins in his last few matches. Wooster Lambert has an "off-week," having rolled his match with George Reil several weeks ago. The schedule:

Sunday: Monnig vs. Deen, 2 o'clock; Fuerman vs. Werner, 2 o'clock; Muenninghaus vs. Schmitt, 2:45 o'clock; Kastor vs. Ameling, 2:45 o'clock; Whitehead vs. Plummer, 8:45 o'clock; Jones vs. Bender, 8:45 o'clock.

Thursday: Hammann vs. Willis, 8 o'clock; Bryan vs. Randall, 8 o'clock; Cassin vs. Grosse, 8:45 o'clock; Rood vs. Schierbaum, 8:45 o'clock; Vahrenhorst vs. Hoefle, 9:30 o'clock.

A 10-games total pins to count special match has been arranged for next Wednesday night between Oscar Whitehead and "Hap" Vierheller against Ad Glessow and Frank Niedringhaus. The contest will be a home and home affair, five games being shot at Peterson's and the other at the Vernon.

KABAKOFF BATTLES MURPHY FOR RIGHT TO OPPOSE HERMAN

Winner Will Get Match With Bantam Champion at Coliseum on Feb. 20.

LOCAL BOYS BOX TUESDAY

Harry Has Only to Get as Good as a Draw to Clinch Go With New Orleans Man.

Whether Harry Kabakoff has really moved ahead, in the last few months, as claimed by those who point to his fights with Bobby Burns as proof, will be demonstrated Tuesday night, when the little Slavic bantamweight will oppose Jimmy Murphy, the South Broadway Celt.

Kabakoff has never lacked skill or speed of hand or foot; but his youth has rendered him susceptible to punishment, and detracted from his punch, in the past.

In the last year Kabakoff, it is said, has become more rugged and can stand toe-to-toe with the best of them, without flinching. If that is so Murphy will have to speed up some, to take his measure.

Murphy himself was believed to be headed for the top of his class, but has been checked on the way by Eddie Coulon and others. He is a game, hard-hitting little fellow.

Kabakoff is favored to win Tuesday's contest. If he fails to win or draw, he will lose a much sought match with Pete "Kid" Herman, bantamweight "champion."

Kabakoff is already matched with Herman for a bout at the Coliseum, Feb. 20, 12 rounds, 118 pounds, at 3 o'clock, Herman is to receive $1250 guarantee, Kabakoff a percentage.

In case Murphy defeats Kabakoff, he will be substituted against Herman, "Sport" Sullivan declares.

The Test of Fulton.

Unless Charley Weiert has been overrated, Fred Fulton is in for a rather severe test, tomorrow night, at New York, when the pair meet in a 10-round, no-decision contest.

Fulton will have an advantage of at least 30 pounds in weight and a considerable edge in height and reach. His stock in trade is a good left hand and a knockout punch in his right. Thus equipped, if he doesn't make a showing against Weinert, he can be dismissed as a heavyweight possibility.

Fulton has been rolling in clover since Grant Hugh Browne, the multimillionaire horseman and promter, took hold of him. He has been training at Goshen on Browne's 3100-acre estate, Brownleigh, where a separate cottage, splendidly furnished by his patron, was turned over to his exclusive use.

Weinert was recently outfought by Billy Miske, the new sensation among the light heavyweights. Weinert was once knocked out by Jack Dillon in the second round.

As Welsh Explains It.

If New York stops boxing, think of the fix in which Freddie Welsh will find himself. He is taboo in Minnesota and Wisconsin already. With New York out of it, he'll have no place to turn to gather in an honest journeyman boxer's $5000 bit.

Freddie declares Wisconsin's commission was unjust in barring him for one year. He states that he had a touch of grip—a diagnosis in which he found a physician to concur. He says that he knew he was ill the night of the bout, but rather than disappoint the public—which he most beautifully did—or the promoters, who had a $15,000 advance sale, he decided to go ahead. He admits he made a mistake and declared that never again would he "risk his title under similar conditions."

Or any other conditions, eh Freddie?

Loomis, Ward, Murray and Other Noted Runners to Meet Mahl in Race Here

Irvin Mahl, the crack Columbian Athletic Club flyer, will be called upon to meet a great field of sprinters in the Western A. A. U. Relay Carnival to be held at the Coliseum March 10. Mahl, who again sprang into prominence, two weeks ago, when he won a special 50-yard dash from some of the best dash artists in the country in Chicago, is ill at present.

As a result of his indisposition he has been forced to decline invitations to compete in New York and Chicago events. In all, Mahl has received seven out-of-town invitations to sprint.

He is expected to be in form by the time of the Coliseum meet and is being counted on to repeat his great victory registered in Chicago.

At a meeting of the officials of the W. A. A. U. held at the Missouri A. A. yesterday, it was decided to send invitations to the following sprinters: Joe Loomis and Andy Ward of Chicago A. C.; Bob Simpson and Scholz of Missouri University; Murray of the New York A. C.; Bergman of Notre Dame, and Gilder of Illinois University.

This does not mean that the event will be confined to these entries. It was decided by the W. A. A. U. officials that invitations would be sent to any sprinter who shows exceptional liability in any meet between now and the date of the Coliseum games.

It was reported at the meeting yesterday that much interest was being displayed by athletes locally, especially in the Mercantile, Fire and Police, First Regiment Soldiers and alumni relays.

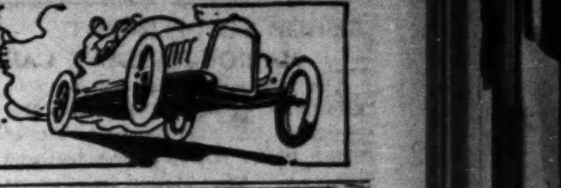
AUTOMOBILE NEWS



ST. LOUIS SHOW WILL ECLIPSE THE NATIONALS

Striking Color Scheme in Forest Scene on Each Floor Is Setting for 1917 Model Motor Car Display.

There is every reason to believe, according to the reports which have come to the Show Committee that the tenth annual St. Louis Automobile Show, at the Overland Building, Twenty-third and Locust streets, Feb. 19-24, will rank with the greatest shows ever held in this country.

The immense building in which it is to be held, with 132,000 square feet of exhibit space, affords ample room for large display of every make of car represented in St. Louis.

In some respects it will eclipse even the national shows, for the scheme of decorations for entire building, which is seven stories high, will prove a revelation in the art of the decorator. W. H. Kruse, a St. Louis florist, has the contract for the decorations and is planning to make each floor a forest bower, each floor different, each having its own color scheme of roses, apple blossoms, yellow jonquils and various kinds of blue and purple blooms.

Space has been found in the St. Louis show for another line of automobiles. This is the Marion-Handley, which is to be sold in the St. Louis territory by the Briscoe Motor Sales Co. It will be displayed on the third floor. The H. A. L. car will also be displayed on the third floor. The name of the distributer in St. Louis has not yet been announced, but the general agency is in the hands of Harry Newman of Chicago.

A total of 75 exhibitors of accessories have been assigned space on the second floor. This is three times as many exhibitors of accessories as have ever exhibited before at the St. Louis Automobile Show.

The placing of the light trucks on the second floor and the heavy trucks on the first floor will take place Tuesday. Applications have been made for spaces for 56 trucks, delivery cars and truck units. The Commercial Auto Body Co. will exhibit in a large space nine of its special bodies for Ford cars.

Harry Newman, Inc., of St. Louis, who handles the Kissel Kar, will show this line of cars in the private salon on the second floor, Locust street side, and will have a single car on the third floor.

Carpenters began work Thursday at the Overland Building to erect storm doors at the main entrance on Locust street. In front of these and in front of the Twenty-third street exit large porch awnings will be erected. The admission of visitors will be through the Locust street main door into the private exhibit of the Overland Automobile Co., which has retained its salesrooms on that floor.

The decorator has secured from the South 25 cars of southern smilax and large quantities of branches, bay trees and palm trees. These will be put in position through the building, beginning Wednesday. Each floor of the building is to be finished in different color scheme.

Show Manager Robert E. Lee mailed out Thursday three tickets each to 6000 dealers in automobiles in St. Louis territory, with an invitation to attend the show. Up to Saturday afternoon more than 1000 answers had been received, acknowledging receipt of the tickets, and in nearly every instance the dealer stated that he would attend the show. Some of them say that they will bring as many as 10 prospects with them.

The members of the Show Committee who are in charge of the big exhibit are Joseph A. Schlecht, Mound City Buggy & Auto Co., chairman; James D. Cathey, Chevrolet Motor Co.; William L. Johnson, Johnson Automobile Co.; W. S. Roberts, J. I. Case T. M. Co., and H. W. Spalding, of the Packard-Missouri Motor Co. F. W. A. Vesper of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., who is president of the Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association, is ex-officio a member of the committee. The manager and executive officer of the show is Robert E. Lee, secretary of the Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association and of the Motor Accessory Trade Association of St. Louis.

SAXON RESUMES OUTPUT

In spite of the severe fire which damaged the plant of the Saxon Motor Car Corporation, normal production will be resumed within a very short time. The loss, which approached $1,000,000, was fully covered by insurance. Not only was the plant and equipment absolutely covered, but additional insurance, covering loss of profits during delay in production, protects the factory against the most damaging factor of loss.

The fire destroyed the assembling unit of the factory, but new assembling lines are already in the course of construction in temporary quarters suited for the work. Because of the large stock of material which the Saxon company had stored in plants outside the main plant, production can be resumed immediately the assembling lines are completed.

HUDSON SERVICE APPEALS TO OWNERS

The wholesale manager for the Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co., distributors of Hudson cars, makes some interesting comments on the attitude of the country dealer in motor cars on the subject of service.

"I have long been in a position where I came in direct contact with service conditions in the smaller towns and cities," he says. "I have been an interested observer of the way Hudson dealers have responded to the modern idea of rendering service to buyers of cars.

"There was a time when such a broad question as service, as we regard it today, was too broad for the average dealer to grasp. That was but natural. But if any proof is needed of the value of real service, the way Hudson dealers have swung into line, adopting our suggestions on service, is more than ample proof.

"The farmer, the doctor, the small town business man, whose car makes up an important part of his every-day life, needs service no matter what car he buys.

"Then the next step was the realization on the part of the dealer that he should be in a position to render service, that to put himself in this position he should stick to list price for his cars. Just about then the buyers of cars at a discount had come into their full share of grief, largely because service cost them money. Intelligent service rendered from time to time will postpone heavy repair expense in most cases. Dealers got to the point where they saw this fact. Then they took a new stand. They stood out for full list price on their cars. The wave of bargaining was soon a thing of the past, and the result today is that the small town and city dealer is in the truest sense a merchandiser. He sells good cars, guaranteed by their makers and carrying with them intelligent service.

The Goodrich resources include 125 branches throughout the United States, with thousands of trained employes. The Goodrich company tenders the services of the organization trained in the manufacture and distribution of rubber products of all kinds, including solid and penumatic tires for trucks and other types of automobiles, all kinds of rubber clothing, blankets, rubber air mattresses, pillows, rubber canteens, boots and shoes. The importance of rubber in war times is indicated by the fact that Germany took back cargoes of crude and manufactured rubber on the Deutschland on each of its trips.

The branches of the Goodrich company carry complete stocks of all items which would be readily available for immediate distribution throughout the country.

NO TIRE TROUBLE AFTER 45,000 MILES OF USE

Last summer Edward Sterns, president of the Sterns Tire and Tube Co. and inventor of the Sternwear inner tubes, drove from New York to St. Louis to prove that he had perfected a puncture-proof automobile tire, and in the test he established a record for tire service that probably never will be broken. In the side walls of each of the casings used on the trip Sterns had drilled more than a dozen large holes through which the inflated tubes were exposed, and in the entire distance of over 1000 miles he did not experience the slightest tire trouble.

At the St. Louis Motor Show Sternwear tubes will occupy one of the most prominent spaces in the accessory section, and automobilists will see demonstrations of nail-driving and other tests which will prove the wear-proof qualities of Sterns product.

"During the past 20 years," says Sterns, "there have been thousands of changes made in the building of automobiles."

Forty-five thousand miles without tire trouble is another record held by "Sternwear" tubes. This record was made in a test in which a set of these tubes were used on a light delivery truck. After covering 45,000 miles during a period of several months they were removed and appeared undamaged by their unusual ordeal.

MOVIES AND CABARET FOR ACCESSORY MEN

Prosecuting Attorney Lawrence McDaniel will be the speaker at a meeting of the Motor Accessory Trade Association Tuesday night at the City Club. His topic will be "automobile stealing; cause, effect and remedy." Chairman Buckley of the Entertainment Committee, has provided a cabaret entertainment which will eclipse previous efforts in that line.

Following the address a film will be shown showing the making of storage and dry cell batteries, furnished by the National Carbon & Battery Co. Another interesting film will be "the evolution of the automobile," a long reel supplied by the Chamber of Commerce, picturing the manufacturing plant and processes of the Packard Motor Car Co. in Detroit. All of the accessory exhibitors of the automobile show have been invited to the dinner, whether members of the association or not.

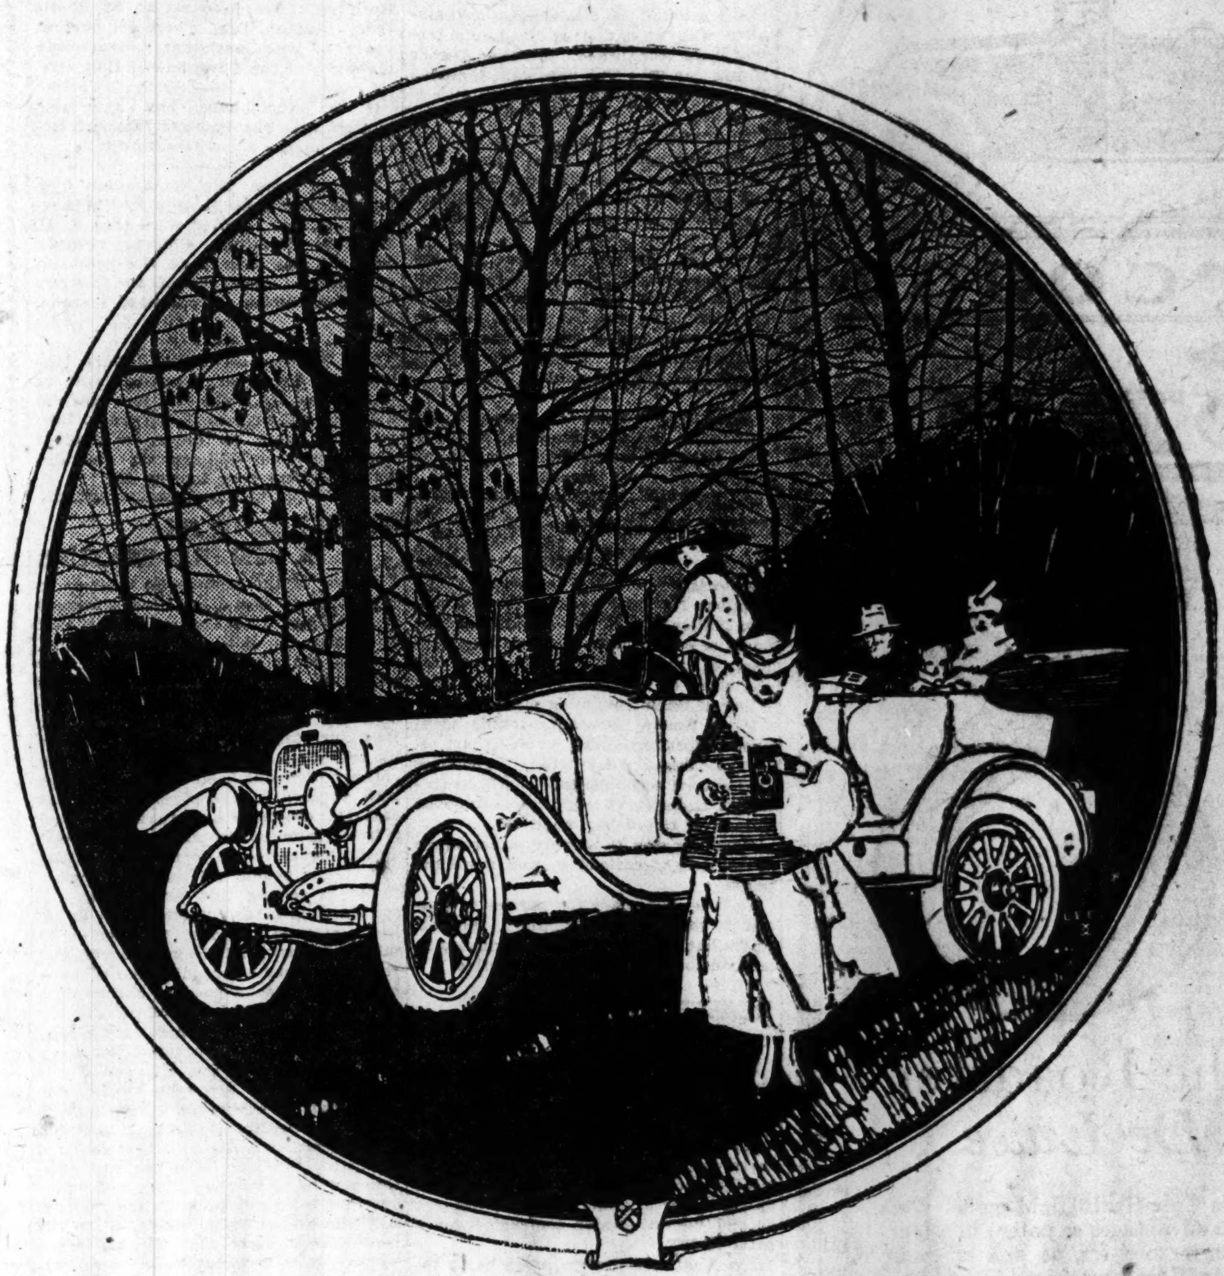
FRANKLIN SHOWING NOVEL BROUGHAM

Franklin Automobile & Supply Co. has just received its new brougham. This car is entirely new in the enclosed line and nothing like it has ever been shown in St. Louis. It is a condensed four-passenger enclosed car for personal driving. The front seats are of the Pullman swiveling and tilting type, upholstery in neutral green low-napped Edredon, with silf shades and draperies to match. French gray silver trimmings of exclusive design. The body color is Brewster green and the chassis and super-body are black.

The interior appointments consist of Perfection window regulators, combination coat rail pull-to handles on doors, hat and luggage rack coat hooks, umbrella holder, dome and corner reading lamps in Tiffany glass, rove cords and grab handles, silk shades and draped curtains, ladies' companion and men's smoking set in mahogany, bouquet holder, mahogany tray with ash receivers mounted above cowl. Body, hood and mudguards are aluminum. Rothschild body panel construction that dispenses with all joint moldings. Body built with V-front composed of two adjustable windshields, which affords wide and unobstructed vision and the least wind resistance.

CHANDLER SIX $1395



This Great Car Leads All Sixes Because of Its Marvelous Motor

THOUSANDS of men and women who would pay hundreds of dollars more for an automobile, if paying more would get them more, choose the Chandler. They are not seekers after a low price. They desire the best six-cylinder motor regardless of price. They desire a Six because time has shown that a six-cylinder motor, correctly designed, gives all the power and all the flexibility of power that any motor can give; that such a motor has the life and snap and "go" they desire; that such a motor is genuinely economical in cost of operation.

So these devotees of the Six choose the Chandler, because through four years of intelligent, conscientious, manufacturing effort, and without radical or experimental changes of design, the Chandler motor has been developed to a point approximating perfection.

Chandler Low Price is Important, Too

While with so many the question of price is of secondary consideration, still Chandler leads in price today quite as distinctly as it has always led.

In the face of advanced cost of all materials and labor, the Chandler price is but $100 higher than two years ago. And the car is finer than then. Not a feature has been cut out of it. Much has been added.

AND OTHER CARS IN THE CHANDLER FIELD HAVE ADVANCED AS MUCH AS THREE HUNDRED DOLLARS THE PAST YEAR, EITHER BECAUSE OF NECESSITY OR OPPORTUNITY.

The Chandler Company has not been willing to take advantage of a situation which would have permitted price inflation.

And this year we shall probably build and sell more cars than any other manufacturer building a car of even similar quality.

Wide Choice of Beautiful Bodies

You who demand such a motor as the Chandler demand grace of body design, also, and richness of finish. Chandler offers you five beautiful types of body, each mounted on the one standard Chandler chassis.

The Maxwell holds the official title of "World's Champion Endurance Car." It won this recognition by recently covering 22,022 miles without a motor stop, establishing a World's Non-Stop Record. During this remarkable feat the car was stopped only long enough to take on supplies, the engine running continuously during the 44 days consumed by the test. During the run the Maxwell averaged 21.88 miles per gallon of gasoline; 400 miles per gallon of oil; 9871 miles per set of tires.

MOTORIZATION OF NATIONAL PARKS

Motorists who desire to go to our Yellowstone National Park or Rock Mountain National Park this summer are assured of enthusiastic co-operation on the part of the Burlington Route in the shipment of automobiles to and from either of Uncle Sam's big playgrounds.

P. S. Eustis, passenger traffic manager of the Burlington, who has just returned from Washington, announces that special accommodations will be furnished motorists through the automobile bureau of this department.

Machines may be shipped either single or by freight carload to and from the parks.

As it is customary for parties to consist of three or mare families, the cost of freight shipment when distributed in carload lots will be most attractive.

DEALERS DRIVE CARS FROM THE FACTORY

In anticipation of the biggest year in the history of the Chalmers Motor Co., every dealer has increased his allotment over last year. The close of the Chicago automobile show found the Chalmers output of 30,000 cars for 1917 practically sold. One dealer signed to take 2700 cars for a single county, while the second highest dealer contracted for a total of 1900.

The Chalmers dealers, upon being informed that the biggest problem for this year will be the question of freight car facilities, have risen to the occasion by making arrangement for having cars driven over the road to different centers and having trainload shipments made up at these points. In this way relief will be had from the congested condition that has caused trouble in Detroit so far as terminal facilities are concerned.

KING OFFICIALS TO VISIT ST. LOUIS AUTO SHOW

In addition to the executive officers, R. P. Bishop, general sales manager; George Guerney, manager of service, and J. D. Rocap, technical engineer, will also be in St. Louis. The local distributors have made special plans for a very comprehensive display of the new models, both at the Automobile Show and also at the King headquarters, 2818 Locust street.

THE COLES TOUR COUPE

This is the Cole tourcoupe week in the automobile world. In practically all Cole eight showrooms, from North to South and from coast to coast, including the Cole-St. Louis company, there is a special display of this eight-cylinder car, which has attracted so much attention since it was first announced last summer.

The Cole tourcoupe is one of the Cole-Springfield models which combine an open and closed car in one unit. It claims all the advantages of the popular four-passenger roadster, open in the summer time and of absolutely closed coupe in the winter.

When the glass sides of the car have been removed for warmer weather driving, a simple and easy task, which a woman or child can perform in a few minutes, it still retains the permanent roof, which has become so desirable to all motorists who have used it.

In the introduction of the tourcoupe, the Cole company was the first to offer an open roadster and a closed coupe, in one and the same car, at the purchasing cost of one medium-priced automobile.

The special tourcoupe display lasts throughout the week at the St. Louis-Cole showrooms.

SERVICE TRUCK ADVANCES

L. H. Amrine, vice president, and S. C. Scudder, of the Scudder Motor Truck Co., returned Friday from the factory of the Service Motor Truck Co., where the annual convention of dealers was held, attended by 200 dealers from the United States, Canada and foreign countries. Announcement was made that all models of the Service trucks would be advanced March 1 from $75 to $200.

SERVICE IS TO BE A BEN HUR FEATURE

Service in the automobile business is a misused term and has been construed to mean anything and everything that an owner can put over on the seller, and on the other hand the seller has retaliated by figuring that service is the rendering of as little service as possible for the highest possible fee. The Ben Hur Motor Co. of Cleveland starts its operations in the motor field on an entirely different basis and theory. The plan outlined by the company assumes that the customer is always right and it is the intention to carry that out just as the big stores do in the large cities.

St. Louis people will have an opportunity of testing this, as the plan inaugurated is to be put into effect in St. Louis at once. Briefly, the plan is to take the responsibility for the car and relieve the customer entirely. When a car is delivered, a book of checks goes with it good for 50 hours of time. Those checks may be turned in to any garage man in the country in return for services rendered on a Ben Hur car. These checks, in turn, are sent to the Ben Hur company, who redeem them in cash.

Another feature is that if anything does happen to a Ben Hur that requires attention, the Ben Hur dealer is authorized to make the adjustment without first taking it up with the factory. Adjustments in all cases are to be made immediately and without arguments. If it is found that the adjustment is something that should be handled by the customers, this detail is to be taken up later.

Wesley A. Stanger, who is putting the Ben Hur on the market in St. Louis, has made all arrangements to take care of Ben Hur owners on this basis and personally see that the company policy is rigidly adhered to.

SUPERLATIVES IN CLAIMS

"It is said that over-laudatory advertising of motor cars does no harm because Americans are accustomed to intensive selling methods and accept all claims with the proverbial grain of salt," says Harry Newman of the Kissel Kar in St. Louis.

"But when 'wonderful' is said, it should at least mean 'adequate'; a 'beautiful' car should surely be 'pleasing;' 'economical' certainly ought to mean comparatively 'inexpensive,' and so on.

"In this, which promises to be the greatest of all automobile years, there is a remarkable range of selection—a car to fit every pocketbook and most of them good values. The real facts about them are nothing to be ashamed of—so why veneer the story?

"For it is obvious that a car which costs $500 or $1000 less than another car cannot be 'just as good' in either looks, riding quality or performance. Nobody so values it. So why claim it?"

GETTING CARS BY EXPRESS

Shipment of cars by express contintinues to be necessary with the Vesper Buick Auto Co., who, last week, received two more carloads of their No. 46 cabriolets by express. Most of these cars were immediately delivered by H. G. Hurd, the Buick city distributor, to owners in St. Louis.

"The shortage of freight cars continues to be the principal part of our trouble," said Mr. Hurd, in discussing the matter, "and it is necessary for us to take express shipments in order to take care of our deliveries, on which we have made promises. We have arranged to continue the express shipments for the time being, and will keep it up just as long as it is necessary to properly take care of our trade."

F. W. A. Vesper, president of the company, stated that extraordinary efforts were being made by all manufacturers to overcome the freight shortage, and to this end every available man in the traffic department at the factory is working in conjunction with the railroads.

SAXON
Shipments will be resumed at once

Production of Saxon cars was temporarily interrupted due to a fire which partially destroyed our main plant in Detroit on Saturday morning, February 3.

However, we had under lease additional factory quarters of greater floor space than the plant which was damaged by fire. New equipment has been installed here and Monday morning, February 12th, we shall again begin building cars, in this newly equipped plant.

We have a large supply of material, such as motors, axles, frames, bodies, rims, fenders, radiators, etc., stored in our plants outside the main plant and this is available for immediate use in building cars. We have on hand now a supply of all parts necessary in assembling finished cars.

In spite of the temporary delay, we expect to complete our shipments to all our dealers on schedule time.

Fortunately our Service Department was not touched by the fire and we are able to give immediate attention to the needs of all Saxon owners from our large supply of service parts.

The loss sustained by the fire was fully covered by insurance.

We will continue to build Saxon cars good and to build them in quantity.

To the American People:

POWERFUL INTERESTS IN THE UNITED STATES ARE ATTEMPTING TO PUT THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE PRESENT HIGH PRICE OF BINDER TWINE UPON THE COMISION REGULADORA DEL MERCADO DE HENEQUEN, A CO-OPERATIVE SELLING ORGANIZATION COMPOSED SOLELY OF THE SISAL FARMERS OF THE STATE OF YUCATAN, MEXICO, UNDER THE CONTROL OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT. IN VIEW OF THE WIDESPREAD CAMPAIGN THAT IS BEING CONDUCTED AGAINST THIS ORGANIZATION, AND THE FALSE IMPRESSIONS THAT ARE BEING CREATED THEREBY, WE FEEL THAT IT IS OUR DUTY TO INFORM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE THAT SISAL (ONE OF THE FIBRES FROM WHICH BINDER TWINE IS MADE) HAS BEEN AND STILL IS THE CHEAPEST HARD FIBRE OBTAINABLE IN THE AMERICAN MARKETS, AND WE SUBMIT HEREWITH IRREFUTABLE DATA IN SUBSTANTIATION OF THIS STATEMENT.

BINDER TWINE MADE FROM YUCATAN SISAL SHOULD BE SOLD TO THE AMERICAN FARMERS THIS SEASON AT A PRICE SEVERAL CENTS PER POUND BELOW THE PRICE OF TWINE MADE FROM MANILA HEMP OR ANY OTHER FIBRE.

IT IS TRUE THAT THE PRICE OF SISAL FIBRE HAS INCREASED SINCE DECEMBER FROM 10⅜ CENTS PER POUND TO 16½ CENTS, THE PRICE AT WHICH FEBRUARY-MARCH SHIPMENTS ARE NOW BEING OFFERED, BUT THE PRICES OF ALL OTHER SIMILAR FIBRES HAVE INCREASED IN LIKE PROPORTION, AS THE FIGURES GIVEN BELOW WILL PROVE.

In 1916 Yucatan obtained approximately $40,000,000 for her entire crop of sisal fibre. Every cent of that sum, with the exception of approximately $1,000,000, remained in the United States, representing the purchases made by the Yucatan farmers and merchants in this country. Yucatan produces practically nothing except sisal fibre, and buys her food, clothing and other necessaries of life in the American markets, where prices of all commodities have soared to the highest levels ever attained. Thus the money that the American farmers paid, indirectly, to the Yucatan farmers came right back to them in the shape of payments for wheat, corn, flour, cotton and woolen goods, and the thousand and one other necessaries of life that Yucatan is compelled to buy in the American markets.

THE INCREASE IN THE PRICES OF ALL COMMODITIES, SISAL AND ALL OTHER FIBRES INCLUDED, IS DUE TO THE GENERAL CONDITION OF THE WORLD MARKETS, AND THE LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND IS THE SOLE CONTROLLING FACTOR. THEREFORE, IT IS ILLOGICAL, UNJUST AND MALEVOLENT TO IMPUTE TO THE COMISION REGULADORA RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE HIGH PRICE OF BINDER TWINE.

In the face of the indisputable facts here set forth, we confidently anticipate that the keenly-observant, fair-minded American people will easily discern that the attacks made upon Yucatan's co-operative organization have emanated from persons who are inspired by purely selfish motives. Prior to the organization and effective operation of the Comision Reguladora del Mercado de Henequen certain middlemen were enabled to accumulate large fortunes in consequence of their control of the sisal market. Yucatan's co-operative marketing organization has effectually eliminated speculators and middlemen of every sort from the sisal market, and, naturally, the loss of this source of revenue has caused them to attempt to accomplish the disruption of the Comision Reguladora and the reinstatement of themselves as the dominant factors in the marketing of Yucatan's only agricultural product.

WE ASK ONLY THAT THE AMERICAN PEOPLE GIVE THOUGHTFUL CONSIDERATION TO THE REAL UNDERLYING FACTS OF THIS SO-CALLED "SISAL CONTROVERSY" AND NOT GIVE SUPPORT UNWITTINGLY TO THE SELFISH AND POWERFUL INTERESTS THAT ARE HIDDEN BEHIND THIS VERY EXTENSIVE CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE COMISION REGULADORA. Study the Manila hemp market as well as the Yucatan sisal market, and do not give to your neighbor in Yucatan a degree of justice that is less than that which you give to the Filipino, whose fibre also is used for making binder twine.

YUCATAN FARMERS' MARKETING SYSTEM

The Comision Reguladora de Mercado de Henequen (Commission for Regulating the Sisal Hemp Market) is a co-operative marketing organization, composed entirely of sisal farmers, under the control of the government of the State of Yucatan.

It was created in January, 1912, by special act of the legislature of Yucatan and was reorganized in November, 1915.

The board of directors—ten in number—is composed solely of sisal planters of Yucatan.

None but the farmers derive one cent of profit from its operation.

All the sisal growers of Yucatan, and of the adjoining state of Campeche, are members of the organization and participate in its benefits in the exact proportion to the number of pounds of fibre each delivers to the association for marketing.

After deducting the expenses of operation, federal and state taxes, cost of transportation and warehouse charges, the remainder of the proceeds of sale is divided among the farmers at the end of each commercial year.

The sisal is sold to American manufacturers, large and small, direct, at the same price, saving them the commissions heretofore paid to the middleman.

THE MIDDLEMAN IS ELIMINATED

Prior to the organization of the Comision Reguladora the Yucatan sisal market was absolutely controlled by speculators—two buyers, who made deliveries to the two principal American twine manufacturers, and bought annually from 90 to 98 per cent of the entire sisal production. They arbitrarily fixed the prices at which the farmer had to sell his product. They accumulated millions of dollars through their operations. They loaned money to the Yucatan farmer and took as security mortgages on sisal plantations or liens on the sisal crops. In many cases the money was repayable in fibre, at prices fixed by the buyers. Often the price was far below the prices of competitive fibres of equal strength and usefulness in the manuufacture of binder twine.

LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND GOVERNS

With the possible exception of one or two weeks, there has not been a single day since the Comision Reguladora relieved the market from the control of the middlemen when sisal fibre has sold at a higher price than even the lowest of the twine grades of Manila hemp, its principal competitor.

Testimony given before the U. S. Senate Agricultural Committee at Washington shows that the following grades of Manila hemp are used in the manufacture of binder twine: Fair Current, Government F (Current), Midway and Good Current. Sisal fibre is selling today on a parity with the lowest of these grades of Manila hemp and from 2½ to 8½ cents per pound below the other grades.

The Philippine Islands (United States territory) produce approximately 1,100,000 bales of Manila hemp annually. Yucatan produces approximately the same amount of sisal. If the price of Yucatan's sisal were arbitrarily put at a figure above its intrinsic value as compared with Manila hemp, the manufacturers would, naturally, buy the latter fibre. Competition between sisal and Manila hemp is very active at all seasons of the year. Yucatan's million bales are constantly matched against the million bales from Manila. And, in the competition, YUCATAN SELLS HER FIBRE FOR LESS THAN THE PRICE OF MANILA HEMP.

The chart here given proves our assertion and upholds our position. The chart was made by the American Draughting Company, of New York, and is based on quotations printed semi-monthly in the Cordage Trade Journal of New York. A look at the chart will show that the price of sisal fibre is, and has been, on a level below that of other binder twine fibres. It proves that the American farmer should get sisal binder twine this season much cheaper than twine made from other fibres.

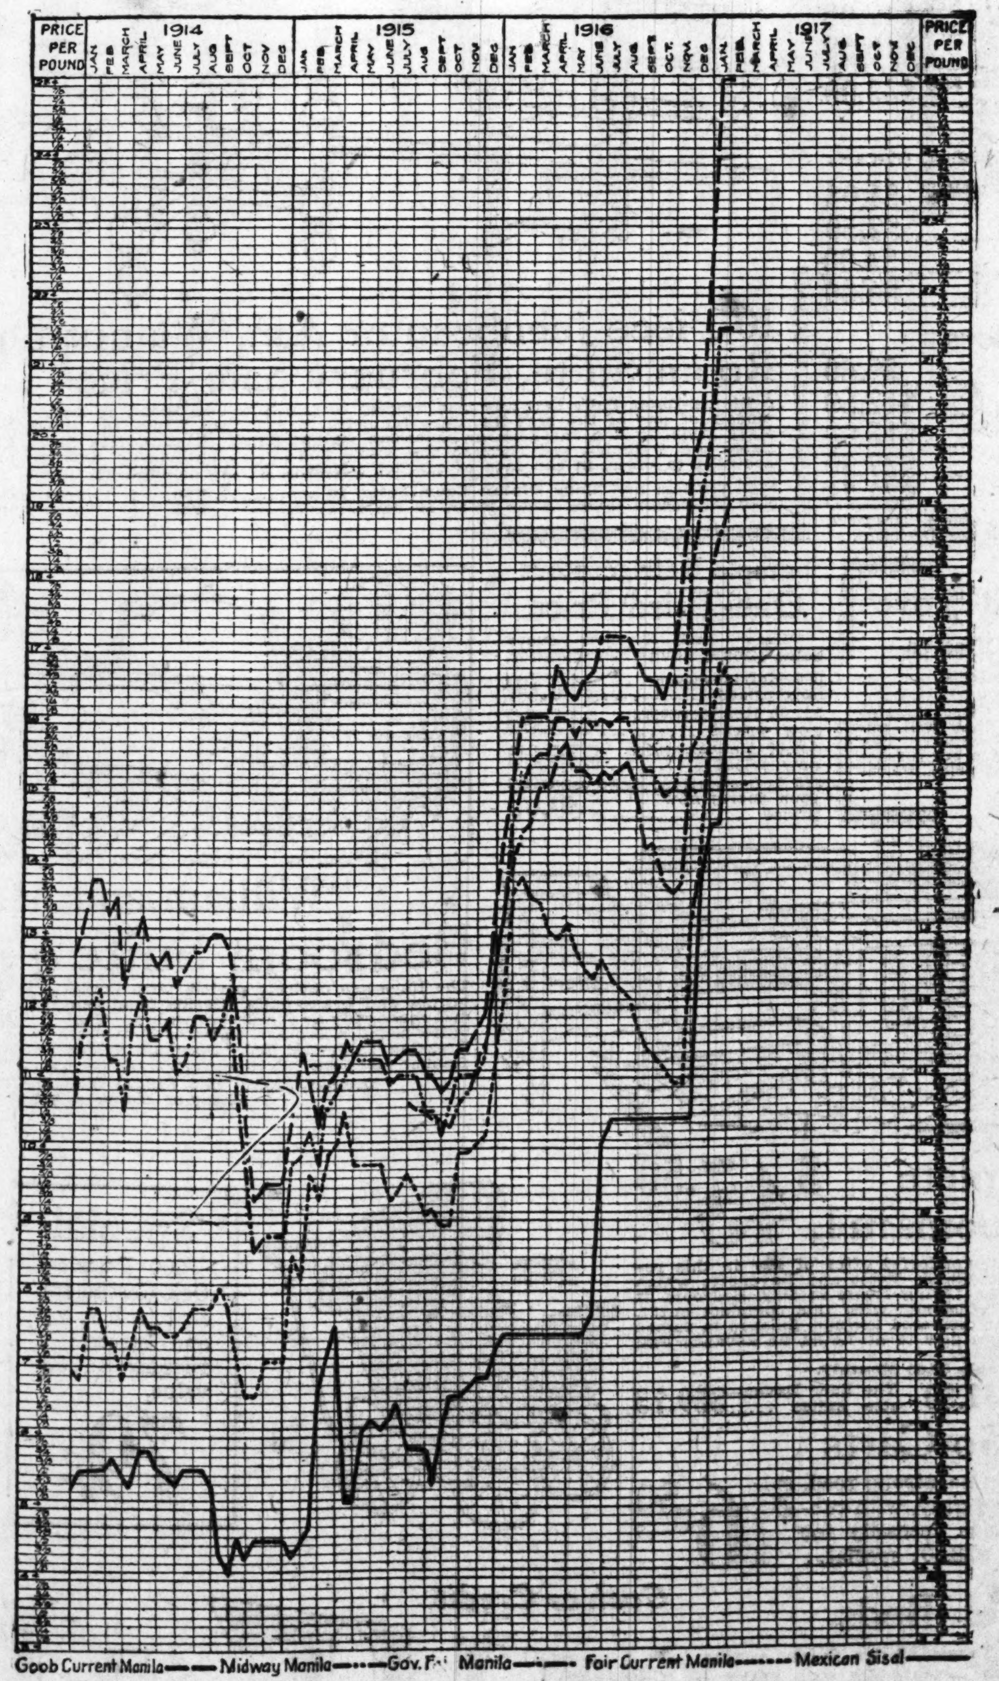
THE AMERICAN FARMER'S POSITION

It has been charged for the purpose of injuring the Comision Reguladora, that Yucatan "robbed" the American farmer in 1916 of more than $4,000,000 by reason of the increase in the cost of binder twine as compared with 1915. Yucatan did get more for her sisal last year than she obtained in 1915. The American farmer, however, got a far greater increased price for the products of his farm. According to the report of the United States Agricultural Department, Bureau of Crop Statistics, the American grain farmers received approximately $803,000,000 more for their corn, wheat, oats, rye and barley in 1916 than they got for their 1915 crop. Yet they harvested a billion bushels less in 1916 than in 1915 and the area harvested was nearly 7,000,000 acres below that of 1915.

THE INCREASED COST OF BINDER TWINE TO THE AMERICAN FARMER IN 1916 WAS APPROXIMATELY FIVE CENTS PER ACRE, YET HIS INCREASED REVENUE FROM HIS GRAIN CROPS WAS SEVERAL DOLLARS PER ACRE MORE THAN IN 1915.

Yet the maligners of the Comision Reguladora craftily shriek "monopoly" and "robbery" at the farmers of Yucatan whose proceeds from the sale of sisal came right back to the United States!

Last year Yucatan paid $11 to $12 for American flour, against $5.50 to $6.00 the year before, paid almost double for the corn and wheat she imported, more than double for potatoes and beans, much higher prices for bacon, ham, butter, eggs, canned goods, machinery, clothing, cotton goods, etc.



NOTE.—The above chart shows monthly quotations of sisal and the binder-twine grades of Manila hemp. The solid black line represents Yucatan sisal; please observe that it is the LOWEST in every month.

COST OF PRODUCTION HIGHER

THE COST OF PRODUCTION OF SISAL FIBRE IN YUCATAN HAS MORE THAN DOUBLED IN THE PAST 18 MONTHS in consequence of the admirable social reforms inaugurated by Governor Alvarado's administration. Peonage has been abolished and the field laborer is now a free man and must be paid living wages. Instead of working for a pittance, as they did prior to the present revolutionary reforms, the laborers now receive from $1.50 to $3.00 (American gold) per day. The day's labor is limited by law to eight hours and the working week to five days; child labor is prohibited, female labor is strictly regulated, working conditions have been improved at considerable cost to the planters, public schools have been established on each sisal plantation at the expense of the farmers and the labor law provides compensation to laborers for accidents and sickness besides compelling the farmers to provide old age pensions and otherwise safeguard and protect the health of the laborers.

Hundreds of Americans are going to Yucatan now because of the improved labor conditions, good wages, equitable laws and just treatment.

STATISTICAL POSITION OF SISAL

One year ago when Yucatan sisal was selling for 7¼ cents, New York, there was a large surplus of sisal on hand and the indicated production for the first six months of 1916 was large. On January 1, 1917, there was an actual shortage in the visible supply of nearly 300,000 bales, and an indicated decrease in production during 1917 of at least 25 per cent.

Here is a statement of the world's visible supply of sisal fiber on January 1, 1917, subject only to minor corrections, as compared with the same date a year ago:

	1916, Bales.	1917, Bales.
Stock at Progreso, Yucatan, January 1	107,786	22,075
Stock in U. S. warehouses, January 1	118,825	......
Stock afloat, January 1	14,167	27,304
Stock at Merida and Campeche, January 1	110,900	39,762
	351,678	89,141
Shortage January 1, 1917		262,537

COMPARATIVE CORDAGE PRICES

The following table shows comparative prices of various cordage and proves that Yucatan sisal is merely following the market trend:

	Jan. 1, 1916.	Feb. 1, 1917.	Increase.
Pure Manila rope	13¼	23	.09¾
Manila rope, 2nd grade	12¼	22	.09¾
Manila rope, 3rd grade	10¼	20	.09¾
Sisal rope, 1st grade	9¼	19	.09¾
Sisal rope, 2nd grade	8¾	18	.09¼
Cotton rope, 1st grade	20	29	.09
Cotton wrapping twine, 1st grade	20	35½	.15½
Sea Island twine	30	44	.14
Braided sash cord	22	32	.10

Italian hemp twines have increased more than 10 cents per pound, jute twines are from 6 to 10 cents per pound higher and all other fiber products have soared in like proportion, some cotton yarns being up more than 20 cents per pound.

A FINAL WORD TO THE PUBLIC

There is now pending in the United States Senate a bill, known as the Webb bill, which specifically authorizes combinations of American manufacturers to deal only in foreign commerce. The bill has the approval of President Wilson and already has passed the House of Representatives by a majority in the proportion of 8 to 1. Such combinations of manufacturers are prohibited in the United States, and it is the purpose of the Webb bill to legalize these "combines" for foreign trade only. The expressed purpose is to build up the trade of this country with Latin America.

How, then, can this country consistently object to an association of farmers in Yucatan organized solely for mutual help in the marketing of their crops, especially when the association is under regulation by its Government? Will any such inconsistent policy encourage Latin America to do still more trading with the United States?

In conclusion, we say again study Yucatan's position with an open mind and accord to her and her farmers the measure of justice that Americans would demand for themselves.

ST. LOUISAN IN CREW OF SHIP U-BOAT SANK

Elwood Moore Was on the British Oil Steamer Saxonian; No Loss of Life Indicated.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Feb. 10.—The British oil steamer Saxonian, reported sunk Thursday by a German submarine, was here Jan. 24, taking on bunker coal, and before clearing signed on eight men, two of them Americans. They were Elwood Moore of St. Louis and James Wagyard, 24 years old, of Philadelphia.

Dispatches from London Thursday night indicated there was no loss of life on the Saxonian, which was of 4855 tons. She sailed Jan. 16 from New Orleans for Queenstown.

Elwood Moore is the 19-year-old son of Mrs. Clara Moore, a widow, of 3659 Hickory street. Mrs. Moore told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that her son left here last April. She received a letter in November that he was going to sail for Egypt. A month later she heard from him at Alexandria, and still later from Saloniki. On Jan. 22 she received a letter dated at Newport News, Jan. 18, stating that he had arrived there that day.

Theaters have moved up with the clock.

The man whose business is such that he does not go to work very early in the morning in any event is the chief profiter under the Eastern time situation, as far as observance of its results here is indicative. But the man who must rise early in the morning to go to his employment suffers from this feature which was not observed in advance: In the summer he gets up an hour earlier, just when the cool of the morning has come and sleeping is most enjoyable. He cannot go to bed any earlier by the sun than he used to go because the evenings are so warm that sleeping rooms are not cool and the street is not quiet any sooner than it used to be, which means he loses an hour's sleep each night. In the winter, if he works where the clock stays the same all year around, he gets up and has his breakfast and his street car ride long before daylight, and his electric light bill is bigger than it used to be, the extra light needed in the morning being more than that saved by the earlier retiring in the evening. Then, too, it is colder on frigid mornings at 5 o'clock Eastern time than it used to be at 5 o'clock Central, and that makes an additional hardship.

Some of the Benefits.

However the use of the parks for picnic suppers before sunset in summer and boating after work hours, to say nothing of auto riding and golf and baseball in twilight leagues, makes the new scheme very popular with thousands and they bear the inconvenience of winter without saying much about it. There has been no definite movement to change back to Central time, no general dissatisfaction. Neither has there been sufficient enthusiasm for Eastern time to produce State-wide contagion as had been forecast.

Impartial observers believe that a majority would probably be better satisfied if the Eastern time schedule prevailed only during the summer and Central time in the winter, the change taking place on the first of May and either the first part of October or of November, as is done in several of the European countries.

MOTHER! LOOK AT YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE

Give "California Syrup of Figs" If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Constipated—They love it

Watch Children! Guard Against Colds, Grippe, Sore Throat and Sickness by Keeping Liver and Bowels Free from Poisons

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has the grippe or a sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. See that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't merely ask for Syrup of Figs, but ask for "California Syrup of Figs." Remember, "California."—ADV.

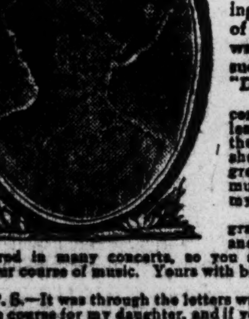
CHILD PIANIST AMAZES AUDIENCES

Mother of 13-Year-Old Prodigy Explains Daughter's Remarkable Skill



The extraordinary skill exhibited by little Mayme Morrison, pianist, in her first public appearances, has challenged the wonder of thousands who have heard her. Surprise becomes amazement when her admirers are informed that she never had a teacher, but has acquired her wonderful ability by a new, easy method for learning music at home by mail. Miss Morrison is a pupil of the U. S. School of Music of this city, and her mother was recently invited to tell the story of her daughter's success. The following letter was received in reply:

"Dear Sirs:

"You can't conceive with what heartfelt thanks I write you concerning my daughter, Mayme. When she began taking lessons from your school she did not even know middle C on the organ. I just thought then how proud I would feel when she had learned to play a few selections correctly. I never grew tired of hearing her practice her lessons, and I took so much pride in her skill that the cares and worries of raising my little family grew lighter."

My greatest hopes for Mayme have been more than granted by hearing her play in public with perfect success, and to hear her audiences praise her. She has also been featured in many concerts, so you see I have great reasons to be glad because she took up your course of music. Yours with best wishes,

"(Signed) MRS. MINNIE MORRISON.

"P. S.—It was through the letters written by some of your pupils that I was induced to take the course for my daughter, and if you think this letter will do you any good in that respect, you are welcome to publish it."

BETTER SHIPPING CONDITIONS LIFT COTTON MARKET

Reported England Will Use South American Ships in North American Trade.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Rather a more optimistic view of shipping conditions was reflected in the steadier tone of the cotton market here today. Demand, however, appeared to be mostly in the way of covering for over the holiday of Monday and business was generally quiet. May contracts fluctuated between 15.50c and 15.66c, closing at 15.65c, with the general list closing very tseady at a net advance of 1 to 11 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 5 points and sold about 7 to 12 points net higher shortly after the call, with May touching 15.66c and July 15.73c. A bulge in New Orleans and a few New Orleans buying orders helped the local advance, while there was some buying around the ring which seemed to be inspired by reports of a falling off in the number of vessels sunk by submarines yesterday.

The more optimistic view of the market was also encouraged by reports that large Government purchases of textile material for the making of uniforms were pending. The advance met some realizing, while there was also a little Liverpool selling under which prices sagged back to about last night's closing figures, with July off to 15.62c.

Offerings were light, however, and the market later rallied on rumors that Great Britain was planning to transfer vessels from the South American trade to ply between North America and British ports. If true, this would be considered a bullish feature from an export standpoint, and the market closed within a point or two of the best on the more active positions. Manchester cables indicated that business there has been demoralized by the extraordinary position of cotton, but said there was some demand for cloths from China.

Port receipts were 17,724 bales; for the season, 5,666,530; exports today, 14,062; for the season, 3,838,246; stock, 1,375,844.

Violent price swings marked trade in the local wheat market last week. Futures moved up and down in a bewildering way, as the news indicated or failed to indicate increased or diminished chances for actual war with Germany. In the late speculation the market ran into a burst of strength on reports that the allies would transfer ships from South America to North America in an effort to forward supplies from this country, which have been more or less restricted by the intensified submarine campaign. Yesterday's market was one of the strongest of the week, with values up 2¾c to 4¾c for the day. Prices averaged 5 to 7 cents higher at the close yesterday than at the finish a week ago.

Corn showed stubborn strength even when wheat was irregularly weak, largely as a result of light primary receipts, excellent cash demands, expectation that should this country go to war the Government would need enormous quantities of corn for feed supplies and the manufacture of alcohol and kindred products, and excessive feeding demands due to the severe cold weather over the country.

Wheat Traders at Sea.

Traders are pretty much at sea as to the ultimate trend of the wheat market. The bulls contend that lack of supplies abroad, small reserves here and in Canada, and teh fact that England has contracted for much of the American wheat in sight, must necessarily force her to supply ships to get the grain abroad, whereas the increased submarine activity not only is steadily reducing the world's wheat supply, but is placing the United States markets in a more bullish position, as they are the most available for purchases and shipments for the allies.

On the other hand, the bears claim that a continuation of the submarine campaign, should it tie up exports of grain to any great extent, will very shortly cause a congestion of supplies in this country; and that with the new crop coming on there will naturally be much reselling of wheat by foreign holders and exporters when they find that stocks are not running down as the bulls expect on the end of the old crop year. Also that shipping conditions will not be such as to ultimately relieve the present congestion at ports before the next crop looms as a factor in depressing market sentiment.

Wheat values during the two years of war have touched the high points on the crop in February, and with irregular reactions dropped sensationally in the spring. Many close observers believe that history will repeat this year, especially as the general opinion is that the war will not last throughout the summer, and its cessation would mean competition with American markets by those of Russia, where supplies have been cut off from export for two years by the closing of the Dardanelles, and a third crop is about to be harvested in that country. Argentina and Australia and India also should prove big factors in a competitive way should peace come before the next crop is materially reduced.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Wheat prices ran up swiftly today, influenced to a large extent by reports that the British Government has commandeered numerous South American line steamships and would undertake to convoy from United States ports to Europe as many cargoes of foodstuffs as might be required. After an extreme advance of 5⅝c a bushel, the market closed strong at gains of 2¼c to 5⅝c net, with May $1.74⅝ to $1.74¼ and July at $1.49¾ to $1.50. Other commodities, too, finished higher—corn up ⅜c to 1¼c, oats 1¼@1⅜c to 1¾@1⅞c, and provisions 7½c to 25c.

Broadening out of the wheat trade was especially notable in the last hour, when prospects of a revival of export business looked better than had been the case any time before in a week. Right from the outset, however, the market was on the upgrade and there was active buying on the part of houses with seaboard connections. Predictions were circulated that a decided improvement of railway conditions would be soon forthcoming. Besides, gossip was current of a big merchant fleet that the entente allies had assembled off the Virginia Capes. Highest prices of the session though, were not attained until word came that Great Britain was bringing north virtually all the available freight vessels in the Atlantic from the Equator.

Crop Damage Reports.

Crop damage complaints from the Southwest tended throughout the day to handicap the wheat bears. On the other hand, some holders were uneasy regarding uncertainties of developments during a double holiday and were inclined to make realizing sales, but such transactions failed ot become plentiful enough to alter vitally the prevailing bullish sentiment. Lightness of offerings had a bullish effect on corn. It was said country owners displayed signs of a growing belief that export demand would shortly be much enlarged. Seaboard clearances for the day were immense, about 1,250,000 bushels.

Strength of oats was due to a considerable degree to reports that the southern winter oat crop had been badly damaged by severe cold weather.

Provisions climbed with hogs and grain. The chances of better shipping facilities, both by rail and sea, gave renewed confidence to buyers.

Horses and Mules.

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by Campbell & Reid and Western Sale Stables Co., National Stockyards, Ill.

The horse market yesterday was very quiet. The clearance at the auctions has been satisfactory, although prices have ruled lower throughout the week. The trade is in good shape for a fair supply next week, although, owing to the uncertainty regarding foreign demand, a heavy run is not advisable.

Horse quotations: Heavy draft, extra, $150@245; Eastern chunks, $140@180; Southern horses, good, $90@135; Southern horses, plain, $60@80; Southern horses, common, $40@60.

The call is for finished big mules, 1300 pounds and up, the small, rough-haired half-fat mules are being neglected. Dealers are of the opinion that the cotton mule trade is about over, basing this statement in the falling off in demand from that quarter the past two weeks. Thursday 200 horses previously inspected by the Italian Government left the market for the Atlantic seaboard. Generally the trade in war mules is at a standstill.

Mule quotations: 16 to 16¼ hands, $150@270; 15 to 15¾ hands, $125@220; 14 to 14½ hands, $50@105; 13 to 13¼ hands, $45@90; plugs, $25@65. Above quotations are extreme high and low range, and top prices refer only to extra choice selected mules, carefully sorted, and sold out of dealers' hands.

Coffee Market.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Rumors that Great Britain was planning to transfer tonnage from South America to the trade between North Atlantic and British ports, led to increased apprehension over the import situation in the market for coffee futures here this morning. The opening was 3 to 8 points higher. This advance encountered some further liquidation, but offerings were comparatively light and May contracts sold up from 8.21c to 8.25c on covering and a little buying which seemed to come from outside sources. The close was at the best, with prices showing a net advance of 9 to 12 points. Sales, 19,500; Feb., 8.14c; March, 8.19c; April, 8.22c; May, 8.24c; June, 8.28c; July, 8.32c; Aug., 8.35c; Sept., 8.37c; Oct., 8.41c; Nov., 8.45c; Dec., 8.49c; Jan., 8.53c Spot coffee quiet; Rio No. 7, 10c; Santos 4s, 10½c; no fresh offers were reported in the cost and freight market. The official cables reported a decline of 75 reis in the market at Rio and of 200 reis in Santos ports, comparing with the quotation received for Feb. 3. Santos futures were 125 to 150 reis higher. Santos cleared 140,000 bags for New York. Brazilian port receipts, 16,000 bags;

Record for Local Trading Is Scored During Week's Buying; Cattle Also Higher.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week	Week Before	Last Year
Cattle	18,300	26,000	17,000
Hogs	69,800	80,300	90,000
Sheep	4,800	7,700	7,000

"The cattle trade was bolstered by an invigorating demand last week, and all classes of killing stuff moved over the scales readily at increased values. Killing steers showed a general price advance of 25c per cwt., and buyers had such urgent orders that they purchased the weighty class of fleshy steers, something that ordinarily, during slack times, would go to feeder buyers, in line with the advance.

Butcher cattle finished the week with a net advance of 25c to 50c per cwt, and are selling on a basis equal to the highest point in the market's history. Canner stuff showed no improvement. The trade for stockers and feeders, in marked contrast to the general activity for killing stuff; rather listless, due to lack of inquiry, and stock steers, as well as the light-weight thin feeders finished the week 15c to 25c lower.

Choice to prime beef steers were quoted at $11 to $12; good to choice $10.25 to $11; medium to good $9.10 to $10.25; common to medium $7.85 to $9.10; common off-colored light killing steers 7 to $7.85. Good to choice stockers and feeders $7.50 to $8.25; medium to good $7.25 to $7.65; common to medium $6 to $7.15. Good to choice stock cows $6.25 to $6.75; common to fair stock cows $5.75 to $6.25; good to choice light stock heifers $7 to $7.50. Choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle $9.50 to $11; good to choice $8 to $9.50; medium to good $7 to $8; common to medium $6 to $7. Choice to fancy heavy beef cows $8.50 to $9.50; good to choice $8 to $8.50; medium to good $7 to $8; canners $5.25 to $5.75. Good fat beef bulls $8.50 to $9; heavy sausage bulls $7.50 to $8; light sausage bulls $6.50 to $7.25.

HOG PRICES AT RECORD.

In view of the rapidity with which hog values have moved upward during recent weeks, expectancy of still further advances materialized by what may be virtually termed a "red-hot" session the past week, with values showing uniform advance all along the line, and reaching the highest level ever known in the history of the market, $12.65 per hundred. During the midweek there was a little lull in the trade, owing to the unusual spurt in the market, but this was recovered and the trade closed firm, yesterday's top being $12.60, with the demand good near the top prices.

Choice hogs of 180 pounds up are quoted to $12.15 to $12.60; 150 to 190 pounds mixed hogs, $11.75 to $12.10; 120 to 150 pound pigs, $10.50 to $11.50; light pigs, $8 to $9.25; choice rough hogs, $11.25 to $11.60; half-fat roughs, $9 to $10.

The sheep trade maintained a firm tone at strong prices throughout the week. Good to choice lambs, $14.25 to $14.50; medium lambs, $13.50 to $14; plain lambs, $12.50 to $13.50; common to best cull lambs, $9.50 to $12.50; fat sheep, $9.75 to $10.90; choppers and bucks, $7.50 to $9.50; canner sheep, $5.50 to $6; choice Angora goats, $8 to $8.50; choice Angora kids, $9 to $10; fat, straight-haired goats, $7.25 to $7.75; fat straight-haired kids, $8 to $9.

GIANT TRUCK TIRES

The First Real Answer to Heavy Hauling Problems

LEADERS for seventeen years, Firestone builders have been first with every important development of the truck tire. And in every step forward in the motor truck industry, Firestone specialists have kept pace, building a tire for every design of commercial vehicle and for every type of service.

With the demand of heavy hauling came a demand for heavier service tires. Dual equipment does not provide an adequate solution. Big loads require big tires.

Firestone has again supplied the answer. The result is the Firestone Giant Truck Tire, the single tire that stands the crush of the heaviest loads, that gives extra wear, greater traction, smoother riding, protection for the truck and comfort for the driver.

This is the tire adopted for the heavy duty truck fleets for these concerns of your city:

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

STOCK QUOTATIONS IN THE WALL STREET MARKET ARE IRREGULAR ON THE WEEK

Small Gains and Losses Are Distributed Throughout the List.

SENTIMENT IS MIXED

Opinion Differs as to Effect on Market if United States Enters War.

U. S. Steel's Orders Decrease 73,232 Tons.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation on Jan. 31, last, were 11,474,054 tons, a decrease of 73,232 tons compared with Dec. 31.

The January statement is the first in several months that has not shown an increase. The December statement of 11,547,286 tons was the high record for unfilled orders.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review, says:

"Confronted at the beginning of the week with the extremely delicate and dangerous situation growing out of the rupture of relations with Germany on the preceding Saturday, the Stock Exchange nevertheless faced the facts with some appearance of buoyancy. Prices of industrial shares advanced 2 or 3 per cent, following the more violent rise at the week end. For lack of a better explanation, a prospective war boom was promptly suggested to account for the upward movement.

"Munitions stocks, which had risen to great heights on the strength of orders from Europe, and had as precipitately declined when it seemed that those orders were about to be ended, once and for all, by the return of peace, again came into some favor among speculators. Presumably, therefore, we were to see a repetition of the performances of recent months; the price of the industrial issues rising with vigor on each new threat of war; the stock market quivering and weak on each suggestion that we might, after all, keep out of the conflict.

Stock Market Sluggish.

"Nothing of the sort has occurred, however. On the contrary, it has been possible, even in the narrow and sluggish stock market of the past week, to trace a gradual decline in the latter part of the period, when the chances of maintaining peace grew more and more slender; while the advance on Monday and Tuesday, coincided with the news that the steamship Housatonic, sunk by submarine, had adequate warning; that American seamen held captive in Germany had been released; that the terms of the submarine decree might be modified in deference to the needs and wishes of certain neutral states. Finally, there was the entirely pacific and conciliatory statement of the German Foreign Secretary.

"All thees signs pointed towards continued peace. In fact, there were indications that even the dismissal of Bernstorff was regarded as possibly a means of maintaining a peace which would certainly have been broken had the new German submarine policy gone unchallenged.

"That many of our industries will continue to prosper in case of war, and that the prices of their securities will advance, is entirely possible. There is precedent for such an expectation in the history of other wars, as well as on the stock exchanges of some of the belligerents at the present moment. In looking for such a result, however, it will have to be borne in mind that our industries had already been swollen with the profits of two years' active catering to the needs of the warring countries.

The Recent Peace Moves.

"The downward reaction on each renewal of the peace movement in December and the violent collapse on Feb. 1, did not carry prices to a point where all the effect of the past had been eliminated from the stock market's conception of values. Any advance in the price of our munitions stocks will not start from the bottom, as was the case in the spring of 1915, but from a foundation already provided by a long and prosperous period of activity.

"Just what the financial community expects to be the ultimate results of the present situation, the best-informed member of the community would be at a loss to state positively. The possibility of our being drawn into the conflict is obvious enough; but what then? Our ability to meet the financial requireemnts of the struggle, unless it should reach a magnitude and a duration hitherto unguessed, can hardly be questioned. As self-sufficient in essentials as Germany has proved to be, there would not be the problem of foreign payments and foreign supplies with which the allies have had to grapple; while our exports of materials might be counted on to further maintain the exchange.

"Beyond the immediate results, the foremost question at the moment has to do with the effect of our participation on the length of the war, and the character of its ending. A great deal would depend on the amount of aid we gave the allies; on whether we took on the full status of a belligerent, or confined our efforts to the defense of our immediate interests. Assuming that the contending forces are, in effect, about evenly balanced at the moment, American participation might be expected to tip the scales definitely, and thereby result in a speedier termination of the struggle.

"As long as our own country has remained out of the war, the stock market had looked upon its continuance as favorable to American industry, until recently some doubts began to be expressed whether the contest could much longer be counted a benefit. Should the United States become actively involved, one very interesting question would be settled, and the speedy return of peace would undoubtedly be looked upon as preferable to any hectic war prosperity which might ensue.

"The stock market showed irregular changes on the week. Yesterday's prices developed a firm tone.

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—President Wilson, by breaking relations with Germany, has already enormously raised American prestige. Your future course will doubtless be determined by Germany's action and by Wilson's rightful first consideration of the interests of America. In view, however, of President Wilson's voluntary suggestion of a world league of peace, to prevent by force, if necessary, any wrongfully started war, the question exercising thoughtful minds is this: Can imagination conjure a more striking case, where action by such a league would be required, than in 1914, or the present situation? Consequently, it is felt that the future happiness and peace of the world lie in the establishment now of the principles on which alone civilization can endure.

Any "city" view would be incomplete which did not record this opinion, logically arising from Wilson's reasoning. But I hasten to add that his patience is appreciated, not misunderstood, here. Great Britain has greatly desired that you be spared the sufferings of war. It is believed that if you enter the conflict it will be exceedingly short, despite the necessary unreadiness of your army. The great task should be to undeceive the German people as to their own rulers and the intentions of the allies. Those intentions are not against peaceful civilians, but against Prussian militarism.

The Question of Peace.

Such is the situation at present, when the center of the drama is momentarily shifted to the United States. What now requires clear, careful, cold perception is, that peace is not coming as a gift or as a result of compromise, but through conquest by the allies of Germany. The allies' purpose of conquest is not territorial advantage or increased dominion, but to secure the maintenance of the principles striven for. Conquest by Germany means German dominion.

Regarded from the cold-blooded standpoint of trade and finance, your entry into the war would probably benefit America. Whether you enter the war or not, the United States is likely to suffer, with all neutrals, from a continuance of the conflict. That suffering would be felt both during and after the war. Your entry into the war, by shortening the conflict, would lessen such loss, and, still more important, would add the one touch necessary to consolidate your recent prosperity, namely, further increased American prestige.

Without your participation, the war will probably last another year. The submarine menace is real, with probably an appalling loss of life, ships and goods and much discomfort and hardship for the allies. Those hardships will be withstood until the allies' principles are unreservedly recognized.

The financial community's carefully considered opinion of the present situation is strengthened by a survey of events from the beginning. The cardinal point is that Germany, from the outset, determined on war. Sir Edward Grey, in 1914, used superhuman effort to maintain peace, but Germany had determined then, as now, to allow no time to elapse before acting. Hence the violation of Belgium, which America must remember demanded action by Great Britain, alike from motives of honor and from the proximity of the interests affected. These cardinal facts, insufficiently recognized by neutrals at the outset, must now be perceived with increasing clearness, through the course of subsequent events.

POTATOES CONTINUE UPWARD TREND ON THE LOCAL MARKET

The potato market continued very strong along the local produce row yesterday, advances of 7c to 10c per bushel being recorded on latest trades consummated from first hands. Dealings were light, however, as trade in general is buying sparingly on account of the abnormally high prices. Sweet potatoes were firm. All other staples ruled steady.

The egg market was firm and higher, prospects of colder weather and lighter offerings stimulating the market in general. Butter values also continued firm, with tendency of prices upward. The live poultry market ruled firm with ducks and geese scarce and in urgent demand. Veals were unchanged.

—get elastic working capital through us

27.4% of the number of customers on our books today have had their commercial ratings increased since they began business with us.

Few Manufacturers and Wholesalers are so abundantly financed that they can afford to let part of their capital lie idle; and tied up in credit sales is lying idle—producing no additional profit. Let us see how that "sleeping" capital can be set to work.

Suppose you buy $800 of merchandise on 2/10 net 30, and sell it for $1000 on 2/10 net 60. You can sell us that account (and collect it for us) at a flat cost of 2% if paid in 60 days, plus a fee of $5—total cost $25. If you sell us $100,000 accounts within a year, the fee of $5 per $1000 will be rebated—making above cost only $20.

If your customer does not discount this bill, it costs him 2%—or $20—more than if he does, so that he practically pays our charge. If he does discount, our charge is 1/30 of 1% less for each day saved.

With our money for this account, you can buy for cash or discount your bill—thus improving your credit and make 2% or more extra profit. Then buy more merchandise, sell it, and make another profit. In this way your capital works for you while we carry your customer.

Our booklet explains with welcome brevity our "No Notice to your Customer" plan. Let us send you a copy.

ST. LOUIS SHARES IN PARIS HOSPITAL WORK

Donations From City in Money and Services Acknowledged in American Ambulance Report.

The report of the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris for 1916, which has just been received here, contains acknowledgment of assistance rendered by St. Louis in money, in the endowment of beds and in the service of men and women.

Dr. P. Thompson of St. Louis is listed among the surgeons and physicians. J. H. Terry is Lieutenant of Orderlies. Mrs. E. S. Douglas is in the surgical dressing department. George Dock Jr. is in the ambulance service. J. Cowan Hulbert is a section director in the same service. Preston Lockwood is an assistant inspector

Those who have endowed beds in the St. Louis wards at a cost of $50 a month each bed, are: John T. Davis Jr., the Davis estate, Mrs. John T. Davis Jr., John Fowler, Miss Helen Gratz, Miss Marion Gratz, Mrs. J. D. Wooster Lambert, Mrs. Henry C. Scott (the Henry C. Scott bed) and Mrs. Stanley Stoner (the Saint Louis bed). There are two of the St. Louis wards. The 10 beds in the other are not maintained by individuals but by the general contributions. The contributions of St. Louis up to Nov. 1, 1916, was $16,555.55. That of Chicago up to the same itme was $16,237.50. Since Nov. 1 St. Louis has forwarded more than $6000 in cash.

St. Louis now has three young men, Sidney Allen, Virgil Lewis and a Mr. Chauvenet, in Paris training for ambulance driving, and it has sent over one fully equipped ambulance at a cost of $1600, which was donated by private subscription, not shown in the report.

The hospital cares for more than 1500 patients daily at its main and auxiliary hospitals. It has about 250 ambulances on duty in Paris and at the front. The cost of maintaining the work, which grows greater as the prices of necessities increase, has been borne entirely by the American public.

INDICTMENT OF PAPER MAKERS TO BE SOUGHT

Federal Inquiry Said to Have Developed Evidence Believed to Be Sufficient.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Federal investigation of the news print paper situation has uncovered enough evidence, it was made known today, to warrant the Department of Justice to ask for the indictment of paper manufacturers for alleged anti-trust law violations. A Federal grand jury in New York is taking testimony to determine if there has been a criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade. Bainbridge Colby and Mark Hyman have been retained as special assistants to the Attorney-General to aid in the inquiry.

The Federal Trade Commission, which has furnished much of the information to the Department of Justice, announced today that Francis J. Heney of California had been engaged as a special attorney in the commission's inquiry into high news print prices, and that under his direction the commission would continue its investigation after a preliminary report is made to Congress early next week. Additional data will be supplied to the Department of Justice as fast as it is obtained.

The report to Congress, which was to have been made Monday, probably will be delayed for some days because of the illness of one of the commissioners. It will be in the nature of an interim report, and will cover the efforts of the commission to find a solution for an apparent news print shortage and relief for publishers from almost prohibitive prices which have obtained for about a year.

The Trade Commission, it is understood, will report that it has found that increases in news print prices within the year are from four to 20 times the advance in production costs.

WHAT U-BOATS MUST DO TO STARVE BRITISH

Chicago Tribune Figures 1,000,000 Tons of Shipping Monthly for 9 Months Must Be Sunk.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—A comprehensive summary of official food and shipping statistics by the Tribune shows:

That Germany will have to sink 1,000,000 tons of shipping a month, for at least nine months, before England would approach starvation.

That if Germany maintains the present average of destruction of about 500,000 tons a month, it would take approximately 18 months to starve the British Isles.

That if the present rate of destruction can be maintained for a year, a visible weakening of the allies might become apparent.

That Great Britain's food supply is more than half dependent on imports, the remainder being produced in the British Isles.

What Great Britain Needs.

That Great Britain must import 16,500,000 tons of foodstuffs this year to support her armies and keep her civilians supplied with the necessaries of life.

That for Great Britain to obtain this amount of foodstuffs, approximately 11,500,000 gross tons of shipping, carrying foodstuffs alone, must enter British ports this year.

That less than 15 per cent of all ships transporting cargoes to the British Isles carry foodstuffs and, that probably the food ships sunk by the Germans bear the same ratio to the total number of cargo ships sunk.

That England has a food supply on hand which will last her probably two months, if not a ton of food reaches England.

These conclusions are based on an exhaustive study of statistics of the food supply, the shipping, food imports, losses because of submarine sinkings, construction of ships to replace those sunk, ships withdrawn from cargo carrying trade by the British Admiralty, small ships usually used for coast trade put into the ocean trade because of the war, and other necessary factors.

What Germany Hopes to Do.

Germany believes that if she can sink 1,000,000 tons of shipping a month around the British Isles Great Britain will feel the pinch of starvation within 60 days.

Shipping and food supply statistics, however, indicate that Germany cannot even by destroying 1,000,000 tons a month for three months, cause a great shortage of food supplies in the British Isles. Moreover, Germany is not maintaining the million-a-month rate and navigation experts are of the opinion that not more than 350,000 tons of shipping will be the record this month.

Up to the presente date, Germany has sunk approximately 150,000 tons of shipping in 10 days. If this should be kept up she would sink about 420,000 tons for the short month of February.

THOUSANDS AT MINNEAPOLIS ANTI-WAR DEMONSTRATIONS

"Peace at Any Price" Sentiments Cheered at Meetings Called by Mayor.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 10.—Thousands of persons tonight attended the public meeting called by Mayor Van Lear as a protest against war and also "against President Wilson's action in severing diplomatic relations with Germany."

Mayor Van Lear, who was supported by the Socialist party and the labor unions in his campaign, was loudly cheered at overflow meetings and at the main meeting when he asserted that "the majority of the people do not want war." Such statements by other speakers as "Let's unanimously protest against war;" "Peace at any price," and "Don't let the press stampede us into war" were signals for vigorous demonstrations.

The Socialist party in Minnesota has adopted resolutions urging all workers to refuse to fight in case of war.

At 7:30 a. m. her son, Clyde, found the kitchen door locked. Forcing it open he found her inside and gas flowing from the range. $6000 VERDICT FOR WOMAN WHO FELL ON SLIPPERY FLOOR

Former Employe of Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co. Sued Firm for $30,000.

A jury in Circuit Judge Koerner's court yesterday returned a verdict for $6000 in favor of Mrs. Sadie Smith a widow, against the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co. for injuries received by her in falling while employed in the basement of the store as assistant manager of the restaurant.

She alleged that as she was passing through a hallway between the dining room and kitchen she slipped and fell on the polished stone floor, on which some water had been spilled. She sued for $30,000 damages.

The defense was that the floor was not unsafe by reason of negligence on the part of the company and that the water was spilled as an incidental operation of the business; that if the floor was unsafe it was Mrs. Smith's duty as an assistant manager to see to it that the water was removed, her failure to do so being contributory negligence on her part, and also that she was guilty of contributory negligence on account of her wearing rubber heels, which, according to the defendant, are unsafe for one to have on when walking over a slippery floor.

DEAR READER, LISTEN TO ME—YOU can believe every word I say. If you will, the time you spend in reading this advertisement will be the most profitable of your life. I can put you in the soap business where you easily can make $150 per month. Any bright man or woman can make more money working for me than in any other way. I have hundreds of agents making $2000 a year. I always have been in the agency business myself, and I know it from A to Z. I will teach you how to make sales and make you successful. I have made money in the agency business, and many of the agents I have taught have made their pile and retired. I now have a much better proposition than ever before—one that makes my agents more money, and I like it better myself. The reason my agents have been so successful is that I do not handle junk, tinware or cheap-John goods of any kind that never lead to repeat orders. I do not pay my agents with premiums. They get hard cash and soon have money in the bank. It is repeat orders that make money in any business. Go into any home on Monday morning and you will find them washing; go to the neighbors and you will find they are washing, too. It is the same thing all over the counttry. The demand for soap is unlimited and repeat orders never cease. Now, what does all this mean? It means that someone is getting the enormous profit from your territory which should be yours. There is big money in the soap business and I give my agents the big end of the profit—a profit so large that I hesitate to state in this public manner what it is, but will be glad to advise you confidentially when you write me. Suffice to say for the present that you will be satisfied. I can give you a chance to make such a big profit that you will be more than satisfied with your income and willing to stay with me year after year and be one of my loyal representatives. I personaly teach every agent how to make money and make it fast. My plan has been a great success, and I will give it to you free. Now, I want to say to every man or woman who is anxious to make money and better their condition, write me. Don't lose a moment's time, but write at once, and address your letter to A. A. Meeth, General Manager of the Wolverine Soap Co., 621 Water st., Portland, Mich.

SELLING PLANS That SELL!

A "SELLING campaign" includes a fair and businesslike appropriation for advertising—not a mere one-time announcement of what you have to sell. Why not advertise your real estate with that optimistic persistence which is at the bottom of all winning salesmanship?

Phone your ad to the Post-Dispatch. Call 6600—Olive or Central—or leave it with your druggist.

Demand and Sales for City View Place Increasing

Most Wonderful Subdivision Success in Years!!

Opened in the dead of winter, little advertising, literature not yet off the press, and yet, sales have broken all records.

Shows the unusual situation in the close-in West End—how people are HUNGRY for home-sites, how the exodus from the older congested sections and the miles and miles of Apartment House Districts to the suburbs, is ON in earnest.

City View Place is different. Note its beautiful, artistic, modern parking and plaza treatments at all street intersections—its long, easy grades—its long, wide, graceful curves, with its beautiful cross-way (for the use of residents) meeting an unusually pleasing plaza on center street. City View Place, jammed up against St. Louis' finest residence property, is now selling, FIRST PRICES ONLY, at the bottom prices of $21, $20, $19, $18, $17, $16 and $15 a front foot, including a beautiful artistic combination five-and-a-half-foot granitoid sidewalk, curb and gutter, and all other modern street improvements, and formal shade trees. Liberal parks and plazas and uniform building lines give the right perspective to City View Place artistic and modern homes.

No investment opportunity in years can compare with City View Place lots at present low prices; these lots WILL (while many are only thinking of buying) go to $35 and $40 a front foot. No question about it. NOW is the time to put your idle funds to work in West St. Louis.

City View Place is located only four blocks north of Delmar avenue; four minutes from built-up Parkview; where ground is worth $90 to $175 a front foot; four minutes from the old Delmar Race Track, now being built with solid rows of apartment houses; three minutes' ride from Delmar Garden; two minutes from the older section of University City, where homes are costing upwards of $30,000 each.

City View Place is only a few blocks from the palatial homes on Delmar and Pennsylvania—commands a fascinating view of the finest residence property of the West End, lending an environment to this subdivision found only in the highest-priced property.

Literature now on Press will be ready for distribution the coming few days. Interesting. Instructive. 'Phone or come in for plats, whether you are interested in buying at this time or later.

City View Place lots only $450 to $735 each, including all improvements. Do you WONDER business men are BUYING?

Little River drainage district lands, in Southeast Missouri, are going fast; we have sold 92 tracts in 20 months. $50 up for cut-over land, $85 up for improved; have absolutely nothing to offer in trade and therefore decline to answer trade propositions. Box A-14, Post-Dispatch. (c99)

YOUR LAST CHANCE

I believe unimproved land in the Little River Drainage District, now selling from $37.50 to $75, will not be obtainable below $125 before the close of 1918. I and my correspondents have listed over 20,000 acres of cut-over unimproved land, which we will sell at $45 to $60. Some of this land is as fine as there is in the entire district, and is today well worth double what we are selling it for; terms, one-fourth to one-third cash, balance to suit. $25,000 FOR ST. LOUIS RED CROSS UNIT RAISED

Local War Hospital Organization Appoints Col. Thomas U. Raymond Agent.

Steps taken up to last night for the formation of a base hospital unit by the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross included the completion of a $25,000 fund and the appointment of Col. Thomas U. Raymond of the United States Army Medical Supply Depot, as purchasing agent. The Washington headquarters of the Red Cross was notified last night by telegraph by Mrs. Frank V. Hammar of 7 Hortense place, chairman of the St. Louis chapter, of the appointment of Col. Raymond, and asked to send him instructions.

The money, Mrs. Hammar said, will be deposited to the order of the American Red Cross. It was raised by popular subscription, but names of the subscribers were not given out. The St. Louis unit of the American Physicians' expeditions, whose plans to go to Germany to do hospital work were interrupted by the break in diplomatic relations, has offered to the Red Cross chapter, in the event of need, the $15,000 contributed for its expenses.

The Red Cross has established headquarters at the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets for a membership campaign under the direction of George W. Simmons, chairman of the Membership Committee. Dr. H. J. Hill, head of the Membership Bureau of the American Red Cross at Washington, is on his way here to advise Simmons.

General offices will be opened tomorrow at 1404 Syndicate Trust Building, with Mrs. Hammar in charge. It is planned also to obtain a room downtown, where women may make pajamas, night clothes, bandages and other hospital supplies.

The base hospital unit will be equipped for 500 beds and will be so thoroughly organized that it could move on short notice. The staff will number about 250 persons, including physicians, nurses and attendants. Dr. Fred T. Murphy will be director, with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. Dr. Malvern B. Clopton will be the Adjutant, ranking as a Major. There will be a surgical section, with a chief surgeon and eight staff surgeons, a medical section with a chief and five assistants, and a laboratory section, with a chief and two assistants. There will be two dentists.

The nurses division will be headed by Miss Julia Stimson, chief nurse, and there will be about 50 volunteer nurses, 25 nurses' aids and about 150 men in the capacity of attendants, civilian aids and extra members for emergency.

JURY TAMPERING CHARGE IN EAST ST. LOUIS IS DROPPED

Assistant State's Attorney Thinks Accusation Against Clarence Williams Was Result of Feud.

Charges of bribery and jury tampering against Clarence Williams were dismissed in Justice Townsend's court, East St. Louis, yesterday, by Assistant State's Attorney Walcott. Williams was arrested Jan. 19, on complaint of John Seymour, an attorney, who said that Williams took $5 from Ferdinand Montine, Seymour's client, and promised to win the case for him. Williams was on the jury, in a Justice court, and a verdict was found for Montine.

Walcott told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he thought the charge was the result of a private feud, and that he did not intend that his office should be used in it.

"Everybody knows that jury fixing has been going on in these justice courts for 15 years," Walcott said. "If I had evidence on which I could prosecute the men responsible, who are lawyers, I would proceed. Some of these lawyers are interested in getting Williams prosecuted."

Williams said yesterday that he was not guilty and charged that the case was "framed" on him. He said he did not take money from Montine, and did not talk to him.

NICCOLLS MEMORIAL HALL TO BE DECORATED FEB. 20

$100,000 Dormitory at Lindenwood College Was Gift of the Late James Gay Butler.

Feb. 20 has been announced as the date for dedication of the $100,000 Niccolls Memorial Hall at Lindenwood College, which is said to be the finest dormitory for young women in the country. It consists of three stories and basement, with a capacity for 130 students. Hot and cold running water is in every room, and tub and shower baths on every floor. The building is in the form of an E, and contains no inside rooms. A court is arranged for fountain and flowers.

The moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, the Rev. Dr. John A. Marquis, president of Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Io., will dedicate the building. A committee appointed by the synod of Missouri, consisting of the Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer, president of the college; the Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Dr. D. M. Skilling, pastor of the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, is in charge of the ceremonies.

Niccolls Hall was financed by the late Col. James Gay Butler as a memorial to the late Rev. Dr. Samuel Jack Niccolls. Both died before the structure was finished. Le Beaume & Kleine were the architects.

BUSINESS PROPERTIES LEASED

The Fox-Beeman Tailoring Co. has leased the first and mezzanine floors of the building at the southeast corner of Seventh and Olive streets. The first floor is to be used as a showroom and for offices, and the mezzanine floor for the tailoring department. This company will open for business in the new location about April 1.

The lease was made for Max Weil, the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co, representing both parties.

A long lease has been closed for the second floor of 913-15 Pine street, to the Clark & Harrold Co., a new firm in the linotype business. The lease was closed for the St. Louis House and Window Cleaning Co., and the Martin-Breitt Co. represented both parties.

Hotel-Apartment to Be Erected on Berlin Avenue. Work of Which Will Commence Early Next Week

PLANS were announced yesterday for an eight-story hotel-apartment, to be erected on the south side of Berlin avenue, 250 feet west of Union boulevard, in the Rock Island tract. It will overlook Forest Park on the south, being in what is regarded as the highest class apartment house center of the West End.

The building was promoted by Sam Hamburg Jr., and will be financed by the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co. It will be built by Sam Koplar, who will have absolute charge of its construction.

Plans and specifications prepared by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, provide for a strictly high-class, first-proof building, the builders contemplating a hotel-apartment structure that will rank with the finest in this section of the country. It is to be of modified Italian renaissance style, done in red matt brick, with white terra cotta. The ground floor is to be given over to a tearoom, lobby, a lounge, offices and service department.

The building will be equipped with two elevators, this service to extend to the roof, which will be arranged for a roof garden.

There are to be 100 one and two room kitchenettes, with buffet corners. The kitchens are to have special vent ducts to the roof, with exhaust fans on each, assuring ventilation and a cooling system to each apartment. The baths are to be of tile and marble, with built-in tubs and shower heads over each; also special radiators.

Every new contrivance with a space-saving device will be used. Portable wall beds will be used and the apartments will be decorated and furnished completely, including silver, china and bed clothing. The walls of the lobby are to be of Caen stone, with a low bas-relief cornice and ceiling with a Mosaic tile floor. There are to be garages in the basement.

Work will be commenced early next week and it is expected that occupany may be had by Sept. 1.

BUSINESS MEN TO CIRCULATE TRAINING LEAGUE LEAFLETS

Arrangements Made for the Distribution of 300,000 With Commercial Mail.

Representatives of the Universal Military Training League, who have been working here for a week announced last night that St. Louisans have agreed to give free circulation in their first-class mail, to 300,000 of the league's leaflets emphasizing the dangers confronting the nation and the benefits which will accrue to the American boy when he takes military training. The circular can be included in nearly every two-cent letter without increasing the postage.

Richard Fairchild who has been doing the league's work in St. Louis says this city is in the lead of all others in the United States with respect to patriotic support of the organization's leaflet campaign.

"There are between seven and ten field secretaries canvassing as many middle western and southern states and therefore it is impossible to say exactly just what large cities have been visited," he said "However, so far as our reports show, St. Louis has displayed the greatest interest in the distribution of our little leaflet. It is anticipated that before our campaign here has been completed, St. Louis will have asked for at least 500,000 leaflets which probably will place her in a position which even Chicago and New York will not attain. St. Louis' leading business men have shown themselves deeply interested in the league's work."

The offices, all of which have outside view, are unusually large and equipped for hot water throughout the year.

GERMAN INDICTED IN WELLAND CANAL CASE GETS PASSPORT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Wolf von Igel has received a passport from the State Department and is listed to sail with Count von Bernstorff next Tuesday. The Department of Justice protested against the action of the State Department, Attorney-General Gregory insisting that Von Igel had no right to diplomatic protection, but should be compelled to stand trial. He was indicted with five others on a charge of conspiracy to destroy the Welland Canal in Canada.

More than a year ago secret service men raided Von Igel's New York office and seized documents. As soon as it became known that the papers were at the Department of Justice, Ambassador Von Bernstorff informed Secretary Lansing that this Government had no right to the documents because they were the property of the German embassy.

Secretary Lansing informed Ambassador Bernstorff that the State Department would gladly return the papers to the German agent providing the Ambassador would personally identify the papers. Ambassador Bernstorff never consented to do this and the papers are still in Government vaults.

BUILDING PLANS ON BROAD SCALE BROUGHT TO VIEW

Rock Island Tract the West End Center of Improvement Activities From Which Imposing Apartments Are to Be Hurried to Completion.

BIG PROJECTS FOR BUSINESS CENTER

Moser Hotel Site Owner This Week to Execute Long Lease That Insures Shops Building Enlargement — 34th and Pine Streets to Be Transformed.

By Berry Moore.

The past week brought to light an impressive array of building plans for both the residential and the business districts of St. Louis.

The Rock Island tract, lying on the south side of Berlin avenue and extending from Union boulevard to De Balliviere avenue, is the center of operation in the apartment building field.

Plans were disclosed yesterday by Sam Hamburg. For an eight-story fireproof hotel-apartment on the Rock Island tract, to be erected on the south side of Berlin avenue, 250 feet east of Union boulevard. This project, which was engineered by Hamburg, will be financed by the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co.

As has been previously announced, a 12-story hotel is projected for the Gerhart plot, embracing half a block at the northeast corner of Berlin and De Balliviere avenues. While the deal for this project has not as yet been concluded, negotiations, according to Frank H. Gerhart, the controlling figure in the enterprise, are progressing favorably.

J. I. Epstein recently purchased 200 feet in the Rock Island tract, upon which he is erecting four high-class apartments at a total cost of $200,000.

The Dyas Realty Co. is also building in this block on a handsome scale.

At the southeast corner of Berlin and De Balliviere avenues Louis Cella is erecting a hotel structure to cost $75,000.

Business Section Building Plans.

Plans are going forward for several new buildings for the business district for retail, wholesale and warehouse purposes, Olive, Pine and Chestnut streets being the chief centers of activity for projects of this character.

The Weisels-Gerhart company yesterday announced that Leo Moser would execute this week a 99-year lease of the former site of the Moser Hotel, on the north side of Pine street between Eighth and Ninth streets, to the Finance and Mortgage Co., which is erecting the 16-story Shops building at the southwest corner of Eighth and Olive streets.

As was told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday, this lot, comprising 80x116 feet, together with 25x125 feet at 213 North Eighth street, is to provide for the spread of the Shops building, with an elaborate arcade extending from Olive to Pine streets. The building is to be erected in connection with the 18-story Wright building, at the northwest corner of Eighth and Pine streets, which will also have the advantage of the arcade.

Space in the Shops Building has already been leased to important retail shop interests, the indications being that the enterprise will be on a remunerative basis from its advent.

The introduction of the new and larger building enterprise, it is believed, will lend an atmosphere to this block that will in effect be a nimbus which will cast a new and beneficial spell over both Pine and Olive streets.

West End Property Sold.

As agents, the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., in conjunction with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., yesterday sold valuable central West End property near Grand avenue, for which improvements are projected which promise to work a transition of property in the vicinity of Thirty-fourth and Pine streets from decadent residential to desirable business properties.

The University Investment Co. purchased, through this company, a plot 240.6x125 feet on the south side of Pine street, 59 feet east of Thirty-fourth street, owned by the Collins Realty Co., which was represented by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. The present improvement of the site, eight two-story brick residences, will be replaced with a massive two-story building covering the entire lot. This will be an ornate structure, having every modern convenience known to buildings of this character. It will be arranged especially for any business connected with the automobile trade, such as sales and display rooms, for manufacturers of tops and accessories, for repair and paint shops and storage. The building and ground will represent an investment of about $150,000.

The leasing of the new building will be under the management of the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. Several large concerns are negotiating for space. This enterprise, fostered by the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., is of vast importance to surrounding real estate.

Notwithstanding the cold weather, last week's sales of outlying property were fair. The movement has been especially marked in City View Place, adjacent to University City, on the north. Sales of lots in this addition aggregated approximately $10,000, and indications are that transactions soon will break all records.

Plans for the improvement of this tract are being carried forward with the utmost haste, and the forthcoming summer, [illegible] president of the company.

POULTRY, BIRDS and ANIMALS.

RABBIT SKIN SALES LEAD ALL FUR ANIMALS

Are Made Up Into Garments, Felts and Imitation Furs of Cheap Varieties.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The Department of Agriculture has received many inquiries regarding the merits of certain rabbits that have been extensively advertised as fur producers. Replies to these have stated that the demand for rabbit fur is such as to make it pay to save the pelts of domestic rabbits killed for food, but that raising rabbits for the fur alone would be unprofitable with any known breed.

More skins of rabbits are collected and sold annually than of all other fur animals combined. Before the present war Great Britain imported each year from 70,000,000 to 90,000,000 skins, while the home production added 30,000,000 more. France, Belgium, Germany, the United States and other countries also use large quantities of this fur. The bulk of it is sold in bales, bringing from 10 cents to 50 cents a pound, dependent on color and quality. The better class of skins sell by the dozen, bringing from 50 cents to $1, or less than 10 cents each.

Baled rabbit furs are bought largely for felting purposes, being made into cloth or coarse hats, while the skins are utilized for manufacturing glue. Fine hats are made of nutria (the fur of the South American coypu) or of nutria and rabbit fur mixed. The fur of the common wild rabbits of America does not felt well and is in slight demand. Whole skins of these animals seldom sell for for more than one or two cents each.

The better kinds of rabbit skins are used for making fur garments which, when made up, are commonly sold as "cony," but often under other trade names. White skins are made up in imitation of arctic fox or, sheared, in imitation of ermine. Gray rabbits are dyed brown or black and become "Baltic black fox" or "Baltic brown fox;" seal-dyed, they become "inland seal," "electric seal," "coast seal," or "near-seal." These garments, while handsome and comfortable, have little durability and are therefore cheap.

Builds Big Success on Early Failure

C. E. Jackson of Minnesota is a breeder who has had an interesting experience. Once he gave up, but later took it up and made a success of it. Last year he made a profit of $4.30 per hen in six months, which is unusual.

After his first failure Jackson studied the matter carefully and took up the single-comb White Orpingtons. With a pen of 10 hens he got 91 eggs in 10 days in January and 230 eggs for the month. In January, February and March he obtained 608 eggs, and in six months 1052 eggs, and for the year 1616 eggs. The total cost per hen for feed was $1.80 per year, or 15 cents a month. Most of the eggs were sold on the market at good prices, but some were sold at $1 per setting.

While Jackson takes good care of his birds he does not force them overstrongly, he says, for egg production. Quick results can be had in this way but the vitality of the bird is injured and this applies to the reproducing organs. If they are to be kept for breeders and lay too heavily they will not reproduce themselves. He never feeds pepper or hot wet mashes and he buys mixed grain for scratching. He feeds a dry mash at all times and is strong for sprouted oats. He makes his own cabinets for this purpose and keeps them in the basement of his house in winter. He supplements all of this with plenty of grit and charcoal and, of course, with plenty of good water.

WILSON APPROVES ACT CREATING NATIONAL HOME FOR LEPERS

Approximately 150 Persons, Mostly Native Americans, Ready to Become Inmates of Institution.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—President Wilson has signed the act establishing a national home for lepers, and the Public Health Service is drafting regulations covering the apprehension, treatment and detention of inmates. Approximately 150 cases, mostly native Americans, already have been located in continental United States.

The location of the home has not been determined. The act appropriates $250,000 for its establishment and, under regulations already approved by Secretary McAdoo, the Health Service will undertake the transportation to the leprosarium of all lepers desiring treatment or committed to the establishment by health authorities of any state.

WOMAN WINS $3750 VERDICT

U. R. Put Detective in Boarding House to Observe Plaintiff.

A jury in Circuit Judge Davis' court yesterday returned a verdict for $3750 in favor of Miss Cillicia Unwin, a seamstress, against the United Railways on account of injuries she received Jan. 11, 1915, as a result of falling from a street car at Grand avenue and Olive street. She alleged the accident was caused by the motorman closing the door against her as she she was in the act of alighting.

The evidence showed that after the accident a woman detective, in the employ of the street car company, moved to the boarding house, where Miss Unwin was living in the old home of the late James Campbell, at Grand avenue and Washington boulevard, for the purpose of observing Miss Unwin.

JANUARY EGG-LAYING CONTEST RECORD HIGH

Cup for Month at Missouri Experiment Station Won by R. I. Whites; Development Facts.

By C. T. PATTERSON
Director Missouri Poultry Experiment Station, Mountain Grove.

Three stages of development are usually noted at the beginning of an egg-laying contest. First is a class of pullets which have been laying for some time before entering the contest on Nov. 1. Nature tries to place them in the "hen" class and causes them to go through a fall moult the same as hens. This, of course, reduces the egg record. Another class is the small, premature pullets which require some time to develop, which prevents them from making a high record during the contest year. The over-developed pullets are hatched too early, while the under-developed ones are not hatched early enough. The other class is made up of pullets which are hatched at the right time and are properly developed to begin about No. 1 and continue through the winter. About 80 per cent of the high producers are in this class.

No arbitrary dates can be fixed for hatching the many breeds, for the chicks can be influenced by feed and care after hatching, but the following dates have been found good: Last of February and first of March for the heavier breeds; last of March and first of April for the medium breeds, and last of April and first of May for the small breeds.

About as many pullets in the contest have been hatched too early as too late.

About 60 per cent of the pullets began laying in November or before, 50 per cent of the remainder began in December, and 75 per cent of the ones left began laying in January, there being only 14 pullets not laying up to Jan. 31. This indicates that if pullets have the proper feed and care they will begin laying as soon as they are developed, regardless of the season of the year. Five pullets went broody during the month, and 20 are not laying on account of moult.

The contest made some very unusual records during January. The 290 pullets laid 3982 eggs, which is an average of 13.7 eggs for each pullet. One Buff Arpington pullet laid 28 eggs in December and 30 in January, making a profit of almost $1.50 during the two months. Many breeds and varieties are making good records, so the prizes and honorable mention are distributed among the many varieties.

Treatment of Frozen Combs and Wattles

This is the season of the year when there is trouble with frozen combs. While this is looked upon by some as a rather trivial matter, especially by many farm poultry raisers, it really is serious.

Frozen combs and wattles not only decrease the show qualities of birds and injure them for breeding purposes, but they reduce laying; in fact, stop it altogether in some cases.

Keeping up the temperature, of course, is one way of preventing the freezing. Birds running out of doors or even in open front houses will frequently have their wattles frozen on severely cold days on account of getting them wet in drinking vessels. This may be partly prevented by anointing the wattles with vaseline which keeps the water from adhering to them.

In case comb or wattles, or both, have been frozen, the best treatment is to take them to a cool—not cold—room and there put snow or cold water on the frozen parts to draw out the frost. This will take about 10 minutes. Then encourage complete circulation by manipulating these parts twice a day, using a mixture of five parts vaseline, two parts glycerine and one part of turpentine.

Poultry Breeders Plan to Organize

Poultry breeders of St. Louis and vicinity will hold an open meeting in the Marquette Hotel, Eighteenth street and Washington avenue, at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening, the purpose being to organize a permanent association.

The intention of the organizers is that monthly meetings shall be held, at which poultry growing in all its phases will be discussed by persons who can speak with authority on the subjects chosen by them.

The committee in charge of the plans for the preliminary meeting is composed of James J. Long and Joseph J. Blase.

POULTRY PROBLEMS SOLVED

Beginner in Ducks.

I am thinking of raising "green" ducks. As my capital is limited I must rent a farm near St. Louis so that I can keep working in the city the first year or so, until I can enlarge the plant, quit work in town and tend to the plant myself. I have a family that will live on the place and will give me my board and room in exchange for their rent, and I am to have the use of part of the ground. They will care for all incubators and ducklings for me while I am at work. I am to pay them for this extra trouble. I intend to build such houses as necessary, get incubators, etc. I intend to buy about 15 laying ducks and three drakes to start with. The farm, about 4 to 6 acres, with water running through it, will cost me about $25 a month rent. For capital I have $250. I will pay the rent out of my present salary and be able to put $7 into the business every week, besides the capital. Please tell me just what you think of my idea. Show me where it is wrong, if so. Also, how am I to get along if the ducks don't lay in the winter time? What do other commercial duck farms do in such cases?—A. J. L., St. Louis, Mo.

We have no flaws to pick in your scheme, whatever. The only factor we can see that would be likely to make a failure of the business for you is your own ability, or that of the help to which you are planning to entrust the plant to begin with. We especially commend your plan to hold onto your work in the city until you get started, also the fact that you are going to start in a small way. These are two very vital considerations that so many beginners overlook in their enthusiasm, and when failure comes their financial losses are two or three-fold what they would have been had they possessed your conservatism. But your question as to what you will do in case the ducks won't lay in winter, is a poser. This problem is much the same as winter laying in hens. The strain, feed and comfortable shelter are the main factors that govern laying just as in the case of hens. If they fail to lay in winter, it is a matter of correcting the condition that is to blame. There is no one remedy that may be considered as a cure-all, any more than with hens. You probably will decide to choose the Pekin ducks. Ordinarily this breed will not begin laying until December, and unless of a good laying strain, probably not until January or early February.

Confined Chickens.

1. How much grain should be fed to 75 leghorn hens confined in pens, for good egg production? How many cocks should be mated with them to make the eggs hatch well? How high should a fence be to keep leghorns in their pens?

2. How much grain should be fed to 25 White Plymouth Rock hens that are confined, for good egg production? How many cocks to insure hatchable eggs? How high should the fence be to confine them?—A. W., St. Louis, Mo.

We do not like the feeding plan of some poultrymen, who give a certain quantity of grain to their birds day after day, and for this reason we would prefer not to name any given quantity for you to feed. Food requirements of birds, even of the same breed, in fact of the same birds on different days, vary quite materially. Furthermore, the best plan of feeding for eggs is to have hoppers of a dry mash (mixtures of ground grains, etc.) where the fowls may have access to them at all times. Besides helping them to balance their ration, this serves as a balancer so far as quantity is concerned, in case not enough whole grain is given. With this dry mash most successful poultrymen give enough whole grain in a deep litter to keep the birds busy for several hours a day. The work required to get this grain also serves to keep the birds from overeating in case too much grain should be given. If it will be of any help to you, our guess would be that your 75 confined leghorns would eat anywhere from six to 10 pounds of grain daily, from hoppers and in the litter. The 25 white rocks would possibly average from two to five pounds. Four or five vigorous cockerels would be about the right proportion for this number of leghorns. It would be difficult to estimate the height required for your birds. Ordinarily eight to 10 feet of fencing will confine most of them, but it is not unusual to find individuals that will fly over a 12 or 15 foot fence. If these birds are not wanted for show purposes, we would clip off about two or three inches from the ends of their wing feathers on one wing. This checks the flying habit. Two good males should be sufficient for your 25 white rock hens, and a six to eight foot fence ought to confine them, especially if you will clip their wing feathers as stated.

Important Pointers on Flock Feeding

Regular feeding is almost as important as the food itself. Feeding should be a matter of regular routine, unless one feeds by the hopper system and thus keeps the food before the birds all the time. If the flock is fed irregularly, either as to the amount of the food or the time when it is given, the result will be seen in fewer eggs.

Other elements in feeding are also important. The feeder should not excite the fowls. He should do his work quietly. Some petting will not be amiss. Some flocks when you go among them will fly in every direction. Others are perfectly tame. The latter is pretty sure to be the more profitable one.

It is a good principle to feed more heavily at night, perhaps twice as much as in the morning. The birds should go on the roosts with their crops full.

BOSTON TERRIER IS DESIRABLE HOUSE DOG

He Is Not a Fighter, but Is Intelligent and Minds Well.

A desirable dog for the American home is the Boston terrier, a neat, compact, well-balanced little fellow with bulldog characteristics. He is well adapted for a pet and is thoroughly American, having been bred in this country from raw material imported from England a little more than 30 years ago.

About that time Robert C. Hooper of Boston came into possession of a dog named Judge, later known as Hooper's Judge, and who, to fanciers of this breed, is known as the ancestor of the modern Boston terrier, now so familiar about ultra-fashionable homes and upon the front seats of the high-powered cars of the wealthier class.

Judge was a cross between an English bulldog and an English terrier, but he leaned in appearance to his father, his mother having been Gyp or Kate, a white dog owned by Ed Burnett of Southboro, Mass. From Judge and Gyp descended Wells' Eph. The latter was mated to Tobin's Kate, a 20-pound dog, brindle in color, with a straight three-quarter tail, and from the match came Barnard's Tom, the first dog with a screw tail, and a great improvement over his sire and grandsire. He was the first dog to show the finer qualities of good specimens of the modern Boston terrier.

Contrary to the belief of some that the Boston terrier is a fighter, as might be expected from his forebears, he is not quarrelsome or aggressive. He is very obedient and affectionate, and possesses a sweet nature. The Boston terrier is very alert, quick of motion and surprisingly intelligent, obeying the commands of his master promptly.

The standard color of a Boston terrier is brindle, evenly marked with white, preferred.

Keeping Valuable Feathered Servants

Every destructive insect is on the bill of fare of one or more of the native birds, hence the economic value of carrying them through winter by supplying food. A single bird often eats more than 100 insects at one meal, and sometimes consumes thousands of small insects. Birds on a 200-acre farm in North Carolina destroyed a million green bugs or wheat aphids daily. There are many localities where birds have saved certain trees, garden crops or farm fields from total destruction.

Encourage and assist all kinds of birds, as the various species prey on different kinds of insects. For example, the hairy and downy woodpeckers render special service in protecting trees. They account yearly for many a scale insect, bark beetle, borer, caterpillar and ant. The bobwhite renders particular service in cultivated fields by destroying large numbers of potato beetles, wireworms, clover weevils, bollworms, cutworms, army worms and other crop pests. This bird suffers severely from hard winters. A little suet or a little cracked corn and grain will keep these valuable feathered servants, in your employ.

Egg-Producers Lose by Excessive Prices

Now that eggs are extremely high in price, closely pushing the $1 mark in some Eastern cities for strictly fresh eggs, some authorities are contending that the egg is not so much, after all. The egg will surely get in bad with dietary authorities as well as with consumers if it forms the habit of aviating in price as it has done this winter.

Eggs may not be a perfect food, but no article of food is more palatable, more nourishing and more digestible for most persons. I believe it is not good for the producer that prices should be so high. Such prices discourage consumption in the long run, put profits to the producer are probably under the average in the East, due to the excessively high prices of food.

New Poultry and Pet Stock Show.

The newly organized Williamson County Poultry and Pet Stock Association will hold its first show at Johnston City, Ill., Feb. 13-16, inclusive. Those in charge of the enterprise are making special efforts to obtain the hearty co-operation of all breeders. To this end an attractive premium list has been arranged, which may be had upon request addressed to L. C. Bandy, the secretary, at Johnston City.

Making Art Serve as Fashion's Handmaid

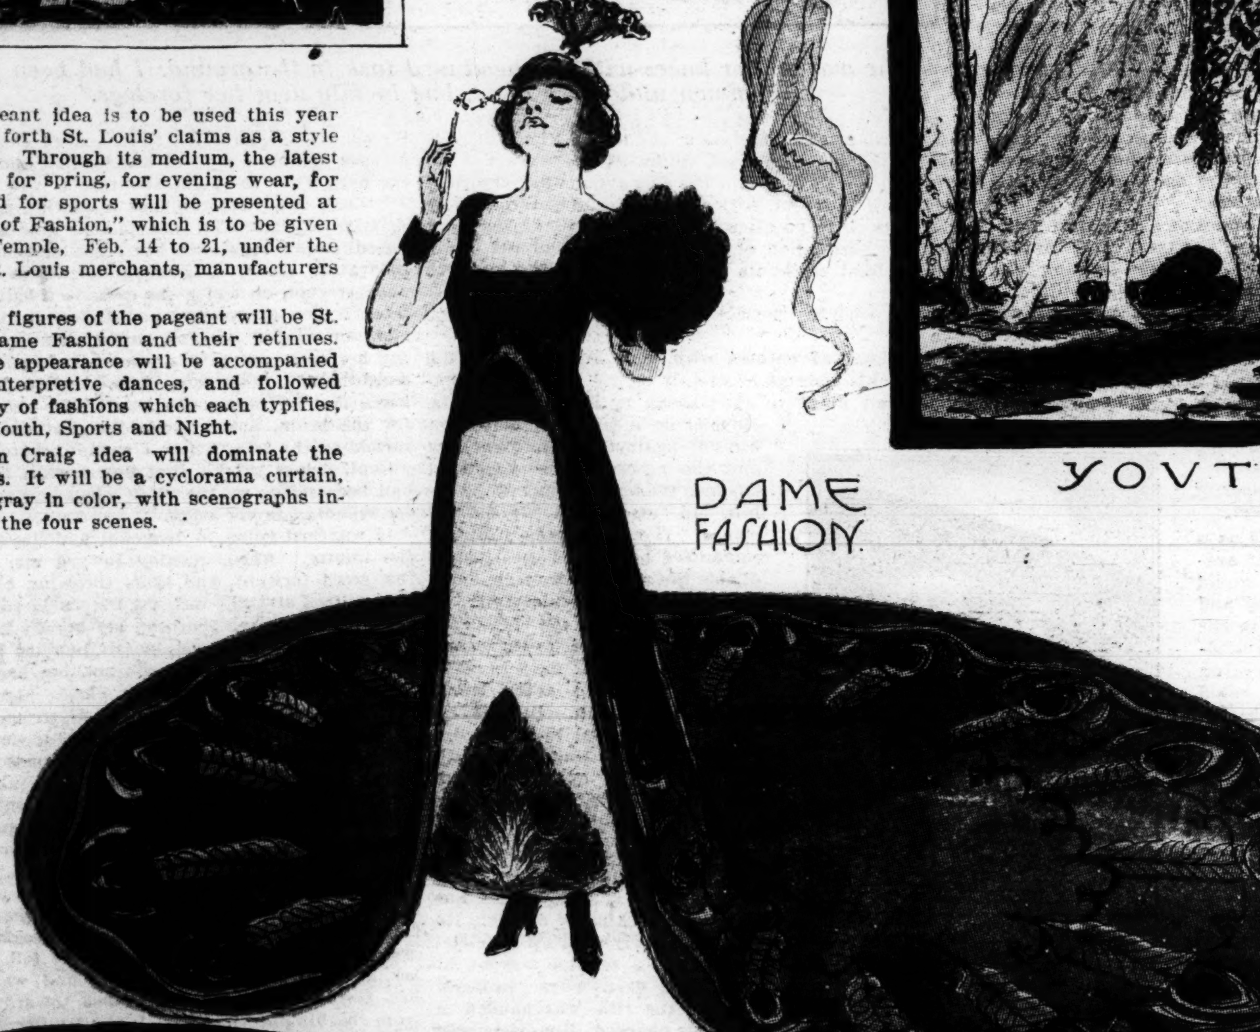
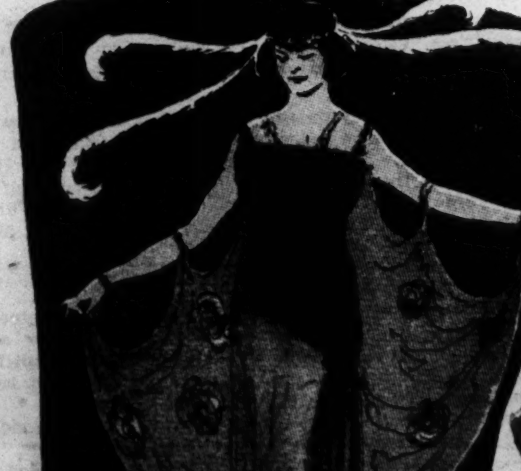
THE pageant idea is to be used this year to set forth St. Louis' claims as a style center. Through its medium, the latest modes for spring, for evening wear, for the youth and for sports will be presented at the "Pageant of Fashion," which is to be given at Mooiah Temple, Feb. 14 to 21, under the auspices of St. Louis merchants, manufacturers and jobbers.

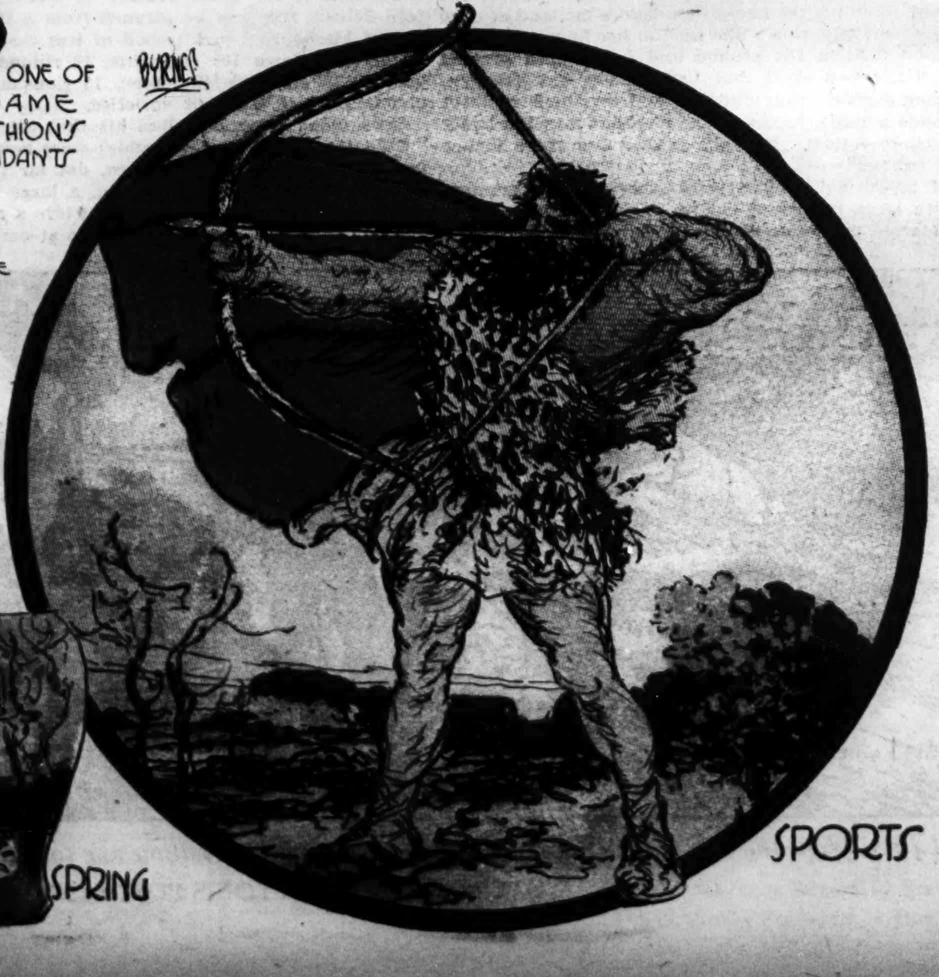
The central figures of the pageant will be St. Louis and Dame Fashion and their retinues. Others, whose appearance will be accompanied by esthetic interpretive dances, and followed by the display of fashions which each typifies, are Spring, Youth, Sports and Night.

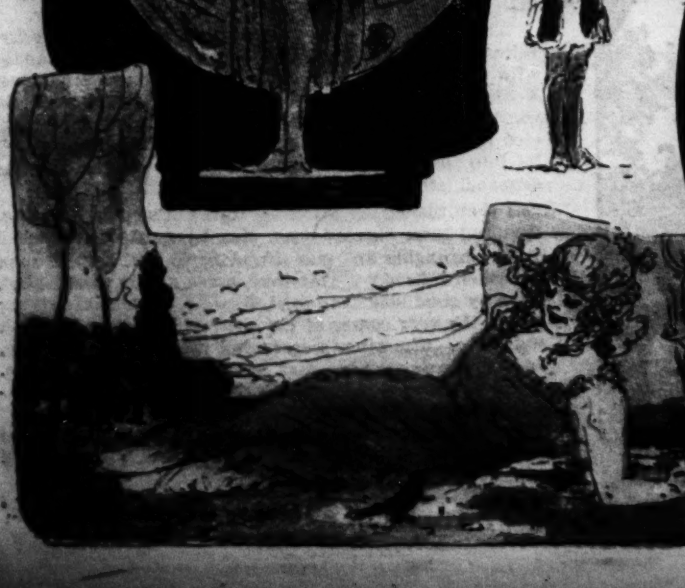
The Gordon Craig idea will dominate the stage settings. It will be a cyclorama curtain, soft French gray in color, with scenographs interpretive of the four scenes.

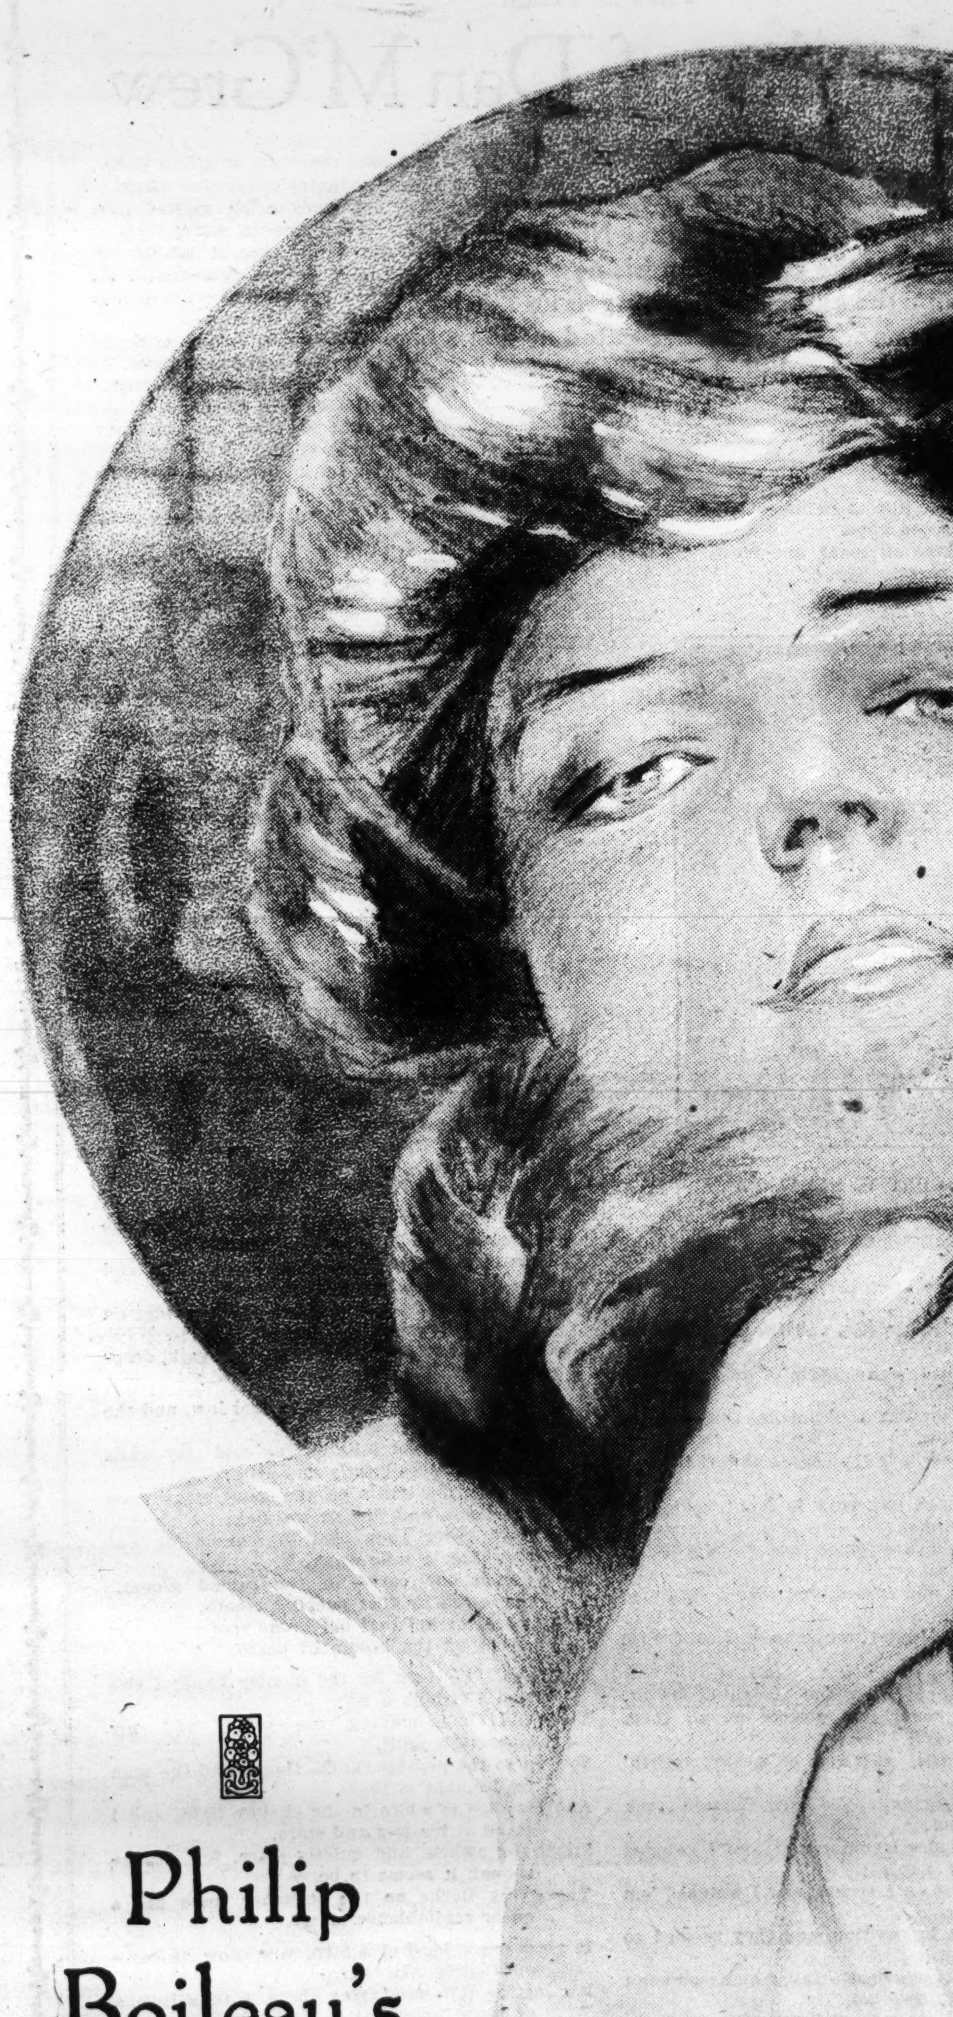




ONE OF DAME FASHION'S ATTENDANTS



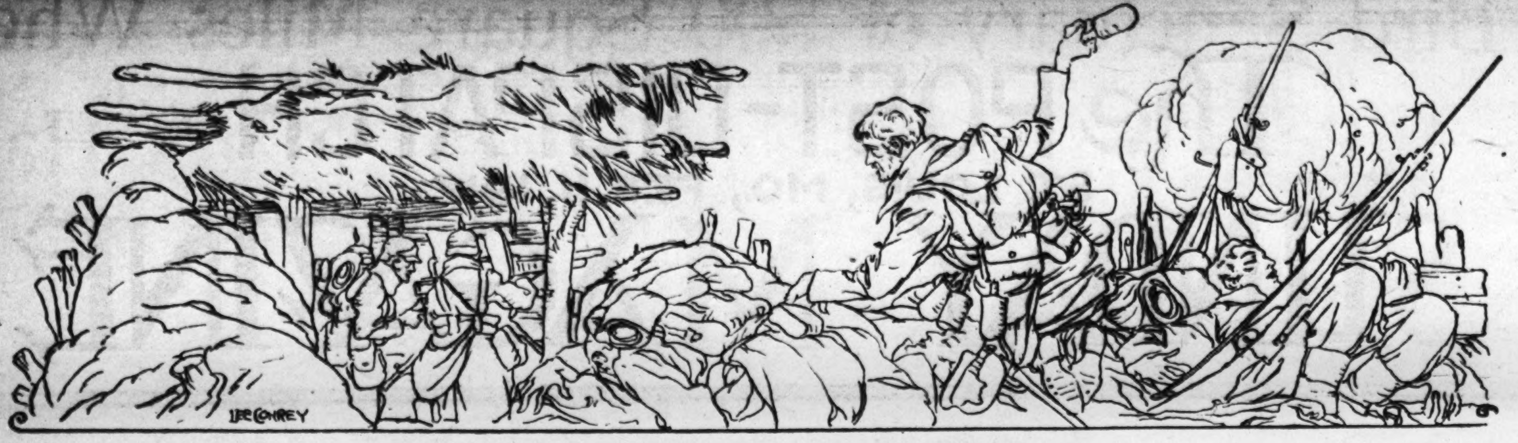




Philip Boileau's Last Picture

A FEW days before he was seized with the illness that caused his death, Philip Boileau put the finishing touches to the charming head reproduced above. It ranks as one of the best achievements of the famous artist whose pictures of beautiful women have been reproduced many a millionfold on magazine covers, calendars and postal cards.

Born in Quebec, of noble French parentage, Boileau studied art abroad, began his American career in Baltimore as a painter of portraits of fashionable women, but won wealth and reputation by his pretty girl pictures. He married Miss Emily Gilbert of Philadelphia, whose face he declared represented his ideal of feminine loveliness, a subject he had studied all his life.



"And oh, that blessed moment when I heard their frightened yell,
And I laughed down in that dugout, ere I bombed their souls to hell."
—Bill, the Bomber.

War Poems by the Author of "Dan M'Grew"

Robert W. Service, whose virile "Spell of the Yukon" won him fame as a portrayer of life in the great Northwest, introduces characters from the trenches in his new book, which was written while the author was serving as an ambulance man in France, and which is dedicated to the memory of his brother, who was killed in action -- --

SOME years ago American readers of poetry waxed enthusiastic over "The Spell of the Youkon" and other virile verses of a young Canadian ex-bank clerk and Yukon adventurer, Robert W. Service. His poems, full of fire and the daredeviltry of the wild Northwest, when published in book form brought him fame as the "Kipling of the North." Perhaps his best known poem is "The Shooting of Dan McGrew."

When the war broke out Service went to the front as a Red Cross man. His work has been with the Canadian contingent of the British army in Flanders. Between times he has written a new volume of verse, "Rhymes of a Red Cross Man" just published by Barse Hopkins, New York, and which is dedicated to the memory of his brother, Lieut. Albert Service, Canadian Infantry, who was killed in action in France last August.

A number of the poems are herewith reproduced for readers of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine:

Bill, the Bomber.

The poppies gleamed like bloody pools through cotton-woolly mist;
The Captain kept a-lookin' at the watch upon his wrist;
And there we smoked and squatted, as we watched the shrapnel flame;
'Twas wonnerful, I'm tellin' you, how fast them bullets came.
'Twas weary work the waiting, though; I tried to sleep a wink,
For waitin' means a-thinkin', and it doesn't do to think.
So I closed my eyes a little, and I had a nicish dream
Of a-standin' by a dresser with a dish of Devon cream;
But I hadn't time to sample it, for suddenlike I woke;
"Come on, me lads!" the Captain says, 'n I climbed out through the smoke.

We spread out in the open; it was like a bath of lead;
But the boys they cheered and hollered fit to raise the bloody dead,
Till a beastly bullet copped 'em, then they lay without a sound,
And it's odd—we didn't seem to heed them corpses on the ground.
And I kept on thinkin', thinkin', as the bullets faster flew,
How they picks the werry best men, and they lets the rotters through;
So indiscriminatin' like, they spares a man of sin,
And a rare lad wots a husband and a father gets done in.
And while havin' these reflections and advancin' on the run,
A bullet biffs me shoulder, and says I: "That's number one."

Well, it downed me for a jiffy, but I didn't lose me calm,
For I knew that I was needed; I'm a bomber, so I am.
I 'ad lost me cap and rifle, but I "carried on" because I 'ad me bunch o' bombs and knew that they was needed, so they was.
We didn't 'ave no singin' now, nor many men to cheer;
Maybe the shrapnel downed 'em, crashin' out so werry near;
And the Maxims got us sideways, and the bullets faster flew,
And I copped one on me flipper, and says: "That's number two."

I was pleased it was the left one, for I 'ad me bombs, ye see,
And 'twas 'ard if they'd be wasted like, and all along o' me.
An' I'd lost me 'at and rifle—but I told you that before,
So I packed me mit inside me coat and "carried on" once more.
But the rumpus it was wicked, and the men were scarcer yet,
And I felt the ginger goin' but me jaws I kindo set,
And we passed the Boche first trenches, which was 'eapin 'igh with dead,
And we started for their second, which was fifty feet ahead;
When something like a 'ammer smashed me savage on tne knee,
And down I came all muck and blood. Says I: "That's number three."

ROBERT W. SERVICE.

So there I lay all 'elpless like, and bloody sick at that,
And worryin' like anythink, because I'd lost me 'at;
And thinkin' of me missis, and the partin' words she said:
"If you gets killed, write quick, ol' man, and tell me as you're dead."
And lookin' at me bunch o' bombs—that was the 'ardest blow,
To think I'd never 'ave the chance to 'url them at the foe.
And there was all our boys in front, a-fightin' there like mad,
And me as could 'ave 'elped 'em wiv the lovely bombs I 'ad.
And so I cussed and cussed, and then I struggled back again,
Into that bit of battered trench, packed solid with its slain.

Now as I lay a-layin' there and blastin' of me lot,
And wishin' I could just dispose of all them bombs I'd got,
I sees within the doorway of a shy, retirin' dugout
Six Boches all a-grinnin', and their Captain stuck 'is mug out;
And they 'ad a nice machine gun, and I twigged what they was at;
And they fixed it on a tripod, and I watched 'em like a cat;
And they got it in position, and they seemed so werry glad,
Like they'd got us in a death-trap, which, condemn their souls! they 'ad.
For there our boys was fightin' fifty yards in front, and 'ere
This lousy bunch of Boches, they 'ad got us in the rear.

Oh, it set me blood a-boilin' and I quite forgot me pain,
So I started crawlin', crawlin' over all them mounds of slain;
And them barstards was so busy like, they 'ad no eyes for me,
And me bleedin' leg was draggin', but me right arm it was free. . . .
And now they 'ave it all in shape, and swingin' sweet and clear;
And now they're all excited like, but—I am drawin' near;
And now they 'ave it loaded up, and now they're takin' aim. . . .
Rat-tat-tat-tat! Oh, here, says I, is where I join the game.
And my right arm it goes swingin' and a bomb it goes a-slingin',
And that "typewriter" goes wingin' in a thunderbolt of flame.
Then those Boches, wot was left of 'em, they tumbled down their 'ole,
And up I climbed a mound of dead, and down on them I stole.
And, oh, that blessed moment when I heard their frightened yell,
And I laughed down in that dugout, ere I bombed their souls to hell.
And now I'm in the hospital, surprised that I'm alive;
We started out a thousand men, we came back thirty-five.
And I'm minus of a trotter, but I'm most amazin' gay,
For me bombs, they wasn't wasted, though, you might say, "thrown away."

Only a Boche.

We brought him in from between the lines; we'd better have let him lie;
For what's the use of risking one's skin for a tyke that's going to die?
What's the use of tearing him loose under a gruelling fire,
When he's shot in the head, and worse than dead, and all messed up on the wire?

However, I say, we brought him—Diable! The mud was bad;
The trench was crooked and greasy and high, and, oh, what a time we had!
And often we slipped, and often we tripped, but never he made a moan;
And how we were wet with blood and with sweat! but we carried him in like our own.

Now there he lies in the dug-out dim, awaiting the ambulance,
And the doctor shrugs his shoulders at him, and remarks, "He hasn't a chance."
And we squat and smoke at our game of bridge on the glistening, straw-packed floor,
And about our oaths we can hear his breath, deep-drawn in a kind of snore.

For the dressing station is long and low, and the candles gutter dim,
And the mean light falls on the cold clay walls and our faces bristly and grim;
And we flap our cards on the lousy straw, and we laugh and jibe as we play;
And you'd never know that the cursed foe was less than a mile away.
As we con our cards in the rancid gloom, oppressed by that snoring breath,
You'd never dream that our broad roof-beam was swept by the broom of death.

Heigh-ho! My turn for the dummy hand; I rise and I stretch a bit;
The fetid air is making me yawn, and my cigarette's unlit,
So I go to the nearest candle flame, and the man we brought is there,
And his face is white in the shabby light, and I stand at his feet and stare.
Stand for awhile, and quietly stare, for strange though it seems to be,
The dying Boche on the stretcher there has a queer resemblance to me.

It gives one a kind of a turn, you know, to come on a thing like that.
It's just as if I were lying there, with a turban of blood for a hat,
Lying there in a gray-green instead of a coat gray-blue,
With one of my eyes all shot away, and my brain half tumbling through;
Lying there with a chest that heaves like a bellows up and down,
And a cheek as white as snow on a grave, and lips that are coffee brown.

And confound him, too! He wears, like me, on his finger a wedding ring,

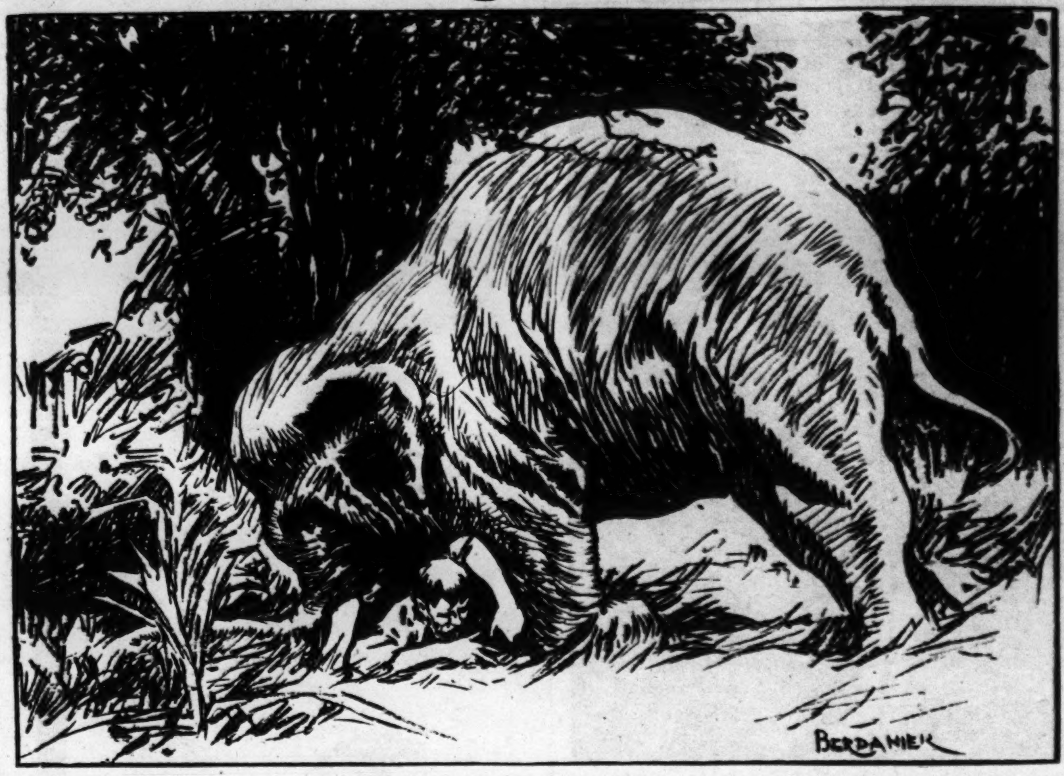
Rider Haggard's "Allan Quatermain" Dead

Last and Greatest of the Big Game Hunters

Capt. Frederick Courteney Selous, killed by the Germans in East Africa spent 40 years in the trackless wastes of the dark continent bagging hundreds of lions, elephants and other savage beasts—Had scores of narrow escapes—With Roosevelt party in 1909 :: :: ::



"She was on her knees with her head and tusk in the ground. I had been pressed down under her chest, but luckily near her forelegs."

ALLAN QUATERMAIN is dead. A few weeks ago a German bullet sang across the East African veldt and there fell Capt. Frederick Courteney Selous, Rider Haggard's beau ideal and the last and greatest of big game hunters.

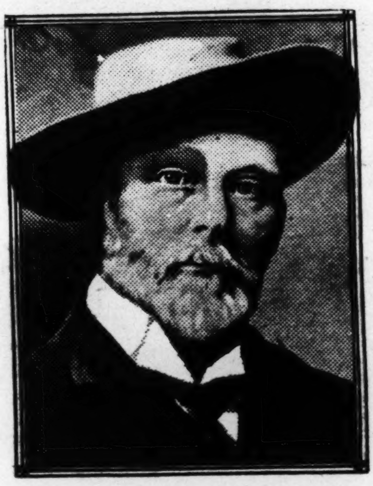
Civilization has moved with such giant treads in Africa and in the other great open spaces that it is impossible that another will arise who will even approximate the record of Capt. Selous as a stalker of the wilds. Great game hunting was meat and drink to him, he claimed it as his profession; hundreds and thousands of heads, skins and teeth rewarded his vigilance and his isolation.

Yet he did not slay for the mere love of killing. In his later years he even refused to shoot at giraffes. Capt. Selous was the naturalist at heart and several books and articles that he has written show how deeply he loved and studied nature in the haunts of its Creator.

Capt. Selous was also a patriot. Due to his efforts England was enabled to extend its African empire largely without bloodshed. Of the two-score years that Selous spent in untracked Africa, only on one occasion did he have any trouble with the natives.

He was respected for his prowess as a big game hunter and loved for his kindness and fair treatment. In 1909 Col. Roosevelt, when planning his African hunting trip, invited Capt. Selous to accompany him. The Colonel regarded him as the best-informed man on African hunting grounds, as a charming companion and as a man of iron nerve and undaunted courage.

Capt. Selous was born in 1851 of a parentage that contained Scotch, French and English blood. Immediately after his schooling at Rugby he went to South Africa and, with the exception of a few visits to Europe and Canada, spent the remainder of his life on the Dark Continent.



F. C. SELOUS

In the story of Selous' life as a hunter are recorded scores of narrow escapes and deeds that would chill the ordinary man. Over and over again he owed his life to the speed of his mount. He once wounded a large elephant that turned on him. His overtired horse could not be spurred into more than a walk and the elephant, with a scream, knocked horse and man over and struck downward into the struggling pair with all her force. Selous thus describes his headlong fall from his horse and what followed:

"For a few seconds I was half stunned by the violence of the shock and the first thing I became aware of was the very strong smell of elephant. At the same instant I felt that I was still unhurt and, although in an unpleasant predicament, I still had a chance for life. I was, however, pressed to the ground in such a way that I could not extricate my head.

"At last, with a violent effort, I wrenched myself loose and threw my body over sideways, so that I rested on my hands. As I did so I saw the hind legs of the elephant standing like two pillars before me, and at once I grasped the situation. She was on her knees, with her head and tusk in the ground and I had been pressed down under her chest, but luckily near her forelegs. Dragging myself from under her, I regained my feet and made a hasty retreat. The elephant was too badly wounded to follow. Had she sunk a few more inches to the ground"——

Capt. Selous did not hunt as the more modern gunners do, with large parties of natives, beaters, trackers, etc. He preferred to go into the wastes himself, or accompanied by two or three natives at the most. The enormous bags of the game brought in by Selous were due, of course, to the fact that in the '70s game was very common in all parts of Africa and few adventurers were hardy enough to go after it. Early in his career Selous asked the permission of Lobengula, King of the Matabeles, to hunt elephants in his domains. The monarch replied:

"If you wish my permission to go and get killed, you have it."

But Selous' adventures with lions and elephants did not show his courage as greatly as did his act of trusting himself alone to the savage natives of Rhodesia. He had no means of defending himself against sudden treachery and the necessity for continual advance rendered it impossible for him to strengthen his halting places. Yet he unhesitatingly committed himself to the hazards of this life and by his fearlessness and unwavering straightness of word and life won the confidence of tribes that had never before permitted a white man in their midst. Many had never before seen a white man. In 1888 his camp was attacked by a few disgruntled natives and this is the only time in his life that he was compelled to turn his weapons against human life.

Selous bore only one scar, a deep one in his left cheek, and this, he would laughingly tell, was due to the kicking of a rifle. He had in his early days a 4-bore elephant rifle, a terrible weapon at both ends, even when properly loaded. At a desperate crisis the rifle was handed to him by a native servant, doubly charged. He discharged it and was blown head over heels for yards, suffering a deep cut in his cheek and a shock which he had to master a few seconds later to save himself from being crushed to death by a maddened elephant.

An idea of the great number of beasts that fell before Selous' rifle can be gleaned from a list printed in one of his books. In a period of less than three years he brought down 100 elephants, 12 rhinoceri, 4 hippopotami, 100 buffalo, 48 zebras, 13 lions and hundreds of antelopes of different varieties.

Capt. Selous thus describes his first elephant:

"We (he and his native guide) were resting under a tree late in the afternoon, when, not far from a small river for which we were making, a large herd of elephant cows walked out of the forest into a narrow, open glade about a half-mile distant. We at once ran to intercept the elephants. I fired and an elephant fell with a crash against a tree. I was loading and running after the herd when the guide shouted:

"'Look out, your elephant is getting up again.'

"Glancing around I was just in time to see my supposed victim regaining her feet. As she only walked off rather slowly I soon ran alongside and gave her another shot, on which she came to a halt under a large tree. I then approached her cautiously, but she caught sight or winded me, for, raising her head and extending her ears, she gave a scream and came plunging toward me at a great rate. I stood where I was and gave her a shot in front of the head. This shot was too high for the brain, but it stopped her at once and she returned to the tree, where I easily dispatched her."

Capt. Selous got his first lion a short time later. He had been riding on the veldt when he percieved a lioness standing in the open.

"I was just going to dismount and fire at her," writes the hunter, "when, turning toward me, she trotted a few steps forward, and then, throwing her tail two or three times straight into the air, came galloping ahead, growling savagely. Turning my horse's head, I pressed him to the utmost speed, closely pursued by the lioness. I do not know how near she got, but her loud purring growls sounded unpleasantly close. As soon as the growling stopped I knew she had given up the chase and so rode around in a half-circle to get a view of her. She had trotted to a large tree, in the shade of which she stood. When I rode to another tree about 60 yards off, she lowered her head and snarled savagely. Feeling sure that she was about to charge again, I steadied myself and fired from the saddle, but missed her. She never took the slightest notice of the shot, but continued snarling and snapping. Resting the butt of my rifle on my foot, I reloaded with expedition and fired again. This time I struck her right in the mouth, breaking the lower jaw bone and injuring the neck. She fell instantly and lay quite still. On dismounting and walking toward her, the lioness arose and rushed toward me. I fired from the hip and the bullet lodged in her shoulder, killing her instantly."

Within a few weeks after his first experience with a lion, Capt. Selous killed three full-grown lions with four shots. He always pointed with pardonable pride to this adventure.

He had been out on the veldt with a native when a huge lion was observed near some brush. The beast at once charged. Selous fired from the saddle and the bullet went true to its mark. The lion dragged itself a few yards toward the horse and fell over dead. While Selous and the native were examining the beast, the native suddenly cried:

"Look, look, sir; look at the lions."

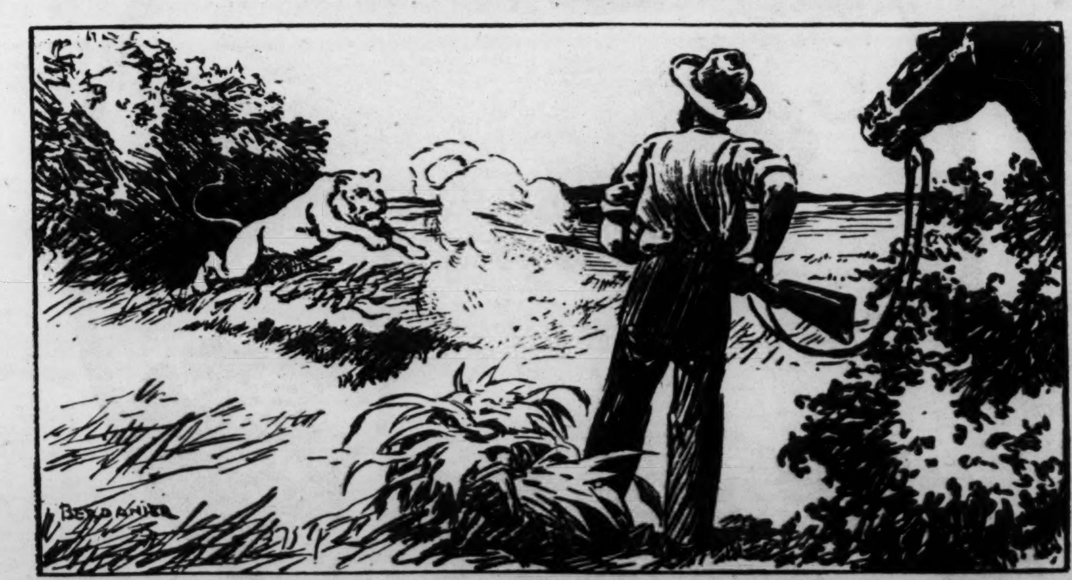
Capt. Selous continues:

"At a distance of about 250 yards from where we stood were three lionesses, walking in single file over an open glade. At the heels of the hindmost ran three little cubs. Hastily mounting my horse I cantered past behind them, just as they entered a patch of bush. * * * Soon the foremost lioness walked slowly over the side of an enormous ant heap, exposing her body to view. I dismounted and fired at once. The lioness rolled down the sloping ant hill, with her legs and tail in the air.

"The other two now turned their villainous, greeny-yellow eyes upon me. Soon I was again in my saddle, with my rifle loaded. I could see the lioness I had just wounded still struggling in the grass and so rode toward her. When I was about 20 yards away she struggled to her feet, and, firing from the saddle, I put a bullet into the center of a white patch on her throat. She dropped, stone dead.

"I then turned my attention to the other two lionesses, that had been watching me. The foremost one crouched on her haunches and was preparing to hurl herself upon me when I fired. I, this time, made a very pretty shot, more by good luck than anything else, doubtless, striking her in the very center of the nose and smashing through the brain. The other lioness and the cubs moved away, and as it was growing dark I had to abandon the chase. As it was, I was well pleased, having bagged three full-grown lions with four shots."

At the outbreak of the war, at 65 years of age, he happened to be in London, and immediately volunteered for service in East Africa.



"I fired from the hip and the bullet lodged in her shoulder killing her instantly."

A Bird Sanctuary of 500 Square Miles Where the Wildest of Fowl Feed From Man's Hand

Twenty years ago E. A. McIlhenny of Avery Island, La., preserved eight egrets of the few that had been left by the market hunters; today hundreds of thousands of herons, snipe, ducks and coots nest peacefully in the marshy refuges along the Gulf Coast—How the work of one man has made all this possible :: :: :: ::

Mallards rising near Marsh Island.

E. A. McIlhenny.

SOME 20 years ago, on the same day that Mrs. Newrich of St. Louis paid $100 for aigrettes for her new hat, a lanky youth in Louisiana saw a market hunter with a double-barreled shotgun creep through a marsh and empty his weapon at a snowy egret sitting on the nest of its young. The beautiful white bird, its stately neck crumpled, fell to the ground. The nestlings continued their squawkings for food and, being too weak to forage for themselves, soon died of hunger.

Mrs. Newrich thought that the price of aigrettes was becoming terribly high. The youth in Louisiana had a thought that day also. As a young boy he had seen the egrets coming from their wintering in South America in such swarms that they beclouded the sun. He had noticed the swarm grow smaller and smaller each year. On the day that Mrs. Newrich made her purchase the egret had become a rarity—so much of a rarity that pot hunters were getting $40 apiece for them.

The total elimination of the egret appeared inevitable. The mother birds were being slaughtered and the young were dying of starvation. Even nature seemed to have conspired against the egret. Only in mating time and when sitting on the nest does the plumage of the egret reach its greatest market value. It is then that the beautiful white strands are at their silkiest and their glossiest; it is then only that the aigrettes are full of life and vividness.

The market hunter knew this, and it was just after the hatching of her eggs, when the egret was sure to be on her nest, that he sallied forth for the prey. The Louisiana youth had often seen the hunters go into the marsh and come back with 30 or 40 of the egrets. This meant that 100 or more little nestlings were dying of hunger in the brush.

The youth, E. A. McIlhenny of Avery Island, La., decided that day to make an effort to preserve what has justly been called the most beautiful of American plumed birds. He started with eight young egrets or snowy herons, as they are called in Louisiana. Today he has on his preserve more than 100,000 pairs of the birds and the number is soon expected to run into millions.

Of course, it has required thousands of acres to provide homes for these birds. A few years after McIlhenny began his experiment in conservation he presented to the State of Louisiana a tract of 59,000 acres of marsh land near his home. Later, when McIlhenny extended the field of his work to include ducks, coots, snipe and other marsh birds, more land was required. He induced Mrs. Russell Sage to buy Marsh Island, of 79,000 acres, near his home, for a bird refuge, and two years ago the Rockefeller Foundation added nearly 100,000 acres more. The Louisiana State game preserve of 13,000 acres is close by. Thus from eight egrets sheltered by McIlhenny has grown a sanctuary of more than 500 square miles, the home of hundreds of thousands of wild marsh fowl.

At this point let us allow Mr. McIlhenny himself to tell of the genesis of the work of bird preservation. He writes:

"Near my home on Avery Island there was a wet spot of a couple of acres between the hills; this wet spot, known as Willow Pond, was partly covered with willow, buttonwood and other water-loving trees, marsh grasses and ferns. In the trees and grass about this pond each spring a few herons and least bitterns nested. I had often thought it might be possible to induce other water-loving birds to make their homes here, and in 1894, a small dam having been built between the hills on the south side of the pond, thus raising the water level a couple of feet, I decided to make the experiment, in the hope of saving a few of the snowy herons, which at that time had been almost exterminated by plume hunters. In the spring of 1895, after many days of search in the swamps to the east of my home, I located two nests of the snowy heron containing four young each. These eight young birds I took just before they were large enough to fly, and, having built on the edge of the pond a large cage covered with woven wire, put the little herons into it.

"For the next couple of months I spent considerable time each day with these birds, who soon grew to know me and showed not the slightest fear, taking their food from my hand, perching fearlessly on my shoulders, head or arms, coming when I called them and evincing real pleasure in being near me. I was successful in raising all eight of these birds and kept them confined until the latter part of November, when I knew by their uneasiness that they wanted to follow the migrating instincts of their kind and leave for the warm tropical shores of South America. So I turned them loose one evening, expecting them to leave, but much to my surprise they were perched in their cage the next morning when I went to see if they stayed around the pond, sleeping in the cage at night. I then had the cage pulled down. A couple of nights later there was a slight frost, and in the morning my birds had gone.

Snowy egrets on Avery Island, La.

"I was quite sure they would return the next spring to the place where they were raised, and was much gratified on the eighteenth of the following March, to find four of my snowy herons sitting in the bushes where the home cage had been the year before. Two days later two more came home, making six raised out of the eight, two having either met an untimely death or followed others of their kind to some other home colony. At first the home comers were very shy and it was several days before I could establish friendly relations with them. Gradually, however, they regained their old confidence and would let me come within a few feet of them. A few days after the arrival of the six one disappeared and for the rest of the summer there were only five birds at the home. Two pairs of these began building their nests during the last days of March, and in due time eight sturdy youngsters were added to the five old birds. I visited the nests almost daily, and before the young ones were strong enough to fly they were as tame as their parents, eagerly picking bits of meat and fish from my fingers and allowing me to stroke their backs and scratch their heads.

"In the fall there were 13 healthy birds to go south on migration; all left on the same night—Nov. 17. The next spring two returned on March 18, five on March 20 and six on March 26. On April 2 the first eggs were laid. Five pairs nested, raising 20 young. Year by year there has been a marked increase, not only in the number of snowy herons, but in other herons and water birds which have been attracted to Willow Pond.

"As the snowy herons increased yearly they attracted to their refuge other herons. First a pair of little blue herons were added to the colony and nested in the spring of 1897. In 1900 three pairs of Louisiana herons took up their home with the protected birds. There was no very large increase in the population of our bird town until 1905, when there were about 1000 pairs in all of five varieties of herons nesting in the preserve. From 1905 to date the yearly increase has been great.

"On May 9, 1908, I attempted to count the herons coming into the pond at night by using a checking machine which records by finger pressure. I was able to count with fair accuracy the birds coming into the pond and passing over two stakes, so that only those coming over one-fourth of the circle of the pond could be counted. The count began at 5:15, when practically no birds were going out, and ended at 7:15, when it was too dark to see the incomers at a distance. In the two hours I counted 4754. As one heron always stays at home to guard the nest while its mate is out for food, and I was counting the incomers over only one-fourth the area of the pond, I am safe in saying there were fully 10,000 adult herons in the pond in the spring of 1908. As the young do not begin to leave the nest until the end of May; there were no young birds included in this count. From 1908 to date the increase has been very marked.

"Now let it be impressed upon the reader that this great bird city, where the inhabitants are free to come and go as they choose, is not in the heart of some dense swamp, miles away from human habitation, but in a little valley between the hills, and fully 50 feet above the sea level. The land on the south and southwest is cultivated, and the home of the writer is within 200 yards of the northwest end. A railroad, wagon road and telephone lines bound the eastern side. A busy factory, a railroad station and a dozen dwelling houses are within 200 yards of its eastern and southern border, and yet these birds live here in perfect contentment, without fear of their greatest enemy, man. Many nests are within 10 feet of the wagon road and within 30 feet of the railroad; so near, in fact, that the people on the train daily see the herons on their nests. The nesting water and marsh birds now include snowy heron, Louisiana heron, American egret, little blue heron, green heron, yellow-crowned night heron, purple gallinule, Florida gallinule, American bittern, least bittern, king rail, anhinga, wood duck, blue-wing teal, gadwall and mallard, besides a number of species of land birds which make

Governmental Cipher That CANNOT Be Read Without Keyword

CIPHER codes are a necessary adjunct to the conduct of governmental affairs, especially in time of war, but aside from their use by recognized Government officials, the cipher message is usually thought of as the particular instrument of spies and secret agents, especially in the minds of the general public.

We have secured possession of a copy of the cipher code which we are told is now in almost general use not only by the army and navy officials of the countries at war, but also by practically all of the spies operating in Europe today. It consists of a simple diagram and a key word. The diagram, which is nothing more than the alphabet arranged in a simple nonsecret manner, is required in the preparation and translation of messages, but is absolutely valueless unless accompanied by the key word.

A study of the following will show that the key word can be any word, sentence or combination of letters imaginable, and that the methods for reading cipher messages described so convincingly in "The Gold Bug," by Poe, and worked out by our good friend Sherlock Holmes in Conan Doyle's "Adventures of the Dancing Men," would be absolutely useless, and the chance of accidentally discovering the key word is so slight as to be negligible.

The method of preparing a cipher message by means of the subjoined code is simple. Assume we wish to send the following:

WE NEED AMMUNITION

and the key word adopted for the day was ECLUB. We write out the message and write the key word over the letters in succession as follows:

EC LUBE CLUBECLUBE
WE NEED AMMUNITION

Taking the first letter "W," refer to the diagram and look in the horizontal row beginning with "W" for the letter written above it, which in this instance, is "E."

Code table used in connection with it is merely the alphabet made into a square and can be easily memorized as to position of letters.

Code table to be used in connection with a key word.

The letter in the top line of the column with this "E" is "I," and this is taken as the first letter of the code message. The letter "C" is then found in the "E" row, the top letter in the column with this "C" being "Y," the second code letter is therefore "Y." Following the same method, the third code letter is found to be "Y," the fourth "Q" and the complete message will read:

IY YQXB CZIHRUSMNR

In order to translate the message, the same method is followed. The key word is written in succession over the message:

EC LUBE CLUBECLUBE
IY YQXB CZIHRUSMNR

Again using the diagram, look for "E" in the "I" row, and the top letter in the row with this "E" is "W." "E" is found to be the top letter over the "C" in the "Y" row; continuing this method, the entire message is easily translated.

The method of translating code messages, as described in the books of Poe, Conan Doyle and others is to count the different characters appearing in a long message and to assume that the one appearing most frequently was "E," which is the letter most used in our language. As can be readily seen, this would not be of assistance in translating messages written in this new code, as described above, because the same symbol in the cipher may represent entirely different letters in the message itself. For example, "E" in the message is represented by "Y," "Q" and "X," and "M," which occurs twice in succession in the original message, is represented by "Z" and "I" in the cipher.

The publication of this cipher code will no doubt bring to the mind of the reader other codes, but it is doubted if any heretofore invented is as effective in every way as is this one.

The method used for the preparation and reading of code messages is simple in the extreme and at the same time impossible of translation unless the key word is known. The ease with which the key may be changed is another point in favor of the adoption of this code by those desiring to transmit important messages without the slightest danger of their messages being read by political or business rivals, etc.

A Bird Sanctuary of 500 Square Miles their homes in the small twigs where the larger birds cannot go.

"Ducks were attracted to the pond in the same way as the herons. In 1899 I began saving the wing-tipped ones from my shooting trips; these were put in a little inclosure and fed until they became tame, then turned loose in the pond. A few pair of blue-wing teal nested, and next winter these attracted other ducks, who, finding that they were not molested, soon became very tame."

McIlhenny has not been content merely to furnish a home for birds. He has traveled about the country now for several years urging drastic legislation by the states and Government against the wholesale killing of American wildfowl. His most potent arguments are four reels of film that he has shown throughout the country.

One of the films shows the egret plume hunter at work and, according to McIlhenny, it makes more converts to the cause of bird preservation than any amount of argument or literature could. It shows the young herons being fed from the bill of their mother, who regurgitates her own food that her young might have nourishment. The stealthy hunter arrives and the egret is shot from off its nest. Later pictures show the helpless nestlings dying of starvation.

When Congress, a few years ago, was considering the laws against the importation of the plumage of wild birds, McIlhenny kept this film running continuously in Washington.

"We just ran out and brought the members of Congress in as we could get them," McIlhenny said during a recent visit to St. Louis. "Once they saw that film they were with us." This same film put through the United States Senate the treaty with Canada for the protection of migratory birds.

The other films in the series are also remarkable. They relate chiefly to the conservation of the bird life and show how tame the wildest of ducks and snipe have become. One picture, taken from the home of McIlhenny through his window, shows hundreds and thousands of wild fowl feeding a few feet away. Later the same picture is shown with the windows open, but the birds are not at all frightened. In some of the other scenes the birds appear to have walked right up to the tripod of the moving picture camera.

Last winter some remarkable pictures were taken of blue geese on Goose Bar, which is included in the preserve. At times the screen is filled with the birds, flying, feeding and lighting.

About a year ago Col. Roosevelt made a trip to the game preserves of Louisiana and was greatly impressed with the work that McIlhenny has done. He referred to the preserve in a magazine article that he wrote as "a King's gift."

War Poems by the Author of Dan M'Grew

And around his neck, as around my own,
by a greasy bit of string,
A locket hangs with a woman's face, and
I turn it about to see:
Just as I thought . . . on the other side the faces of children three;
Clustered together, cherub-like, three little laughing girls,
With the usual tiny rosebud mouths and the usual silken curls.
"Zut!" I say. "He has beaten me; for me, I have only two,"
And I push the locket beneath his shirt, feeling a little blue.

Oh, it isn't cheerful to see a man, the marvelous work of God,
Crushed in the mutilation mill, crushed to a smeary clod;
Oh, it isn't cheerful to hear him moan;
but it isn't that I mind,
It isn't the anguish that goes with him,
it's the anguish he leaves behind.
For his going opens a tragic door that gives on a world of pain,
And the death he dies, those who live and love, will die again and again.

So here I am at my cards once more, but it's kind of spoiling my play,
Think of those three brats of his so many a mile away.
War is war, and he's only a Boche, and we all of us take our chance;
But all the same I'll be mighty glad when I'm hearing the ambulance.
One foe the less, but all the same I'm heartily glad I'm not
The man who gave him his broken head, the sniper who fired the shot.

No trumps you make it, I think you said?
You'll pardon me if I err;
For a moment I thought of other things
. . . Mon Dieu! Quelle vache de guerre.

A Song of Winter Weather.

It isn't the foe that we fear;
It isn't the bullets that whine;
It isn't the business career
Of a shell, or the bust of a mine;
It isn't the snipers who seek
To nip our young hopes in the bud:
No, it isn't the guns,
And it isn't the Huns—
It's the mud, mud,
mud.

It isn't the melee we mind.
That often is rather good fun.
It isn't the shrapnel we find
Obtrusive when rained by the ton.
It isn't the bounce of the bombs
That gives us a positive pain:
It's the strafing we get
When the weather is wet—
It's the rain, rain,
rain.

It isn't because we lack grit
We shrink from the horrors of war.
We don't mind the battle a bit;
In fact that is what we are for;
It isn't the rum-jars and things
Make us wish we were back in the fold:
It's the fingers that freeze
In the boreal breeze—
It's the cold, cold,
cold.

Oh, the rain, the mud and the cold,
The cold, the mud and the rain;
With weather at zero it's hard for the hero
From language that's rude to refrain.
With porridgy muck to the knees,
With sky that's a-pouring a flood,
Sure the worst of our foes
Are the pains and the woes
Of the rain,
the cold
and the mud.

No More Desire for Tobacco

Arthur Krouse is a locomotive fireman who had been using tobacco since he was a boy. About two years ago he began to have spells of illness. His memory was getting very bad and his eyes bothered him a good deal. He had tried in vain to conquer the habit until he got a certain book and now he is freed from the thraldom of tobacco and his health is wonderfully improved. Anyone who desires to read the book can obtain it absolutely free by writing to Edward J. Woods, A 1301, Station E, New York City. It tells how the habit of smoking, chewing or snuff taking can be conquered in three days.

URIC ACID Does Not Cause Rheumatism

Furthermore, I claim that Uric Acid is a NATURAL and NECESSARY constituent of the blood. That without it we could not live! Strange statements? Yes—to you, because you have always been told differently.

But my Book just published tells you the real truth about Rheumatism. Tells what actually DOES cause it, and how it is now being successfully treated by entirely new, advanced, scientific methods.

This Book is the result of my 20 years of study and experimentation in this disease. One prominent physician says of it: "Intensely interesting and instructive—surely a valuable Thesis."

I have no free treatment to offer—nothing of the kind. But I do want every Rheumatic sufferer, no matter what form or how chronic, to read my book. Therefore, I will gladly send it absolutely free. Understand, please, that no money is asked or expected.

Just your address on a postal, even, will bring the Book by return mail.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

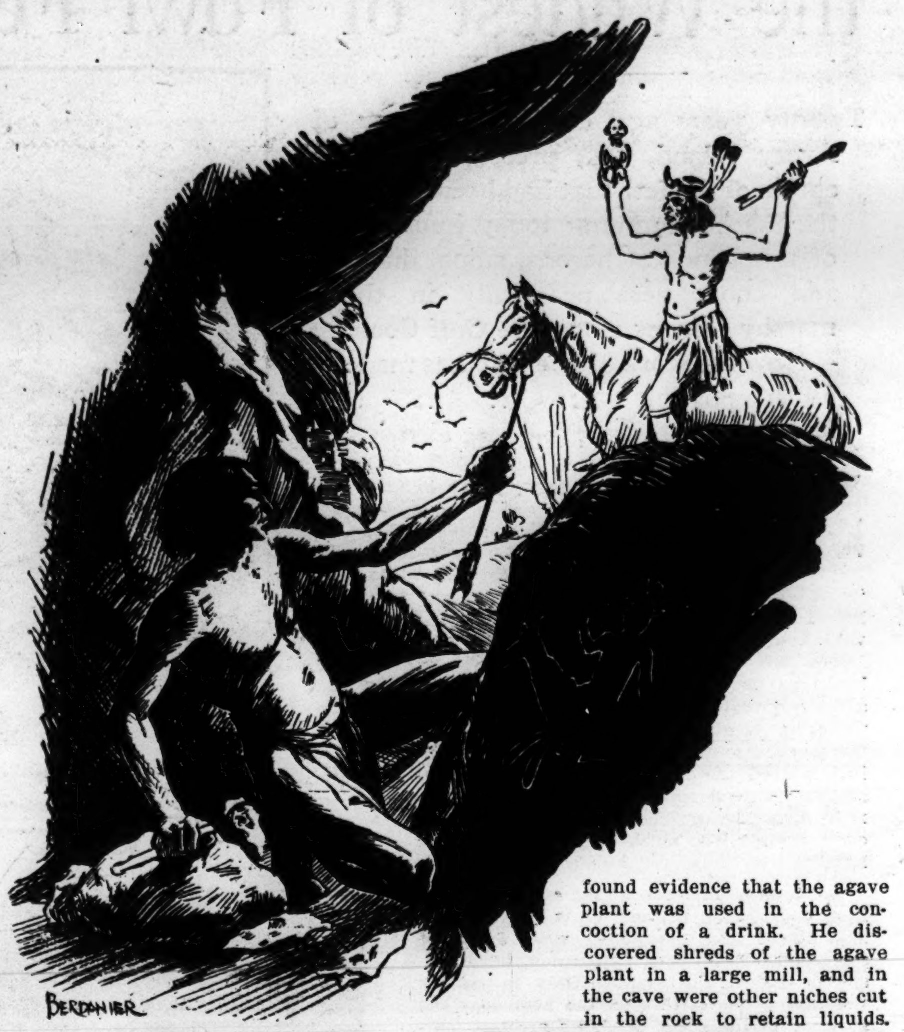
THE WORK OF A PRE-AZTEC ARTIST JUST DISCOVERED IN ARIZONA

Forest ranger finds drawings carved in the rocks of the Peloncilla and Animas Mountains, which, together with other evidences of the occupation of a once powerful tribe, convince him that these Indians were the ancestors of the followers of Montezuma—They farmed the land, watered from an irrigation dam, miles in length, and then, after the crops were safely stowed away for the winter they compounded a potent drink and everyone went on a "spree"

By CLAIR KENAMORE.



IT is not pleasant to be compelled to record that the aboriginal tribes who lived in the Peloncilla and Animas Mountains, in what is now New Mexico and Arizona, were addicted to the demon rum, but such is the case.

As the modern weekly payday had not been invented in those dim years before Columbus came, they did not get "lit up" each Saturday night. They toiled or hunted months on end, soberly and industriously. They farmed the rich valley lands, watered from an irrigation dam miles in length. They raised their crops, gathered them and stored them for the winter. Clothing was provided against the coming of the cold weather, possibly fallen trees were dragged near to their homes for firewood and all was made shipshape in readiness for the winter rains.

Then the aboriginal, the father of the Aztec, fell off the wagon. He compounded a drink from the agave, the plant from which the Mexican today gets the dynamic mescal, and when the leaves began to fall he went on his yearly toot, his only Saturday night for a twelvemonth.

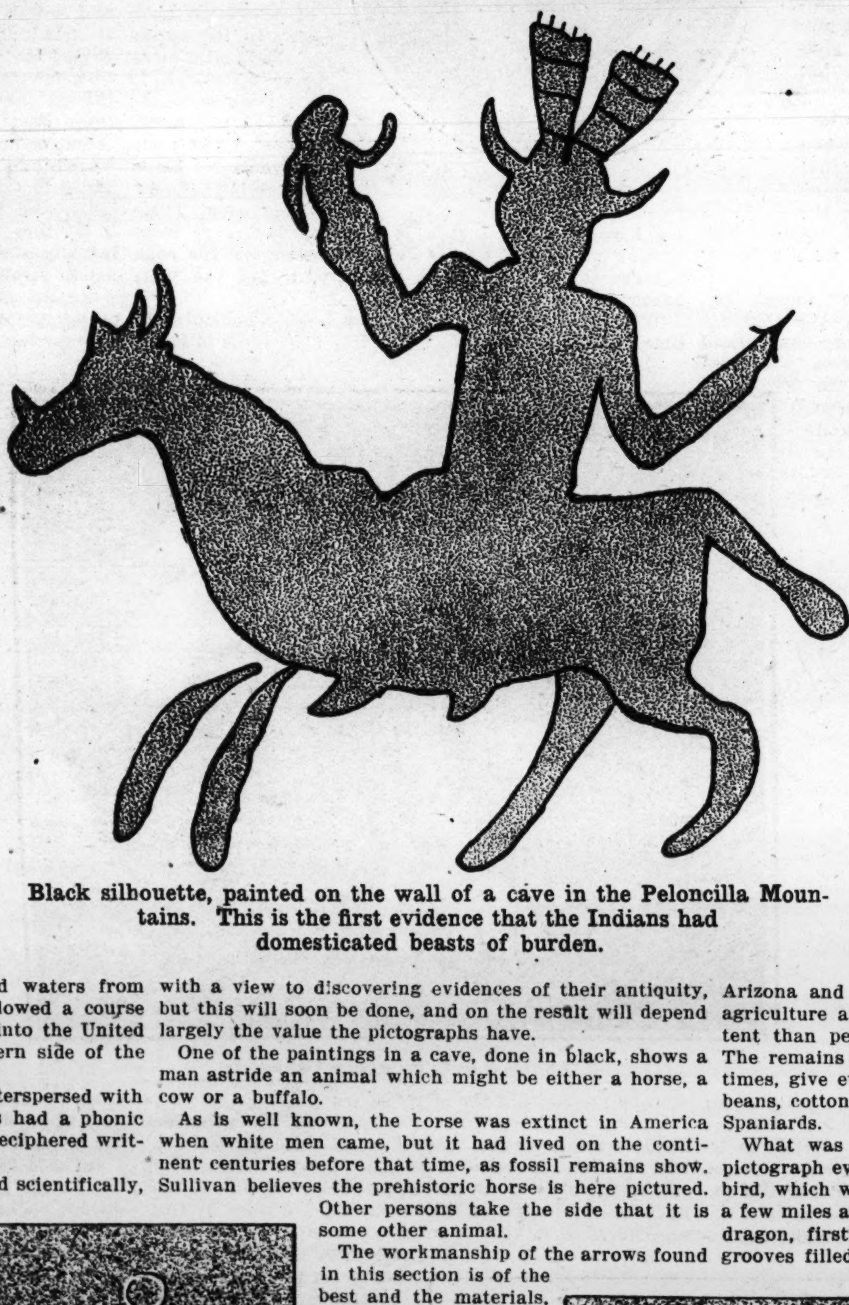
The reprehensible custom seems to have become so general that it became a sort of religious festival, and the medicine men took part.

We never would have known of this deplorable behavior on the part of the former tenants had there not arisen in the tribe an artist. Doubtless his mother, even in his boyhood, pointed him out to visitors chipping away on the dark surface of a rock, and proudly displayed some of his completed drawings, mentioning casually that he never had taken a lesson in his life.

The artist grew and prospered, developing his technique and style, and produced prolifically. No flat rock was safe from him. He wondered whether his work would live, and what would be the verdict of posterity on his art. A staggering fear that posterity might never see his work struck him, so he sought rocks sheltered from the weather and there poured out his soul through a granite chip and a mesquite-root mallet. He lay on his back in shallow caves and painted life as he saw it on the roof, with his thumb for brush. He used only black and red, but they were permanent. These works of the master have come down to us. He was almost exclusively a figure painter, although he dabbled a little in symbolic and mystic expression, and he found the most dash and color in the fall festival.

Forest Ranger Don S. Sullivan has copied more than a hundred pictures in his district, and has studied them closely and intelligently. He has found what he considers satisfying proof that it was from this corner of New Mexico and Arizona, on the Mexican border, that the Aztecs started for Mexico City. All Aztec legends agree that Montezuma came from the north, the accepted date in the 13 hundreds, and a point near Santa Fe, N. M., has been chosen, for no particular reason, as the start of the journey.

In the mountains where Ranger Sullivan watches out for the forest, there once lived a powerful tribe, with a centralized government of strength. A levee nine miles in length stretches across a level valley to impound flood water. It is built on what is called the four-to-one plan, that is, four feet of width to one of height. It is wide enough at the top for three wagons to drive abreast. Such a monumental work as this could not have been carried through by a nomadic tribe. It required years and many men to complete such a task.



Black silhouette, painted on the wall of a cave in the Peloncilla Mountains. This is the first evidence that the Indians had domesticated beasts of burden.

The southern end of the dam is in Mexico, and the design of the embankment was not understood until two years ago, when it was seen that flood waters from heavy rains to the west of the dam followed a course which led them into Mexico, back again into the United States and impounded them on the eastern side of the dam.

The pictures carved in the rocks are interspersed with cryptic carvings, which Sullivan believes had a phonic value. They are remarkably like the undeciphered writings on Aztec monuments in Mexico.

None of the pictures have been examined scientifically, with a view to discovering evidences of their antiquity, but this will soon be done, and on the result will depend largely the value the pictographs have.

One of the paintings in a cave, done in black, shows a man astride an animal which might be either a horse, a cow or a buffalo.

As is well known, the horse was extinct in America when white men came, but it had lived on the continent centuries before that time, as fossil remains show. Sullivan believes the prehistoric horse is here pictured. Other persons take the side that it is some other animal.

The workmanship of the arrows found in this section is of the best and the materials, obsidian or volcanic glass, were handled in an expert manner. One good copper tool has been found.

There were many caves, and in nearly all of them are found "mills," the conical hole cut into the rocks in which corn was ground. The frequency of these mills leads to the belief that the caves were not used for dwellings, but probably for defense. In one cave, under many feet of guano, probably the accumulation of centuries, Sullivan found evidence that the agave plant was used in the concoction of a drink. He discovered shreds of the agave plant in a large mill, and in the cave were other niches cut in the rock to retain liquids. The pictures of dancing men are each accompanied by a falling leaf, the accepted token of the autumn.

None of the pictures of men have any attempt at the delineation of features. In many cases the head is only suggested. This is attributed to an Indian tradition that a portrait of a person will hold the person's spirit fast, and keep it from the happy hunting ground.

In one cave was found what is believed to be an attempt at paper making. Pieces of tree bark and of thin pieces of wood apparently had been sewn together with thongs. In another cave, woven sandals were found deep under the slow-forming debris of centuries.

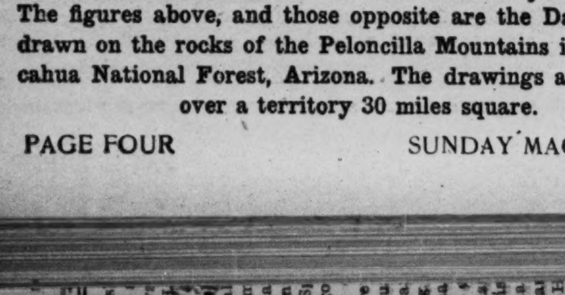
Some of the pictures show undoubted spirit, and a conception of drawing. In some there are little touches of curve and line that show study of the human figure. There are suggestions of foreshortening, and, in figures in action, the big muscles are indicated.

Previous discoveries of the pictography of North American Indians have shown that it ranged from the rude petroglyphs of some of the Shoshonian tribes to the incised work on ivory of the Eskimo and the paintings on buffalo and other animal skins by some of the plains tribes. Some Indian communities, however, seemed not to have been given at all to pictography.

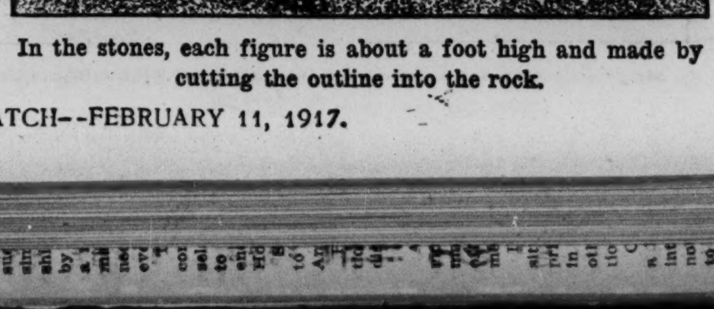
Up to the time of the discovery of the Arizona and New Mexico rock carvings, the Indians of that section had been supposed to have done "dry painting" exclusively. Their pictures of deities, natural phenomena, animals and plants were made of powdered sandstone of various colors.

Despite the unfavorable conditions, due to the aridity of the region, the Indians of Arizona and New Mexico seem to have specialized in agriculture and to have tilled the soil to a greater extent than perhaps any other tribe in North America. The remains of their vast dams, built in pre-Columbian times, give evidence of this. Here Indian corn, melons, beans, cotton, etc., were grown before the arrival of the Spaniards.

What was regarded as the most remarkable Indian pictograph ever discovered in this country was the Piasa bird, which was carved into the rock of the Alton Bluffs a few miles above St. Louis. It was a drawing of a huge dragon, first traced in the rock of the cliff and the grooves filled with paint. It was destroyed in 1846.



The figures above, and those opposite are the Dancing Men, drawn on the rocks of the Peloncilla Mountains in the Chiricahua National Forest, Arizona. The drawings are scattered over a territory 30 miles square.



In the stones, each figure is about a foot high and made by cutting the outline into the rock.

story, and shows a map I heard of when I was in the Kootenay country, years ago. I'd like to have you go along; but he's a strange one, and swore point-blank to throw it up if anyone was brought in. But when I come back you'll get first tip, and I'll stake you next to me, and give you half share in the town site besides.

The sleds came to a halt where the trail crossed the mouth of Stuart River. An unbroken sea of frost, its wide expanse stretched away into the unknown east. The snow-shoes were withdrawn from the lashings of the sleds. Axel Gunderson shook hands and stepped to the fore, his great webbed shoes sinking a fair half yard into the feathery surface and packing the snow so the dogs should not wallow. His wife fell in behind the last sled, betraying long practice in the art of handling the awkward footgear. The stillness was broken with cheery farewells; the dogs whined; and He of the Otter Skins talked with his whip to a recalcitrant wheeler.

An hour later the train had taken on the likeness of a black pencil crawling in a long, straight line across a mighty sheet of foolscap.

One night, many weeks later, Malamute Kid and Prince fell to solving chess problems from the torn page of an ancient magazine. The Kid had just returned from his Bonanza properties and was resting up preparatory to a long moose hunt. Prince, too, had been on creek and trail nearly all winter, and had grown hungry for a blissful week of cabin life.

It was very interesting. Somebody knocked at the door a second time before Malamute Kid said "Come in." The door swung open. Something staggered in. Prince caught one square look and sprang to his feet. The horror in his eyes caused Malamute Kid to whirl about; and he, too, was startled, though he had seen bad things before. The thing tottered blindly toward them. Prince edged away till he reached the nail from which hung his Smith & Wesson.

"My God! what is it?" he whispered to Malamute Kid.

"Don't know. Looks like a case of freezing and no grub," replied the Kid, sidling away in the opposite direction. "Watch out! It may be mad," he warned, coming back from closing the door.

The thing advanced to the table. The bright flame of the slush lamp caught its eyes. It was amused and gave voice to eldritch cackles which betokened mirth. Then, suddenly, he—for it was a man—swayed back, with a hitch to his thin trousers, and began to sing a chanty, such as men lilt when they swing around the capstan circle and the sea snorts in their ears:

Yan-kee ship come down de ri-ib-er,
Pull! my bully boys! Pull!
D'yeh want—to know de captain ru-uns her?
Pull! my bully boys! Pull!
Jon-a-than Jones ob South Caho-li-in-a,
Pull! my bully——

He broke off abruptly, tottered with a wolfish snarl to the meat shelf and before they could intercept was tearing with his teeth at a chunk of raw bacon. The struggle was fierce between him and Malamute Kid; but his mad strength left him as suddenly as it had come, and he weakly surrendered the spoil. Between them they got him upon a stool, where he sprawled with half his body across the table. A small dose of whisky strengthened him, so that he could dip a spoon into the sugar caddy which Malamute Kid placed before him. After his appetite had been somewhat cloyed, Prince, shuddering as he did so, passed him a mug of weak beef tea.

The creature's eyes were alight with a somber frenzy, which blazed and waned with every mouthful. There was very little skin to the face. The face, for that matter, sunken and emaciated, bore very little likeness to human countenance. Frost after frost had bitten deeply, each depositing its stratum of scab upon the half-healed scar that went before. This dry, hard surface was of a bloody-black color, serrated by grievous cracks wherein the raw red flesh peeped forth. His skin garments were dirty and in tatters, and the fur of one side was singed and burned away, showing where he had lain upon his fire.

Malamute Kid pointed to where the sun-tanned hide had been cut away, strip by strip—the grim signature of famine.

"Who—are—you?" slowly and distinctly enunciated the Kid.

The man paid no heed.

"Where do you come from?"

"Yan-kee ship come down de ri-ib-er," was the quavering response.

"Don't doubt the beggar came down the river," the Kid said, shaking him in an endeavor to start a more lucid flow of talk.

But the man shrieked at the contact, clapping a hand to his side in evident pain. He rose slowly to his feet, half leaning on the table.

"She laughed at me—so—with the hate in her eye; and she—would—not—come."

His voice died away, and he was sinking back when Malamute Kid gripped him by the wrist, and shouted, "Who? Who would not come?"

"She, Unga. She laughed, and struck at me, so, and so. And then"——

"Yes?"

"And then"——

"And then what?"

"And then he lay very still, in the snow, a long time. He is—still in—the—snow."

The two men looked at each other helplessly.

"Who is in the snow?"

"She, Unga. She looked at me with the hate in her eye, and then"——

"Yes, yes."

"And then she took the knife, so; and once, twice—she was weak. I traveled very slow. And there is much gold in that place, very much gold."

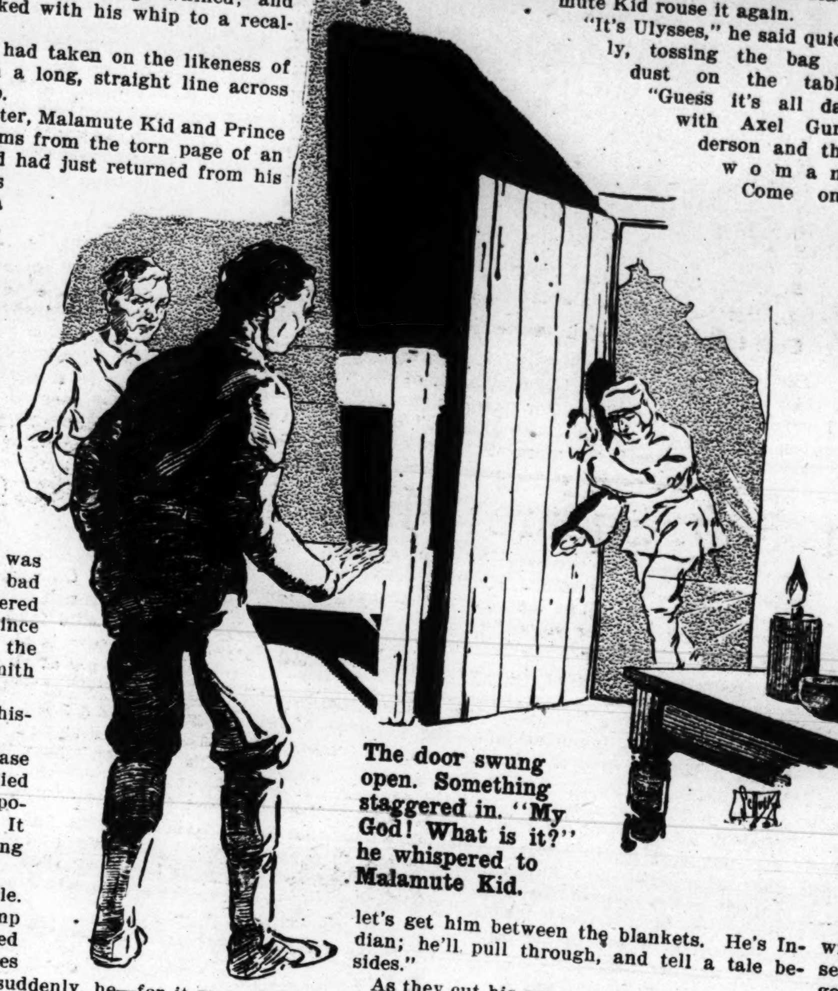
"Where is Unga?" For all Malamute Kid knew, she might be dying a mile away. He shook the man savagely, repeating again and again, "Where is Unga? Who is Unga?"

'She—is—in—the—snow."

"Go on!" The Kid was pressing his wrist cruelly.

"So—I—would—be—in the snow—but—I—had—a—debt—to—pay. It was—heavy—I—had—a—debt—to—pay—a—debt—to—pay—I—had"—— The faltering monosyllables ceased, as he fumbled in his pouch and drew forth a buckskin sack. "A—debt—to—pay—five—pounds—of—gold—grubstake—Mal—a—mute—Kid—I"—— The exhausted head dropped upon the table; nor could Malamute Kid rouse it again.

"It's Ulysses," he said quietly, tossing the bag of dust on the table. "Guess it's all day with Axel Gunderson and the woman. Come on, let's get him between the blankets. He's Indian; he'll pull through, and tell a tale besides."



The door swung open. Something staggered in. "My God! What is it?" he whispered to Malamute Kid.

As they cut his garments from him, near his right breast could be seen two unhealed, hard-lipped knife thrusts.

"I will talk of the things which were, in my own way; but you will understand. I will begin at the beginning, and tell of myself and of the woman, and, after that, of the man."

He of the Otter Skins drew over to the stove, as do men who have been deprived of fire and are afraid the Promethean gift may vanish at any moment. Malamute Kid pricked up the slush lamp and placed it so its light might fall upon the face of the narrator. Prince slid his body over the edge of the bunk and joined them.

"I am Naas, a chief, and the son of a chief, born between a sunset and a rising, on the dark seas, in my father's oomiak. All of a night the men toiled at the paddles, and the women cast out the waves which threw in upon us, and we fought with the storm. The salt spray froze upon my mother's breast till her breath passed with the passing of the tide. But I—I raised my voice with the wind and the storm, and lived.

"We dwelt in Akatan"——

"Where?" asked Malamute Kid.

"Akatan, which is in the Aleutians; Akatan, beyond Chignik, beyond Kardalak, beyond Unimak. As I say, we dwelt in Akatan, which lies in the midst of the sea on the edge of the world. We farmed the salt seas for the fish, the seal and the otter; and our homes shouldered about one another on the rocky strip between the rim of the forest and the yellow beach where our kayaks lay. We were not many, and the world was very small. There were strange lands to the east—islands like Akatan; so we thought all the world was islands, and did not mind.

"I was different from my people. In the sands of the beach were the crooked timbers and wave-warped planks of a boat such as my people never built; and I remember on the point of the island which overlooked the ocean three ways there stood a pine tree which never grew there, smooth and straight and tall. It is said the two men came to that spot turn about, through many days, and watched with the passing of the light. These two men came from out of the sea in the boat which lay in pieces on the beach. And they were white like you, and weak as the little children when the seal have gone away and the hunters came home empty. I know of these things from the old men and the old women, who got them from their fathers and mothers before them. These strange white men did not take kindly to our ways at first, but they grew strong, what of the fish and the oil, and fierce. And they built each his own house, and took the pick of our women, and in time children came. Thus he was born who was to become the father of my father's father.

"As I said, I was different from my people, for I carried the strong, strange blood of this white man who came out of the sea. It is said we had other laws in the days before these men; but they were fierce and quarrelsome, and fought with our men till there were no more left who dared to fight. Then they made themselves chiefs, and took away our old laws and gave us new ones, insomuch that the man was the son of his father, and not his mother, as our way had been. They also ruled that the son, first born, should have all things which were his father's before him, and that the brothers and sisters should shift for themselves. And they gave us other laws. They showed us new ways in the catching of fish and the killing of bear, which were thick in the woods; and they taught us to lay by bigger stores for the time of famine. And these things were good.

"But when they had become chiefs, and there were no more men to face their anger, they fought, these strange white men, each with the other. And the one whose blood I carry drove his seal spear the length of an arm through the other's body. Their children took up the fight, and their children's children; and there was great hatred between them, and black doings, even to my time, so that in each family but one lived to pass down the blood of them that went before. Of my blood I was alone; of the other man's there was but a girl, Unga, who lived with her mother. Her father and my father did not come back from the fishing one night; but afterward they washed up to the beach on the big tides, and they held very close to each other.

"The people wondered, because of the hatred between the houses, and the old men shook their heads and said the fight would go on when children were born to her and children to me. They told me this as a boy, till I came to believe, and to look upon Unga as a foe, who was to be the mother of children which were to fight with mine. I thought of these things day by day, and when I grew to a stripling I came to ask why this should be so. And they answered, 'We do not know, but that in such a way your fathers did.' And I marveled that those which were to come should fight the battles of those that were gone, and in it I could see no right. But the people said it must be, and I was only a stripling.

"And they said I must hurry, that my blood might be the older and grow strong before hers. This was easy, for I was head man, and the people looked up to me because of the deeds and the laws of my fathers and the wealth which was mine. Any maiden would come to me, but I found none to my liking. And the old men and the mothers of maidens told me to hurry, for even then were the hunters bidding high to the mother of Unga; and should her children grow strong before mine, mine would surely die.

"Nor did I find a maiden till one night coming back from the fishing. The sunlight was lying, so, low and full in the eyes, the wind free and the kayaks racing with the white seas. Of a sudden the kayak of Unga came driving past me, and she looked upon me, so, with her black hair flying like a cloud of night and the spray wet on her cheek. As I say, the sunlight was full in the eyes, and I was a stripling; but somehow it was all clear, and I knew it to be the call of kind to kind. As she whipped ahead she looked back within the space of two strokes—looked as only the woman Unga could look—and again I knew it was the call of kind. The people shouted as we romped past the lazy oomiaks and left them far behind. But she was quick at the paddle, and my heart was like the belly of a sail, and I did not gain. The wind freshened, the sea whitened, and, leaping like the seals on the windward breech, we roared down the golden pathway of the sun."

Naass was crouched half out of his stool, in the attitude of one driving a paddle, as he ran the race anew. Somewhere across the stove he beheld the tossing kayak and the flying hair of Unga. The voice of the wind was in his ears, and its salt beat fresh upon his nostrils.

"But she made the shore, and ran up the sand, laughing, to the house of her mother. And a great thought came to me that night—a thought worthy of him that was chief over all the people of Akatan. So, when the moon was up, I went down to the house of her mother, and looked upon the goods of Yash-Noosh, which were piled by the door—the goods of Yash-Noosh, a strong hunter, who had it in mind to be the father of the children of Unga. Other young men had piled their goods there, and taken them away again; and each young man had made a pile greater than the one before.

"And I laughed to the moon and the stars, and went to my own house, where my wealth was stored. And many trips I made, till my pile was greater by the fingers of one hand than the pile of Yash-Noosh. There were fish, dried in the sun and smoked; and 40 hides of the hair seal, and half as many of the fur, and each hide was tied at the mouth and big-bellied with oil; and 10 skins of bear which I killed in the woods when they came out in the spring. And there were beads and blankets and scarlet cloths, such as I got in trade from the people who lived to the east, and who got them in trade from the people who lived still beyond in the east. And I looked upon the pile of Yash-Noosh and laughed; for I was head man in Akatan, and my wealth was greater than the wealth of all my young men, and my fathers had done deeds, and given laws, and put their names for all time in the mouths of the people.

"So, when the morning came, I went down to the beach, casting out of the corner of my eye at the house of the mother of Unga. My offer yet stood untouched. And the women smiled and said sly things one to the other. I wondered, for never had such a price been offered; and that night I added more to the pile, and put beside it a kayak of well-tanned skins which never yet had swam in the sea. But in the day it was yet there, open to the laughter of all men. The mother of Unga was crafty, and I grew angry at the shame in which I stood before my people. So that night I added till it became a great pile, and I hauled up my oomiak, which was of the value of 20 kayaks. And in the morning there was no pile.

"Then made I preparation for the wedding, and the people that lived even to the east came for the food of the feast and the potlach token. Unga was older than I by the age of four suns in the way we reckoned the years. I was only a stripling; but then I was a chief, and the son of a chief, and it did not matter.

"But a ship shoved her sails above the floor of the ocean, and grew larger with the breath of the wind. From her scuppers she ran clear water, and the men were in haste and worked hard at the pumps. On the bow stood a mighty man, watching the depth of the water and giving commands with a voice of thunder. His eyes were of the pale blue of the deep waters, and his head was maned like that of a sea lion. And his hair was yellow, like the straw of a southern harvest or the manila rope-yarns which sailormen plait.

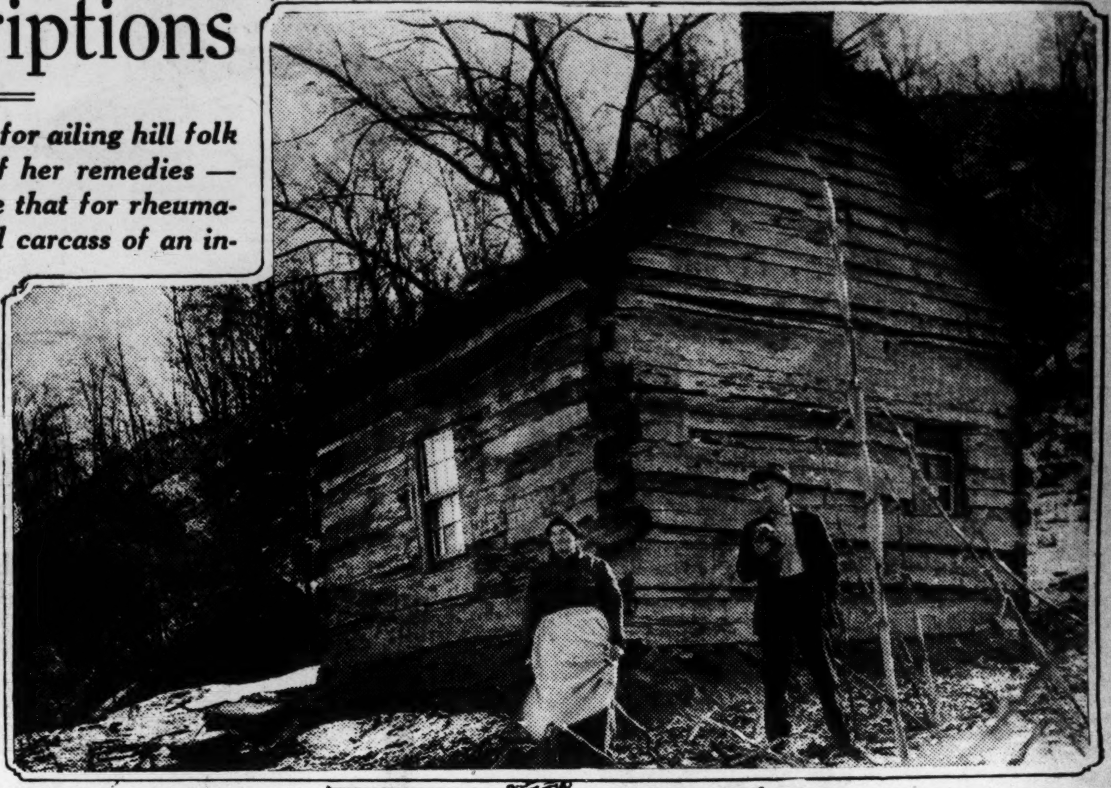
A "Yarb" Doctor of Kentucky Hills and Her Curious Prescriptions

Mrs. "Lize" Prader's cabin is a rendezvous for ailing hill folk who believe implicitly in the efficacy of her remedies—Some of them are heroic, as for instance that for rheumatism, which is whisky in which the dried carcass of an instantly killed snake has been placed—Before treating any patient she first draws the "electricity" from his body by placing a piece of steel under his bed



Mrs. Prader and "And'son," her husband, standing outside their cabin home in the Kentucky hills.

FAR out of sight and sound of a railway, miles inland from the nearest rural mail route, a little log cabin nestles in a hollow of the Greenup County (Ky.) hills. It is the home of Mrs. Eliza Prader. Aunt Lize, as she is known throughout Greenup, Boyd, Lewis and many of the mountain counties of Northeastern Kentucky, is authority among the hill folk on the ills of mankind and their cures.

Aunt Lize does not possess a medical or surgical diploma; in fact, she admits unreservedly that she cannot write and can read but little, but, nevertheless, the mountain people pin their faith to her and unhesitatingly take whatever she prescribes for them.

Aunt Lize was not in a very good humor when a visitor called recently at her cabin home. She had just been out to her barn "feedin' th' cow brutes," and had lost her temper at And'son, her "old man," because, she said, "he won't do nothin' except fiddle an' say, 'Wal, i declar', an' go round smelling of pole-cat hide. Next one he traps an' brings to this house he'll have to eat it."

She also was put out because aspersions had been cast on a major operation which she had performed on a resident of the community a short time before.

"Air you one of them brickety doctors thet don't aim to let anyone help a sufferin' human out 'cause they think they knows it all?" she demanded. Upon an instant disclaimer and an assurance that she and the visitor had mutual acquaintances in the river towns, she became mollified and continued:

"Seems t' me some people go out 'f their way t' find fault. I'll doctor ennyone, human or varmint, that's sufferin. Three days ago I goes ever t' Har'son Mason's. He wuz cut up so's he looked like a crazy quilt. I taken a darnin' needle an silk, sewed up them cuts en smeared 'em with pitch. He wuz doin' nicely when they got a doctor in who takes off'n those bandages, pulls my stitches en sews him up agin. Now Mason's nigh dead."

Aunt Lize then grew loquacious and gave a summary of her life history. She was born in the hills 42 years ago, and her mother before her was a cure-all, wise in the knowledge of herbs and roots. Her first husband died years ago and her marriage to Anderson Prader was the culmination of a romance.

"I was settin' on the doorstep peelin' apples one June mornin'," she related, "an' I see And'son goin' out t' visit his traps. He sees somethin' caught in one up under yon rock, but can't make it out. So he kneels down and rams his head in under th' rock. 'Blip!' It wuz a big cop'head snake an' it retch for him an' jabbed him in th' jaw."

Anderson, who was an interested listener, said: "Yaas, en I didn't turn t'other jaw, as th' Scripter teaches. I jest started on th' run, pitchin' en tossin' ontil I got t' this door."

"I seed what was th' matter," interrupted Lize, "en slit open th' fang wounds. Then I slaps a bottle of turpentine over each one of them two holes en yo' orter see th' pizen bile up in th' bottle. After thet, I washes th' wounds with wash bluein' an' th' pizen never given And'son no more trouble.

"He gotter settin' up t' me atter that, an' we went down t' Greenup one day en got married."

It was ascertained that during the operation Anderson had been commanded to chew natural leaf tobacco vigorously and swallow the saliva, the hill doctress believing that, as a chew of tobacco placed in the mouth of a poisonous snake will cause its death, the tobacco will counteract the poison.

Three poisonous snakes are found in the hills—the copperhead, the hill rattler and the blowing viper. Mrs. Prader, according to statements made by neighbors, has treated scores of cases of snake bite with her simple remedies and in no case has serious results followed.

It is claimed that the bite of the copperhead, if not treated at once, will cause great injury to the eyesight and in some cases total blindness. Lize has no idea why she uses indigo, further than that her mother had used it for years, with good results. As to the medicinal qualities it contains, if any, she is in ignorance. It helps cure a "reptile" bite, and that is enough for her.

Some of the time-honored treatments for various ills in the mountains are somewhat startling, but are looked upon with abiding faith by those who use them. As Mrs. Prader explained, it is next to impossible for a practicing physician to get out into the hills in the winter months, as the roads are seas of mud and the branches are roaring torrents. And during the rest of the year the people in that section enjoy unusually good health, owing to the bracing air and life out of doors. So they stick to the old-fashioned prescriptions.

A pure black cat, one without a white spot, is treasured carefully. If you see a feline of this description rambling about without a tail, you will know that someone in the vicinity has had shingles. Cut the cat's tail off and rub the blood from the stump carefully over the affected part. That cures shingles. Of course, Lize always adds a dose of her own bitters.

For frosted feet a rabbit must be killed and skinned immediately. The members are then wrapped in the warm skin, the fur outside, and the frozen feet are cured. This is attested to by many who have suffered from frostbite.

Hemorrhages are brought to a stop by taking pills made of cobwebs or swallowing a tea brewed from the soot of a wood fire.

Croup is treated with polecat oil, taken internally and applied externally.

Hives are instantly cured with ground ivy tea. Ground ivy is a creeping plant with rounded, bright green leaves and bears a pretty, tiny blue blossom.

Catnip tea has been known to work wonders in cases of colic and sassafras tea, it is claimed, is the best spring medicine in the world.

Pine resin plasters are just the panacea for backache, and if the kidneys are affected pills made of pine pitch are administered.

"Yaller root" is used for sore throat, mouth or eyes, and "sang" is the remedy for all sorts of stomach troubles and is said to give almost instant relief for dyspepsia. Tea made from dog fennel is a sure cure for stomach cramps.

Consumption is little heard of in these parts, but a cure for throat and lung troubles is always on hand, Mrs. Prader says, in the judicious use of a concoction made of spignet, old field balsam, wild cherry bark and mullen buds.

Mrs. "Lize" Prader.

Boil chicken gizzards and drink the broth for poor digestion, as the gizzards are full of pepsin, so Lize says, and work overtime for a chicken and naturally help a human being.

The treatment for rheumatism is heroic. A rattlesnake must be killed and killed instantly, before the reptile has a chance to strike itself with its fangs. Skin the snake, dry the remains and then place them in a jug of corn whisky. Drink the whisky and the rheumatism then is supposed to disappear. An external treatment is: Fill a can with angle worms and let it stand in the sun for a day. Then take the oil and rub on stiff joints. It is claimed that an old man of 70 who uses this treatment will again be able to execute the pigeon wings with which he was wont to embellish his dances in his youth.

Prickly pears, split open and roasted, placed on burns, relieve the pain and draw the inflammation.

Charms also are worn as preventives to ward off disease. The lucky bone, a small bone similar to a single section of the vertabrae of a salmon, found in a hog's head, is worn about the neck to prevent toothache. The right front paw of a ground mole, worn in a small cloth "poke" or bag, around a child's neck, will cause all pain attendant to teething to cease.

Nine sow bugs, little white insects found under stones near dwellings, can be placed in a small sack and worn around the neck for nine days. This is a sure cure for thrush, a mouth and throat disease common among infants. Another help for this ailment is to have a man or boy, who has never seen the child's father, blow three times in the patient's mouth.

Goose grease is a good all-around remedy for colds. Rub the chest, palms of the hands and soles of the feet. And if a child comes to Lize with a stone bruise, she catches a toad and binds it on the bruise. When the toad dies the stone bruise disappears.

As a preliminary to treatment of all kinds, Mrs. Prader insists on eliminating the electricity that she states exists in a patient's body. Every living thing on earth, she claims, human or "varmint," has electricity in its system. This electricity causes the nerves to be at the utmost tension and renders the patient unfit for treatment.

"I allus put steel under th' bed to draw the 'lectricity," she explained. "Ax or a cross-cut saw is about ez good ez ennything. I wuz called over t' Mis Peterses one night en found th' ole woman in a high fever. Thar weren't a piece 'f steel nigher than th' saw mill, a mile away, 'cept a few rusty hoes. So I yells out fer th' boys t' give me their short guns. I gets four pistils, en fearin' th' 'lectricity would fire th' ca'tridges, I drawed 'em. Then I shoved th' guns under th' bed en the old woman quiets down."

Fevers, Mrs. Prader treats with a concoction of burdock leaves and pounded willow bark, and states she varies the treatment with various roots and herbs, according to the condition of the patient.

"Th' world's my drug store," said Lize, "en the stock never runs out. I hev nine months in th' year t' gather supplies. I hev hed offers frum drug houses fer yaller root en sang, but I can use all I can get holt of myself."

"Yaller root" is golden seal and "sang" is the mountain name for ginseng, the roots of these plants commanding high prices.

To reach Mrs. Prader's cabin, the visitor must first journey from Greenup, the county seat, to a place which is known as Old Steam, many miles out. Old Steam is a dismantled iron furnace, built early in the last century, and it is here that the wagon road ends and the trail over the hills begins.

It is a picturesque region. The country is a succession of lofty hills or ridges, as the natives term the crests, and "hollers." Creeks and branches, dry in the summer, at other seasons of the year become miniature torrents, each spanned by a tree felled to form a bridge.

Following the interview "Lize" went in to prepare a ground hog And'son had "cotched" in its hibernating hole that morning. Next to baked possum, ground hog is a dish fit to grace the table of a King. As Anderson Prader explained, there are several small kernels under the forelegs of a ground hog that must be removed when the skin is taken off. This eliminates the earthy flavor and the hog is ready for the oven.

"Skin's no good," remarked Anderson. "Only to make shoe strings. They sell fer a quarter a pair an last fer a lifetime if a feller wants t' bother with 'em."

Pointing to a cliff across East Fork, on the slate face of which could be discerned some white tracings, Prader remarked: "Thar's Noey's rock. At the time 'f th' deluge, Noey passed this a-way in his ark, so they say. The water wuz rizin' on the face 'f th' rock en Ham, er some 'f his kinfolk, cut them ole time letters on thet clift."

The visitor voiced his disbelief and attributed the marks to the sun, winds and rain, but Anderson held up his hand in warning. "Don't let Lize hearn yo'," he whispered. "She done put th' panic in a parson las' week who scoffed at thet Noey story. He said Noey er his kin never put them marks thar, an' she dared him t' prove they didn't, en ordered him offn th' place."

After dinner "Lize" put up a jug of bitters for the caller and remarked: "Some 'f th' doctors bin tryin' t' analyze them. But we got yarbs up here they never hearn tell of. Ennyhow, I sell it faster'n I kin make it."

Jack London's Best Short Stories

This series of tales of the Far North was written after the noted author's first visit to the Klondike, when red blood flowed and there was no law except that of man to man—On these stories Jack London's reputation was founded.

Number Nine

AN ODYSSEY OF THE NORTH

THE sleds were singing their eternal lament to the creaking of the harnesses and the tinkling bells of the leaders; but the men and dogs were tired and made no sound. The trail was heavy with new-fallen snow, and they had come far, and the runners, burdened with flint-like quarters of frozen moose, clung tenaciously to the unpacked surface and held back with a stubbornness almost human. Darkness was coming on, but there was no camp to pitch that night. The snow fell gently through the pulseless air, not in flakes, but in tiny frost crystals of delicate design. It was very warm—barely 10 below zero—and the men did not mind. Meyers and Bettles had raised their earflaps, while Malamute Kid had even taken off his mittens.

The dogs had been fagged out early in the afternoon, but they now began to show new vigor. Among the more astute there was a certain restlessness—an impatience at the restraint of the traces, an indecisive quickness of movement, a sniffing of snouts and pricking of ears. At last, the leader of the foremost sled uttered a sharp whine of satisfaction, crouching lower in the snow and throwing himself against the collar. The rest followed suit. There was an ingathering of backbands, a tightening of traces; the sleds leaped forward, and the men clung to the gee poles, violently accelerating the uplift of their feet that they might escape going under the runners. The weariness of the day fell from them, and they whooped encouragement to the dogs. The animals responded with joyous yelps. They were swinging through the gathering darkness at a rattling gallop.

"Gee! Gee!" the men cried, each in turn, as their sleds abruptly left the main trail, heeling over on single runners like luggers on the wind.

Then came a hundred yards' dash to the lighted parchment windows, which told its own story of the home cabin, the roaring Yukon stove and the steaming pots of tea. But the home cabin had been invaded. Threescore huskies chorused defiance, and as many furry forms precipitated themselves upon the dogs which drew the first sled. The door was flung open and a man, clad in the scarlet tunic of the Northwest Police, waded knee-deep among the furious brutes calmly and impartially dispensing soothing justice with the butt end of a dog whip. After that, the men shook hands; and in this wise was Malamute Kid welcomed to his own cabin by a stranger.

Stanley Prince, who should have welcomed him, and who was responsible for the Yukon stove and hot tea aforementioned, was busy with his guests. There were a dozen or so of them, as nondescript a crowd as ever served the Queen in the enforcement of her laws or the delivery of her mails. They were of many breeds, but their common life had formed of them a certain type—a lean and wiry type, with trail-hardened muscles and sun-browned faces, and untroubled souls which gazed frankly forth, clear-eyed and steady. They drove the dogs of the Queen, wrought fear in the hearts of her enemies, ate of her meager fare and were happy. They had seen life and done deeds and lived romances; but they did not know it.

And they were very much at home. Two of them were sprawled upon Malamute Kid's bunk, singing chansons which their French forbears sang in the days when first they entered the Northwest land and mated with its Indian women. Bettles' bunk had suffered a similar invasion, and three or four lusty voyagers worked their toes among its blankets as they listened to the tale of one who had served on the boat brigade with Wolseley when he fought his way to Khartoum; and when he tired, a cowboy told of courts and kings and lords and ladies he had seen when Buffalo Bill toured the capitals of Europe. In a corner, two halfbreeds, ancient comrades in a lost campaign, mended harnesses and talked of the days when the Northwest flamed with insurrection and Louis Reil was king.

When conversation dropped and the travelers filled the last pipes and unleashed their tight-rolled sleeping furs, Prince fell back upon his comrade for further information.

"Well, you know what the cowboy is," Malamute Kid answered, beginning to unlace his moccasins; "and it's not hard to guess the British blood in his bed partner. As for the rest, they're all children of the coureurs du bois, mingled with God knows how many other bloods. The two turning in by the door are the regulation 'breeds' or bois brules. That lad with the worsted breech scarf—notice his eyebrows and the turn of his jaw—shows a Scotchman wept in his mother's smoky tepee. And that handsome-looking fellow putting the capote under his head is a French halfbreed—you heard him talking; he doesn't like the two Indians turning in next to him. You see, when the 'breeds' rose under Reil the fullbloods kept the peace, and they've not lost much love for one another since."

But I say, what's that glum-looking fellow by the stove? I'll swear he can't talk English. He hasn't opened his mouth all night."

"You're wrong. He knows English well enough. Did you follow his eyes when he listened? I did. But he's neither kith nor kin to the others. When they talked their own patois you could see he didn't understand. I've been wondering myself what he is. Let's find out."

"Fire a couple of sticks into the stove!" Malamute Kid commanded, raising his voice and looking squarely at the man in question.

He obeyed at once.

"Had discipline knocked into him somewhere," Prince commented in a low tone.

Malamute Kid nodded, took off his socks and picked his way among the recumbent men to the stove. There he hung his damp footgear among a score or so of mates.

"When do you expect to go to Dawson?" he asked tentatively.

The man studied him a moment before replying. "They say 75 miles. So? Maybe two days."

The very slightest accent was perceptible, while there was no awkward hesitancy or groping for words.

"Been in the country before?"

"No."

"Northwest Territory?"

"Yes."

"Born there?"

"No."

"Well, where the devil were you born? You're none of these." Malamute Kid swept his hand over the dog drivers, even including the two policemen who had turned into Prince's bunk. "Where did you come from? I've seen faces like yours before, though I can't remember just where."

"I know you," he irrelevantly replied, at once turning the drift of Malamute Kid's questions.

"Where? Ever see me?"

"No; your partner; him priest, Pastilak, long time ago. Him ask me if I see you, Malamute Kid. Him give me grub. I no stop long. You hear him speak 'bout me?"

"Oh! you're the fellow that traded the otter skins for the dogs?"

The man nodded, knocked out his pipe and signified his disinclination for conversation by rolling up his furs. Malamute Kid blew out the slush-lamp and crawled under the blankets with Prince.

"Well, what is he?'

"Don't know—turned me off, somehow, and then shut up like a clam. But he's a fellow to whet your curiosity. I've heard of him. All the Coast wondered about him eight years ago. Sort of mysterious, you know. He came down out of the North, in the dead of winter, many a thousand miles from here, skirting Bering Sea and traveling as though the devil were after him. No one ever learned where he came from, but he must have come far. He was badly travel-worn when he got food from the Swedish missionary on Golovin Bay and asked the way south. We heard of this afterward. Then he abandoned the shore line, heading right across Norton Sound. Terrible weather, snowstorms and high winds, but he pulled through where a thousand other men would have died, missing St. Michael's and making the land at Pastilik. He'd lost all but two dogs, and was nearly gone with starvation.

"He was so anxious to go on that Father Roubeau fitted him out with grub; but he couldn't let him have any dogs, for he was only waiting my arrival to go on a trip himself. Mr. Ulysses knew too much to start on without animals, and fretted around for several days. He had on his sled a bunch of beautifully cured otter skins, sea otters, you know, worth their weight in gold. There was also at Pastilik an old Shylock of a Russian trader, who had dogs to kill. Well, they didn't dicker very long, but when the Strange One headed south again, it was in the rear of a spanking dog team. Mr. Shylock, by the way, had the otter skins. I saw them, and they were magnificent. We figured it up and found the dogs brought him at least five hundred apiece. And it wasn't as if the Strange One didn't know the value of sea otter; he was an Indian of some sort, and what little he talked showed he'd been among white men.

"After the ice passed out of the sea, word came up from Nunivak Island that he'd gone in there for grub. Then he dropped from sight, and this is the first heard of him in eight years. Now where did he come from, and what was he doing there, and why did he come from there? He's Indian; he's been nobody knows where, and he's had discipline, which is unusual for an Indian. Another mystery of the North for you to solve, Prince."

The next morning, hours before daylight, the dog-drivers and policemen pulled out for Dawson. But the powers that saw to her majesty's interests, and ruled the destinies of her lesser creatures, gave the mailmen little rest; for a week later they appeared at Stuart River, heavily burdened with letters for Salt Water. However, their dogs had been replaced by fresh ones; but then, they were dogs.

The men had expected some sort of a layover in which to rest up; besides, this Klondike was a new section of the Northland, and they had wished to see a little something of the Golden City where dust flowed like water, and dance halls rang with never ending revelry. But they dried their socks and smoked their evening pipes with much the same gusto as on their former visit, though one or two bold spirits speculated on desertion and the possibility of crossing the unexplored Rockies to the east, and thence, by the Mackenzie Valley of gaining their old stamping grounds in the Chippewyan country. Two or three even decided to return to their homes by that route when their terms of service had expired, and they began to lay plans forthwith, looking forward to the hazardous undertaking in much the same way a city-bred man would to a day's holiday in the woods.

He of the otter skins seemed very restless, though he took little interest in the discussion, and at last he drew Malamute Kid to one side and talked for some time in low tones. Prince cast curious eyes in their direction, and the mystery deepened when they put on caps and mittens and went outside. When they returned, Malamute Kid placed his gold scales on the table, weighed out the matter of 60 ounces and transferred them to the Strange One's sack. Then the chief of the dog drivers joined the conclave and certain business was transacted with him. The next day the gang went on up the river, but He of the Otter Skins took several pounds of grub and turned his steps back toward Dawson.

"Didn't know what to make of it," said Malamute Kid in response to Prince's queries; "but the poor beggar wanted to be quit of the service for some reason or other—at least it seemed a most important one to him, though he wouldn't let on what. You see, it's just like the army; he signed for two years, and the only way to get free was to buy himself out. He couldn't desert and then stay here, and he was just wild to remain in the country. Made up his mind when he got to Dawson, he said; but no one knew him, hadn't a cent, and I was the only one he'd spoken two words with. So he talked it over with the Lieutenant-Governor and made arrangements in case he could get the money from me—loan, you know. Said he'd pay back in the year, and if I wanted, would put me onto something rich. Never'd seen it, but knew it was rich.

"And talk! Why, when he got me outside he was ready to weep. Begged and pleaded; got down in the snow to me till I hauled him out of it. Palavered around like a crazy man. Swore he's worked to this very end for years and years, and couldn't bear to be disappointed now. Asked him what end, but he wouldn't say. Said they might keep him on the other half of the trail and he wouldn't get to Dawson in two years, and then it would be too late. Never saw a man take on so in my life. And when I said I'd let him have it, had to yank him out of the snow again. Told him to consider it in the light of a grubstake. Think he'd have it? No, sir! Swore he'd give me all he found, make me rich beyond the dreams of avarice, and all such stuff. Now, a man who puts his life and time against a grubstake ordinarily finds it hard enough to turn over half of what he finds. Something behind all this, Prince; just you make a note of it. We'll hear of him if he stays in the country"——

"And if he doesn't?"

"Then my good-nature gets a shock, and I'm 60 some odd ounces out."

The cold weather had come on with the long nights, and the sun had begun to play his ancient game of peek-aboo along the southern snow line ere aught was heard of Malamute Kid's grubstake. And then, one bleak morning in early January, a heavily laden dog train pulled into his cabin below Stuart River. He of the Otter Skins was there, and with him walked a man such as the gods have almost forgotten how to fashion. Men never talked of luck and pluck and $500 dirt without bringing in the name of Axel Gunderson; nor could tales of nerve or strength or daring pass up and down the campfire without the summoning of his presence. And when the conversation flagged, it blazed anew at mention of the woman who shared his fortunes.

As has been noted, in the making of Axel Gunderson the gods had remembered their old-time cunning, and cast him after the manner of men who were born when the world was young. Full seven feet he towered in his picturesque costume which marked a king of Eldorado. His chest, neck and limbs were those of a giant. To bear his 300 pounds of bone and muscle, his snowshoes were greater by a generous yard than those of other men. Rough-hewn, with rugged brow and massive jaw and unflinching eyes of pale blue, his face told the tale of one who knew but the law of might. Of the yellow of ripe corn silk, his frost-incrusted hair swept like day across the night and fell far down his coat of bearskin. A vague tradition of the sea seemed to cling about him, as he swung down the narrow trail in advance of the dogs; and he brought the butt of his dog whip against Malamute Kid's door as a Norse sea rover, on southern foray, might thunder for admittance at the castle gate.

Prince bared his womanly arms and kneaded sour-dough bread, casting, as he did so, many a glance at the three guests—three guests the like of which might never come under a man's roof in a lifetime. The Strange One, whom Malamute Kid had surnamed Ulysses, still fascinated him; but his interest chiefly gravitated between Axel Gunderson and Axel Gunderson's wife. She felt the day's journey, for she had softened in comfortable cabins during the many days since her husband mastered the wealth of frozen pay-streaks, and she was tired. She rested against his great breast like a slender flower against a wall, replying lazily to Malamute Kid's good-natured banter, and stirring Prince's blood strangely with an occasional sweep of her deep, dark eyes. For Prince was a man, and healthy, and had seen few women in many months. And she was older than he, and an Indian besides. But she was different from all native wives he had met; she had traveled—had been in his country among others, he gathered from the conversation; and she knew most of the things the women of his own race knew, and much more that it was not in the nature of things for them to know. She could make a meal of sun-dried fish or a bed in the snow; yet she teased them with tantalizing details of many-course dinners, and caused strange internal dissensions to arise at the mention of various quondam dishes which they had well-nigh forgotten. She knew the ways of the moose, the bear and the little blue fox, and of the wild amphibians of the Northern seas; she was skilled in the lore of the woods and the streams, and the tale writ by man and bird and beast upon the delicate snow crust was to her an open book; yet Prince caught the appreciative twinkle in her eye as she read the Rules of the Camp. These rules had been fathered by the Unquenchable Bettles at a time when his blood ran high, and were remarkable for the terse simplicity of their humor. Prince always turned them to the wall before the arrival of ladies; but who could suspect that this native wife—Well, it was too late now.

There had been no snow for many days, and the sleds slipped along the hard-packed Yukon trail as easily as if it had been glare-ice. Ulysses led the first sled; with the second came Prince and Axel Gunderson's wife; while Malamute Kid and the yellow-haired giant brought up the third.

"It's only a 'hunch,' Kid," he said; "but I think it's straight. He's never been there, but he tells a good

For gray hair it is so easy to apply, not being greasy or sticky. De Lacy's will gradually restore the gray and streaked hair to its original natural, dark color. $1.00 per bottle at all good drug and toilet counters, or sent prepaid in plain packages by De Lacy Chemical Co., St. Louis, U. S. A.

A Real MOVING PICTURE SHOW IN YOUR OWN HOME

REAL MOVING PICTURES

Remember, this is a Genuine Moving Picture Machine and the motion pictures are clear, sharp and distinct.

The Moving Picture Machine is finely constructed and carefully put together by skilled workmen. It is made of Russian Metal, and is operated by a finely constructed mechanism, has a beautiful finish. The projecting lenses are carefully ground and adjusted, triple polished, standard double extra reflector, throwing a ray of light many feet. The light is produced by a safety carbide generator, such as is used on the largest automobiles. This throws a dazzling white light of 500 candlepower on the screen.

It is not a toy; it is a solidly constructed and durable Moving Picture Machine. The mechanism is exceedingly simple and is readily operated by the most inexperienced. The pictures shown by this marvellous Moving Picture Machine are not the common crude and lifeless Magic Lantern variety, but are lifelike photographic reproductions of actual scenes, places and people, which never tire its audiences. This Moving Picture Machine has caused a rousing enthusiasm wherever it is used.

Would Not Give Away for $25.00

My Moving Picture Machine is a good one, and I would not give it away for $25.00. It's the best machine I ever had, and I wish everybody could have one. Addie Bresky, Jeanesville, Pa. Box 34.

Better Than a $12.00 Machine

I am slow about turning in my thanks to you, but my Moving Picture Machine is all right. I have had it a long time, and it has not been broken yet. I have seen a $12.00 Machine, but would not swap mine for it. Robert Lineberry, care of Revolution Store, Greenboro, N. C.

Wonderful

I received my Wonderful Moving Picture Machine in good condition. I learned how to run it in ten minutes. It sure is a dandy. It shows life like pictures. Thanking you for it, I remain yours truly, Dale Slack, 900 Tremdley, East St. Louis, Ill.

Came the Day Expected

I received the Moving Picture Machine all in good condition. I tried it the day I got it and found it worked excellently. I got the machine on just the day I had set for it to arrive. I think it is a dandy for the little I had to do for it. Irving Mills, So. Lee, Mass.

Another Show To-night

I received my Moving Picture Machine, and I thank you a thousand times. I could not have more fun than I did, because the pictures were so funny. I am going to give another show to-night. Many boys saw it and wished they had one. Joseph Bauer, 625 So. Moulton Avenue, Los Angeles, Cal.

Would Not Take $30.00 for It

I find your Machine to be what it is recommended. I believe if thousands of other boys had one they would enjoy life better. I don't think they could get any other thing they would like so well. I would not take $30.00 for it. I have been offered almost that much. I thank you a thousand times. Harry Crisp, Akin, Ill.

A Mother's Appreciation

Just a few lines to thank you for my little son's Moving Picture Machine that he received in perfect order and everything as you stated. I wish to tell you my little boy is so pleased we have operated it and had no trouble whatever. We had our cousins to see the pictures and how the little ones did laugh and enjoy it. Mrs. Fred Spriggs, R. F. D. 1, Chatham, N. J.

Sold His for $10.00 and Ordered Another

Some time ago I got one of your Machines, and I am very much pleased with it. After working it for about a month I sold it for $10.00 to a friend of mine. He has it and entertains his family nightly. I have now decided to get another one of your machines. Michael Ebereth, Mandan, N. Dak.
